

4-11-2011

Scholar Week

Gregg Chenoweth

Olivet Nazarene University, Gregg.chenoweth@bethelcollege.edu

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.olivet.edu/scholar_week_archives

 Part of the Architecture Commons, Arts and Humanities Commons, Business Commons, Education Commons, Engineering Commons, Law Commons, Life Sciences Commons, Medicine and Health Sciences Commons, Physical Sciences and Mathematics Commons, and the Social and Behavioral Sciences Commons

Recommended Citation

Chenoweth, Gregg, "Scholar Week" (2011). Scholar Week Archives. Paper 1.
http://digitalcommons.olivet.edu/scholar_week_archives/1

This Event Presentation is brought to you for free and open access by the Scholar Week at Digital Commons @ Olivet. It has been accepted for inclusion in Scholar Week Archives by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Olivet. For more information, please contact kboyens@olivet.edu.

F

aculty, Students, and Guests:

During Scholar Week we take inspiration from 18th century preacher-scholar John Wesley. As "a denominational university in the Wesleyan tradition," scholarship and piety are thoroughly compatible here.

Wesley is most known for evangelism, church planting, compassionate activism, and piety. But this founder of Methodism was also a methodological thinker, calling himself an "empiricist," analyzing theological claims with formal syllogisms, compiling his own five-volume science book of natural philosophy, and leisure reading, at age 83, Francis Bacon's "Ten Centuries of Experiments." While piety was his great, clamoring gong throughout history, rigorous analysis is his echo.

His theological method is also pliable to academic work. There was for Wesley a dynamic relationship between Scripture and other God-given tools and resources to discern His will and way: the "a priori" gift of reason to test evidence, sustainable patterns set by the early Church, and the great value of common spiritual experience over private and internal "spiritual enthusiasms." William Abraham says about Wesley, Scripture is law, but these other thinking tools are jury. They too are means of grace, mediating life in God and fostering sanctity.

By the early 20th century, founders of the Church of the Nazarene expressed Wesley's Methodism through schools, a dozen of them in its first decade. Dr. J.P. Widney—the man who named the Nazarenes—was president of the University of Southern California. And Phineas Bresee—the denomination's first General Superintendent, president of a college for nine years, and organizer of the Chicago Central District -- counseled his pastors to be in touch with the great thought of the world. Get books, he said, get them at any sacrifice, for they equip us to teach and win souls. Today, more than 50 dot the globe, serving 30,000 students. A Harvard panel in 2000 said the denomination's churches are inconceivable apart from its schools.

So, in Scholar Week we tune our ear to the gong and echo of Wesley. It is not just history, but his story, even to this day. In our own scholarship projects we join a great cloud of Christians not educated out of their faith, but fashioning an educated faith, where the love of the Lord by heart, soul, strength, and mind is our great and worthy cause.

Dr. Gregg Chenoweth
Vice President for Academic Affairs

OLIVET NAZARENE UNIVERSITY

SCHOLAR WEEK

April 11–14, 2011

SCHOLAR WEEK

The work of a scholar is often seen as a solitary undertaking: sitting alone in a library or research laboratory, studying quietly—an unobtrusive figure hidden away from campus community. Yet in reality, scholarship depends on community, a dependence on predecessors and contemporaries to map a path toward brighter possibility. Through discussion and collaboration we create opportunities for innovative thoughts to surface and for the merit of the true scholar to be witnessed. Scholarship needs community, as communities need scholars.

THIS WEEK WE GATHER AS A COMMUNITY OF CHRISTIAN SCHOLARS AND EDUCATORS

Besides the faculty presentations, Olivet's Honors students will give public presentations of their honors projects—creative or scholarly works developed over their last two years in the Honors program in conjunction with their faculty mentors. We invite you to join us as we step out into our Second Century.

Monday, April 11 • Weber 104

- 4pm Welcome
- 4:10 A Little Scholarship: Being One on Whom Nothing is Lost
Dr. Rebecca Belcher-Rankin
SAMUEL L. MAYHUGH AWARD FOR SCHOLARLY EXCELLENCE
- 4:40 Reframing Justice Through Holistic Restoration
Dr. Houston Thompson
- 5pm How Well Does the Typical Accounting Bachelor's Degree Prepare Students for a Career in the Accounting Department of the United States Government?
Micheal J. Tuttle
- 5:15 Healthcare Design: Designing Healthier and Happier Environments for Patient Care
Caitlin E. Charles
- 5:30 Postmodern Developments in Evangelical Theology
R. Wes Siscoe
- 5:45 Malnutrition and Socioeconomic Status in Quito, Ecuador
Amanda C. Vanderpool

Tuesday, April 12 • Weber 104

- 4pm Evidence and Impact of Expectancies Associated with Psychotropic Medication Reductions in Persons with Mental Retardation
Dr. Christopher S. Baglio
RALPH E. PERRY STUDENT AWARD OF EXCELLENCE
- 4:20 The Relationship between Middle School Reading Motivation and the Rebecca Caudill Young Readers' Book Award Program
Dr. Roxanne Forgrave
- 4:40 Intellectual Freedom: Patron Objections to Library Materials in Christian College Libraries
Craigton Hippenhammer
- 5pm Using the Mineral Rutile to Elucidate the Tectonic History of the Southern Appalachian Mountains
Kathryn A. Eades
- 5:15 Patient Profile: A Comprehensive Study of the Characteristics of Patients Seen in a Kankakee General Practitioner's Office Between the Months of May & July
Jennifer A. Feshaw
- 5:30 East/West: Salman Rushdie and Hybridity
Jessica M. Brown
- 5:45 Effective Teacher Education in School Gardening
Anne Lowry

Wednesday, April 13 • Kresge

- 4pm The Synergy Between Poetry and Music in the Creative Process
Dr. Karen Ball
- 4:20 Art at the Kitchen Table: Woodblock Prints
Gary Thomas
- 4:40 Stroke Protocol and Patient Outcomes
Dr. Patricia Nielson
- 5pm Justice for All: Improving Enforcement and Relief Efforts of Human Trafficking Laws in Relation to Immigration Reform and Border Control
Katelyn J. Flynn
- 5:15 Obstacle Avoidance Subsystem for an Autonomous Robot
Fristie L. King
- 5:30 Deviance in the Sport of Soccer: The Relationship Between Wearing Brightly Colored Cleats and Aggression
Katherine G. Kulchar
- 5:45 Everyman. A Modern Adaptation (Or, Time for Everyman to Man Up!)
Merick C. Robison

Thursday, April 14 • Weber 104

- 4pm Exploring Nutrition Literacy: Attention to Assessment by RDs and the Skills Clients Need
Heather Gibbs
- 4:20 Sir Walter and Mr. Jones: Walter Hagen, Bobby Jones, and the Rise of American Golf
Dr. Stephen Lowe
- 4:40 Tertullian, Christ, and Roman law: Tertullian's Use of Sequester as an Example of Christ
Dr. Mark Fiskus
- 5pm Teaching Christian Reader Response to Secular Young Adult Literature
Angela R. Lee
- 5:15 Japanese Jesus: Presenting the Character of Christ in an Eastern Context
Jessica E. Scheue
- 5:30 An Investigation of Two Contemporary Influences on Ecuadorian Native Culture and Environment
Laura A. First

