*The President's Dinner
For Faculty and Staff*

August 23, 2013

6:30 p.m.

Chalfant Hall

Olivet Nazarene University

Hosted by Dr. and Mrs. John C. Bowling

MISSION

Olivet Nazarene University, a denominational university in the Wesleyan tradition, exists to provide a university-level liberal arts “Education with a Christian Purpose.”

Our mission is to provide high-quality academic instruction for the purpose of personal development, career and professional readiness, and the preparation of individuals for lives of service to God and humanity.

“We seek the strongest scholarship and the deepest piety, knowing that they are compatible [and] ... a Christian environment ... where not only knowledge but character is sought.” (The quotation is taken from the Olivet Catalog, 1915.)

This mission provides the common ground for us as we blend our various gifts and interests together to impact each student. You will have many opportunities this year to live out this mission. Watch for those occasions, for they are moments of great possibility and reward. Through our mission, we transform lives for eternity.

WELCOME | FROM JILL AND
JOHN BOWLING

Good evening and welcome to the annual President’s Dinner for faculty and staff. We gather this evening as colleagues and friends to mark the beginning of a new academic year. Ours is a high calling. We have the rich privilege of providing “An Education with a Christian Purpose” to a great group of students. Thanks to each of you for the vital role you have in fulfilling this mission.

Please take a moment during the dinner to review this evening’s program booklet, which chronicles many of the accomplishments of your co-workers. Others are being recognized this evening for reaching significant milestones of service to Olivet, and we welcome an outstanding group of new members to the faculty and staff.

We hope you have a wonderful evening, and a rewarding and joyful year!

Byron M. Carmony '39

To Alma Mater, Olivet, we lift our voice in praise
For noble standards which we'll hold
'til ending of our days.

The time we spent within these halls will ne'er forgotten be,
For here we learned to know of truth,
and truth will make us free.

My Olivet, Our Olivet! Tho' life may lead us far apart,
I'll still revere you in my heart.

My Olivet, Our Olivet. I'll love the Christ
you gave first part,
And you, old Olivet!

2013 FACULTY MEMBER OF THE YEAR

David Wine

*Associate Professor of Christian Education
School of Theology and Christian Ministry*

A third generation Nazarene pastor, David Wine '72 has a special place in his heart for Olivet Nazarene University. "It's part of our family's story," he says.

"At Olivet, we integrate learning and Truth with a capital 'T.' That is exciting to me. Olivet is a strategic place in the kingdom of God — a training ground for future leaders of the kingdom."

Prior to serving as a professor in Olivet's School of Theology and Christian Ministry, David served in a wide variety of ministerial capacities in the Church of the Nazarene, including as youth pastor in Lima, Mount Vernon and Canton, Ohio, as well as associate pastor at College Church of the Nazarene in Bourbonnais, Ill.

In 1995, David joined the faculty at Olivet. His unique, interactive teaching style has made him a favorite among students. "As a professor, I try to be faithful to who God has created me to be — and being a steward of those gifts and passions He has planted in my heart. If I am effective at all, it's because of God," David humbly explains.

When it comes to effectiveness, all it takes is spending a minute in one of David's classes to realize the level of engagement and influence he has with his students.

Filled with stimulating conversations, open discussion, and times of sharing, his classes provide a place for students to ask tough questions, and put down roots in their faith.

But David's influence doesn't stop when he leaves the classroom. "I enjoy the one-on-one mentoring opportunities, and helping students figure out difficult questions in their lives," he explains.

In addition to academic and personal mentoring, David and his wife, Donna, also serve as mentors for engaged couples, helping them navigate the beginning stages of a lifelong relationship.

David and Donna have two children. Their son, Jeffrey, is an optometrist and lives in Phoenix, Ariz., with his wife, Joy, and two girls. Their daughter, Janelle, and husband, Rev. Brad Thompson, live in Indianapolis with their two boys.

At the beginning of August 2013, David completed an adult Sunday school curriculum on Nehemiah for Nazarene Publishing House, which will be distributed to Nazarenes around the world.

Everything David does comes back to his love for people, and his desire for them to live abundantly in Christ. "My greatest fulfillment," he says, "is seeing my students and children embrace their calling and extend God's kingdom."

David, for your unwavering passion for the human soul, and for years of investing in the hearts and minds of others, we salute you as the 2013 Faculty Member of the Year.

"Rejoice always, pray continually, give thanks in all circumstances; for this is God's will for you in Christ Jesus."

2013 STAFF MEMBER OF THE YEAR

Marjorie Vinson

Administrative Assistant to the President

“I do what I need to do behind the scenes to make Dr. Bowling’s job easier,” Marjorie Vinson says. Throughout 30 years as his administrative assistant — eight years at College Church (Bourbonnais) and 22 years at Olivet — she has taken care of a myriad of details to make that happen.

Marjorie remembers her first contact with Olivet well. Members of an ONU choir stayed in her family’s home in Shelbyville, Ind., when she was a teenager. “When they sang around our piano, I remember thinking: This is heavenly. I wonder what Olivet is really like,” she says. And she had her opportunity to know when she entered Olivet as a freshman in 1965.

After successful careers as an executive assistant and a legal assistant, she assisted four senior pastors at College Church before Dr. John C. Bowling arrived in 1983. Eight years later, when he was elected as University president, he asked Marjorie: “Will you follow me to Olivet?” Saying “yes” charted the course for the rest of her career.

In the President’s office, every day brings new joys and challenges for Marjorie. Along with Doris Roberts and Susan Turner, she keeps the wheels turning in Dr. Bowling’s professional world. Greeting each person who comes through the door, taking phone calls, preparing for visits of University guests and dignitaries, handling email and written correspondence, planning events, and anticipating what Dr. Bowling needs are just a few of her many responsibilities. She also works with Mrs. Jill Bowling in planning special events.

Marjorie especially enjoys the relationships she has had with her 24 student workers through the years. Many of them continue to stay in touch with her and even visit in her home. And although she enjoys each University event, she especially looks forward to the faculty and staff gathering at Christmas and the summer picnic because those events give her the opportunity to work with employees from other departments.

She cites one of Dr. Bowling’s first publications as president of the University — Agenda for Excellence, 1993 to 2007 — as one of the guiding influences in her life. Her commitment to excellence includes achieving her best while maintaining a passion for service and a personal, vibrant faith.

Describing herself as a country girl at heart, Marjorie and her husband, Jerry, spend many weekends at their property on a lake in the hills of central Indiana. She enjoys gardening there and entertaining guests as often as possible. An extrovert and the consummate event planner, she also prepares home-cooked meals for guests at their home in Bourbonnais.

Marjorie and Jerry live just a few doors from campus and three houses away from her son and his wife, Aric and Mindi Raymond, and grandchildren, Kaylee and Tyler.

She works hard and with joy for Dr. Bowling and Olivet. As Marjorie says, “I feel privileged to work for Dr. and Mrs. Bowling, and I’m thankful to be an extension of his ministry. As surely as Jeremiah 29:11 promises, I have believed in and trusted God, and He has led me in my life.”

Marjorie, for your outstanding efficiency, patience with all of us and unwavering commitment to Olivet’s mission, we salute you as the 2013 Staff Member of the Year.

“For I know the plans I have for you,” declares the LORD, “plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future.” JEREMIAH 29:11

FACULTY RECOGNITIONS FOR 2012–2013

I. REFLECTIONS OF 2013 TEACHING AND SCHOLARSHIP AWARD RECIPIENTS

Dr. Lynda Allen

2013 Richard M. Jones Faculty Award for Teaching Excellence

A Recipe for Teaching

A Phil Collins song sums it up for me pretty simply, “In learning you will teach, and in teaching you will learn.” I have always loved to learn, whether it is traditional classroom learning or perfecting a recipe for the best ever yellow cake in the kitchen — I thrive when I am learning something new. Perhaps that is why the classroom is a place that I love. My students challenge me daily to continue to think and grow and deepen my level of understanding. I teach, not to impart knowledge, but to engage in dynamic relationships that have the power to transform lives.

The beauty of teaching at Olivet is that I am able to do so much more than teach the principles of marketing and leadership. My role as a professor provides me the extraordinary opportunity to engage both academically and spiritually, and to develop relationships with students that go far beyond the classroom — sometimes even to share that cake at my dining room table! I have been challenged and blessed to be a mentor and friend to so many of my students. I am committed to digging even deeper this year to learn more and be more so that I can give more away to the students in my circle of influence.

—LYNDA ALLEN, 2013

Dr. David Van Heemst

2013 Samuel L. Mayhugh Award for Scholarly Excellence

Why scholarship is important to me

Scholarship is important because it gets at the heart of who I am. I'm always reading, thinking and wrestling with ideas. In very real ways, I can't help but write.

As a political scientist, I'm gripped by and grapple with Plato's question: What is justice? My first three books dealt with different facets of that question — one chronicling two great philosophers of justice, one linking educational justice to economically disadvantaged students, and one connecting international justice to global systems and structures.

As a professor and a dad of five daughters, my recent scholarly interests have turned to college students and to dads with daughters. My last two books challenged students to embrace the reality of God's kingdom, and dads to inspire their daughter's hearts and minds by cultivating a relationship with them.

Scholarship is one of the ways we Christians bear witness to the in-breaking of God's kingdom. Scholarship is part of our communal calling. Striving to be good stewards of our minds is one of the ways each of us can serve and worship the Lord. We can be good models for our students and become a transformative presence in their lives. My prayer is that the Lord will continue to bless our scholarly efforts at ONU.

—DAVID VAN HEEMST, 2013

II. ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE AT OLIVET NAZARENE UNIVERSITY

Olivet's greatest resources are its people. Excellent faculty and staff, working with motivated students, produce outstanding alumni.

ONU alumni live in 60 world areas and accomplish much. They have:

- founded Ticketmaster
- sung with Pavarotti on Broadway
- written software for the CAT-scan
- edited U.S. News & World Report
- directed IRS field operations
- led policy teams for the Department of Homeland Security
- operated on Nancy Reagan
- controlled product logistics for Kraft Foods
- managed chemistry research for Proctor & Gamble
- presided over Sears & Roebuck
- supervised databases for NASA's Space Shuttle Program
- performed economic diplomacy for the U.S. government in Moscow
- consulted with Fortune 500 CEOs
- sold the largest deal in AT&T history
- regulated finances for the U.S. Departments of Defense and Agriculture
- won national photography and art competitions
- held public office
- superintended the Church of the Nazarene

Alumni have completed:

- graduate degrees at the Naval Aerospace Institute, Harvard University, Boston University, Wharton Business School at Penn
- law degrees at Stanford, Notre Dame and Ohio State
- medical programs at the University of Illinois, University of Chicago, University of Michigan, Wayne State University, Loyola University, and more

ONU students, while preparing to take their place in the world, also perform extraordinarily well compared to their peers. By various measures, ONU students do significantly more of the following than students at other private non-religious or private Christian universities:

- community volunteerism
- team-based coursework outside class
- foreign language preparation and international service (Missions in Action, Study Abroad participation, etc.)
- faith-integration (i.e., applying Christian values to profession, discussing personal beliefs). Eighty-nine percent say their religious beliefs are strengthened by the completion of their first year (compared with 53% at other religiously-affiliated schools).

III. EXAMPLES OF GUEST LECTURERS ON CAMPUS, 2012-2013

Dr. Anita Pandey, communications professor, Morgan State University

Caitlin Sansom, ONU geography alumna, geospatial analyst for GeoEye

Corey Jones, ONU alumnus, pastor, Crossroads Tabernacle Nazarene Church, Fort Worth, Texas

Tim Green, children's/young adult author

Dennis Marek, Kankakee attorney

Esteban Canales, season ticket services representative, Chicago Fire Soccer Club

Katie Kalemkarian, buyer with TJX Companies

Allison Mendez Maurer, strength and conditioning coach, University of Tennessee

Nathan Krause, ONU alumna, research technician, British Petroleum

Dr. Edward Yu, professor of physics and astronomy, chemistry, biochemistry, biophysics and molecular biology at Iowa State University, and associate of the U.S. Department of Energy's Ames Laboratory

Dr. Peter Atadja, director of drug discovery, Novartis Institute for Biomedical Research, China

Mark Lockwood, ONU alumnus, actuary for State Farm Insurance Company

IV. SCHOLARSHIP PROJECTS

Recognizing sample scholarship projects by ONU faculty during the past year, the University congratulates faculty on this work! When done well, these projects intensify the effectiveness of the gospel. (Administrative faculty, department heads and coaches are not required to perform such work, though many do so. Also, doctoral projects count as the scholarship agenda for faculty engaged in that work.)

Scholarship projects fulfill part of the ONU mission. As a denominational university in the Wesleyan tradition, the “strongest scholarship and deepest piety” are thoroughly compatible (Catalog, 1915). Faculty serve that great cause through spiritual modeling, course instruction, service roles (committees, student advising, etc.), and when maintaining an agenda for professional growth.

The three most common forms of professional growth among faculty include: (1) professional practice experiences (i.e., activities to stay current in one’s field like reading, updating course-work, attending conferences, practicing the skills of the field); (2) professional leadership (i.e., giving direction to academic and industry organizations); and (3) scholarship projects (i.e., learning projects put in public form — a presentation, artifact, publication, DVD, CD, etc.) evaluated by those credentialed to judge the quality.

Scholarship projects are important to ONU for a variety of reasons.

Scholarship projects are teacher-friendly. As a teaching university, we believe scholarship projects inform instruction. Teaching and scholarship are not mutually exclusive, but interdependent. Students receive with confidence the methods, techniques and ideas current scholarship affords.

Scholarship projects are integrated. As a Christian university, we believe faculty should illustrate and articulate the impact of The Faith on our work. While secular faculty members exhibit virtuous behaviors (respect, kindness, etc.), we focus on faith-cultivating behaviors. This influences syllabi, instructional content, assessment procedures, out-of-classroom initiatives and more.

Scholarship projects are a proportionate priority. As stewards of time, we call for scholarship projects not to add workload, but to reconfigure it around our identity as a Christian, teaching-focused institution. ONU faculty members give a “tithe of time” in scholarship to sharpen the saw, hone understanding and improve the academic field.

Scholarship projects are diverse. Quality and format standards for scholarship projects vary widely between and within academic fields. A scholar is not limited to publishing, but participates in any combination of five scholarship domains: faith integration, teaching and learning, application, interdisciplinary integration, discovery. Flexibility in scholarship domains recognizes legitimate differences between disciplines and reflects the breadth of university life.

Scholarship projects are dynamic. Individual interests widen and deepen fluidly over time. One may wish to focus on a particular domain of scholarship during an early phase in his/her career, then change focus later. Trials in new areas ensure that students receive multiple dimensions to their education.

Scholarship projects are rewarded. While all faculty members perform similar kinds of work, particularly ambitious or effective scholars are recognized in a variety of ways: promotion in faculty rank, multi-year contracts, course releases, scholarship grants within the College/School and an annual scholarship award alongside the annual teaching award.

V. RECENT SCHOLARSHIP GRANT RECIPIENTS

While all faculty members engage in scholarship projects, some are particularly ambitious and available for supplemental support. The following were awarded grants by unit deans for the coming year.

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

LISA GASSIN | Received a Community Engagement Grant, “Disseminating information about and evaluating the Transition to Parenthood program.”

DALE HATHAWAY | “Christian Men (and Women) of Mathematics”

BETH SCHURMAN | “The Role of Service Learning in Teacher Education”

SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY AND CHRISTIAN MINISTRY

EDDIE ELLIS | Book project: Research into the development of specific themes in the canonical Gospels

The overall goal of the project is to produce a book that identifies several specific themes and analyzes, from a narrative perspective, the way each theme is developed in each gospel.

KEVIN LOWERY | Book project: Religion with the Boundaries of Morality and Reason

This book focuses on the relationship between religion and ethics. It addresses the problem of people using religion to justify immoral acts. It explains why the morality espoused by religions tends to change over time, especially in cultures where free-thinking is exercised.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

KELLY BROWN | Secured a grant from the Associated Colleges of Illinois (ACI) to assist in the development of a tutorial program for our students taking the State TAP Test.

ROXANNE FORGRAVE | Received a Community Engagement Grant for “Children’s/Young Adult Author Event” in 2013.

DENA REAMS | Authored a grant in partnership with South Pointe Youth for Christ for the School of Education to help children with their reading in Kankakee School District 111 in the amount of $60,000.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF OLIVET

Olivet Nazarene University's origins can be traced to the first decade of the last century and to the resolve of several families in east central Illinois who were committed to providing a Christian education for their children. In 1907, classes began in a home in the community of Georgetown, Ill. A year later, the founders acquired several acres of land in the nearby village called Olivet. There, they raised a modest building and added the secondary level of instruction. A College of Liberal Arts followed in 1909, along with the first name for this fledgling, but ambitious, institution: "Illinois Holiness University."

By 1912, the founders and trustees were aware of the school's need for a wider constituency and offered to give their educational work to the Church of the Nazarene. This young denomination accepted the school with a pledge to support and promote its ministry of Christian higher education. That early church commitment is still being perpetuated by the more than 800 Nazarene congregations throughout Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin.

The school grew slowly during the next decade. There were several acting and short-term presidents; the campus of 18 acres contained only a few small buildings; the first yearbook, the Aurora, was published in 1914; and a new school name followed in 1915: "Olivet University." In 1923, the name was changed to "Olivet College."

As was the case with many small church colleges in the 1920s, Olivet's financial base eroded significantly, forcing the trustees to declare bankruptcy in 1926.

Then-college treasurer, Dr. T.W. Willingham, bought the school back at a public auction, outlined a new plan for solvency, and was elected that night to serve as president.

A devastating fire destroyed the main campus building in November 1938, prompting the newly elected president, A.L. Parrott, and the trustees to consider locating a new campus as an alternative to rebuilding at their rural site. They found and purchased the present campus in Bourbonnais in 1939 and moved the college in the summer of 1940. "Nazarene" was added to the college's name that same year.

At the time of Olivet's move to Bourbonnais, the campus consisted of 42 acres, which had been the site of St. Viator's College from 1868 until it closed in 1938. Four of the buildings purchased then are still in use today.

Receiving formal recognition and accreditation by the University of Illinois in 1939 was a major academic milestone for Olivet. The college catalogs of the 1940s reflected a School of Liberal Arts, a School of Music, a School of Religion, and a high school Academy. In 1953, under the skillful leadership of Dr. Harold W. Reed, president, and Dr. Willis Snowbarger, newly appointed dean, all areas of study were grouped into curricular divisions.

Dr. Harold W. Reed, president from 1949–1975, led Olivet through a period of remarkable growth, including the construction of 20 major buildings to keep pace with swelling student enrollments.

Dr. Leslie Parrott continued this focus on campus expansion, development and beautification during his 16-year tenure with a specific interest in the elevation of Olivet to university status.

In 1986, the school's name was changed to "Olivet Nazarene University" to reflect the diversity of academic programs and graduate studies.

In 1991, Dr. John C. Bowling became president and has led the University in continued growth and effective ministry.

During the 1990s, Olivet expanded and strengthened both its undergraduate and graduate programs. The University established a formal development program, including planned giving and major gifts, an annual fund program known as Friends of Olivet, renewed grant writing, a comprehensive program of donor relations, and the “In Word and Deed” capital campaign. In 1994, a full-time chaplaincy program was established to give direction to chapel, student spiritual life activities, small-group ministries, missions and compassionate ministry experiences.

Additional successes in the 1990s included: Chalfant Hall was renovated; the Harlow E. Hopkins Alumni Center was established; Milby Clock Tower was reconstructed; Ludwig Dining Room, the Red Room, and the bookstore were renovated; the coffee shop, Common Grounds, was established; the Olivet computer, media, and communications network was created; the campus entrance was completed; and the Admissions Center was constructed.

In the following decade, the campus continued to undergo several changes. Between 2000 and 2009, the Weber Center was constructed; two parcels of land south of the Admissions Center were purchased; and the Larsen Fine Arts Center was renovated. Major renovations also took place in Burke Administration Building, Williams Hall, Chapman Hall, Common Grounds coffee shop and the Decker Quadrangle. Renovations to the Benner Library and Resource Center included a new student hangout, Jazzman’s. The Hardy C. Powers President’s House was renovated to house the Center for Student Success, and a new residence for the president was established at Reedy House on Olde Oak Drive. Ludwig Dining Hall was expanded and remodeled. Olivet purchased the former Fortin Villa property from Provena Healthcare, including 25 acres of land along Main Street, just south and west of the main campus. Today that property is utilized for ROTC classes, as well as intramural activities.

Significant improvements to the athletic facilities were completed in the 2000s, including renovation of Birchard Gymnasium to include a new varsity weight room and a new fitness center for students, faculty and staff. In Snowbarger Athletic Park, additional seating and a new press box were installed at Larry Watson Baseball Field; tennis courts were resurfaced, and new nets and posts were installed; and electric service was improved. Ward Field was renovated to include a larger running track, a new entry building, fencing, refurbished bleachers, a larger press box, an enhanced facade, and lighting for night games and practices. In 2002, Olivet began a long partnership with the Chicago Bears as the ONU campus became home to their annual summer training camp.

Throughout the 2000s, Information Technology expanded wireless access throughout the campus, including wired access to every classroom and residence hall room. In the academic realm, the radio station WONU-FM and broadcasting classes moved from the north wing of Benner Library to a former restaurant building next to the Admissions Center on Main Street. The Department of Communication and some art classes moved into the library space, including new television, graphic arts and photo studios. The Bourbonnais offices for the School of Graduate and Continuing Studies moved to 21 Heritage Drive, just north of the main campus.

In 2005, North Central Association granted ONU continued accreditation for the maximum of ten years without conditions. The academic departments were restructured into four Schools and one College: the College of Arts and Sciences, School of Education, School of Professional Studies, School of Theology and Christian Ministry, and School of Graduate and Continuing Studies.

The first two years of this new decade have, once again, brought many changes to the Olivet campus. During the summer of 2010, there was a major overhaul of the inner campus landscape and walkways, along with renovation of the Milby Clock Tower. Hills Hall was significantly upgraded, and the process of sprinkling system installation in residence halls continued. One of the most significant projects in the last century came to completion with the construction of the Betty and Kenneth Hawkins Centennial Chapel. The 3,000-plus seat chapel was dedicated on October 29, 2010. Since the spring of 2011, chapel services have been held there, allowing students, faculty and staff to worship together as one community.

Olivet's School of Graduate and Continuing Studies has experienced tremendous growth in recent years. In 2004, the School established a Chicago Regional Center in Rolling Meadows, Ill., and in 2011, a new office was opened in Oak Brook, Ill. Through a partnership with a university in that area, Olivet also offers a master's in professional counseling in Hong Kong.

For the past eight consecutive years, U.S. News and World Report has selected Olivet Nazarene University as a Top-Tier University-Master's in its report, "America's Best Colleges."

For eight consecutive years, the University has also been commended for the pursuit of excellence and ongoing Christian witness to the world by the Best Christian Workplaces Institute. Olivet Nazarene University qualified for certification as "A Best Christian Workplace" in the United States.

The new Student Life and Recreation Center was dedicated and opened to students at midnight on 12-12-12. This 160,000-square-foot facility boasts an eight-lane, 200-meter running track; two pools, including a 10-lane competition pool for men's and women's varsity swimming; a four-story rock climbing wall; four basketball courts; workout facilities; a large game area; a spacious central lounge; and several classrooms.
