Translations

Richard Strauss Texts

1. Nichts
You say I should name her,
My queen of the realm of song?
What fools you are,
I know her less than you!
You ask me the color of her eyes,
You ask me about the sound of her voice,
You ask about her walking, dancing, carriage,
Ah, what do I know of that!
Is not the sun the source
Of all life, of all light?
And what do we know of it,
I and you and everyone? Nothing, nothing!

2. Die Nacht
Night steps out of the woods,
And sneaks softly out of the trees,
Looks about in a wide circle,
Now beware.

All the lights of this earth,
All flowers, all colors
It extinguishes, and steals the sheaves
From the field.

It takes everything that is dear,
Takes the silver from the stream,
Takes away, from the cathedral's copper roof,
The gold.

The shrubs stand plundered,
Draw nearer, soul to soul;
Oh, I fear the night will also steal
You from me.
3. Zueignung
An, you know it, dear Soul,
That, far from you, I languish.
Love causes hearts to ache,
To you my thanks!
Once, drinking to freedom,
I raised the amethyst cup,
And you blessed the drink.-
To you my thanks!
You exorcised the evil spirits in it.
So that I, as never before,
Cleansed and freed, sank upon your breast.
To you my thanks!

Cäcilie
If you but knew what it is to dream
Of burning kisses, of wandering,
Of reposing with the lov’d one,
Of gazing into each other’s eyes, and caressing, and chatting.-
If you but knew it, you would let your heart consent!
If you but knew what it is to be afraid
Through the lonely nights, assailed by storms,
When no one soothes with gentle words the strife-weary soul,-
If you but knew it, you would come to me.
If you but knew what it is to live
Surrounded by the world-creating breath of divinity,
To soar upwards, raised and carried to sublime heights,-
If you but knew this, you would live with me.

Recitative and duet...“la ci darem la mano” from Don Giovanni

Don Giovanni: Now, we are wasting time, this very morning I’ll make you my wife.
Zerlina: You?
D: I for certain. Here in my little castle my previous treasure, we’ll live forever, there we will be married.
DUET:
D: Give me your hand my sweetheart, promise to be my wife, there we will share together in a bright and happy life.
Z: I would and then I waver, it may be tempting fate. My heart is in your favor, my reason tells me wait.
D: Darling you must not say so.
Z: I cannot leave Masetto.
D: My love is so much stronger!
Z: I can’t resist much longer!
D: Come my darling, give me your hand my sweetheart.
Z: I would, and then I waver...
D: Whisper a gentle yes.
Z: My heart somewhat trembles.
D: Come my darling with me.
Z: Oh, I cannot decide, soon I’ll resist no longer.
D: Come, come!
Z: I’ll come!
D: Let’s go, my darling, to restore the pangs of innocent love.

Marietta’s Lied from Die tote Stadt

Joy, that near to me remains, Come to me, my true love.
Night sinks into the grove. You are my light and day.
Anxiously beats heart on heart; Hope itself soars heavenward.

How true, a sad song. The song of true love that must die.
I know the song. I heart it often in younger, in better days.
It has yet another verse- Do I know it still?

Though sorrow becomes dark, Come to me, my true love.
Lean (to me) your pale face; Death will not separate us.
If you must leave me one day, Believe, there is an afterlife.

Music at Olivet Nazarene University

The Department of Music is housed in Larsen Fine Arts Center. The Fine Arts Center was occupied on September 23, 1982, and dedicated in February, 1983. It was built at a cost of $3.5 million. Substantial updates were made during summer, 2002. Included in the building are the 504-seat Kresge Auditorium, thirteen studios, instrumental and choral rehearsal rooms, an organ practice room, three class rooms, 12-station Clavinova® piano lab, 16 station computer lab, nineteen practice rooms, a student lounge, a reception/seminar room, a conference room, and the Department of Music and Department of Art offices. A collection of recordings and scores is housed on the 2nd floor of Benner Learning Resource Center.

The Fine Arts Center was named for the late Walter Burdick Larsen and his wife, Naomi. Dr. Larsen chaired the Department of Music from 1932 until his untimely death in 1957. Naomi R. Larsen spent her teaching career of forty years at Olivet and retired in 1975. Alumni the world over are thankful for this Christ-centered couple who challenged and inspired them to become involved with music. A dream of Dr. Larsen’s was realized in November, 1982, when Olivet Nazarene University became an associate member of the National Association of Schools of Music. In June, 1989, full membership was achieved.

Three Dance Episodes from Rodeo

Aaron Copland

Buckaroo Holiday

arr. Gerald Anderson

Saturday Night Waltz

Hoe-Down

Dr. Anderson, Dr. Ball – duo pianos

Aaron Copland was commissioned, along with choreographer Agnes de Mille, to write a new ballet for the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo for its 1942-43 season. The theme of the ballet was to be life in the American west. The resulting ballet, Rodeo, was first performed in October of 1942, at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. Copland then took four episodes from the ballet, and composed a suite for orchestra in 1943. From this work the composer arranged a setting of the suite for solo piano, completed in 1962. The form of the work for this performance was adapted for two pianos from the solo piano score in 2009. The second episode “Corral Nocturne” and second interlude “Ranch House Party” have been omitted from Copland's original.

Throughout the work, Copland uses the flavor of American folk songs and dances, infusing a sense of optimism and energy that portrays an image of America that is inspiring.

Come, Thou Fount of Every Blessing (NETTLETON)

arr. Gerald Anderson

How Firm a Foundation (FOUNDATION)

arr. Gerald Anderson

Dr. Anderson, piano

Both of the hymn settings presented in this program were commissioned by the Chicago Sunday Evening Club, and performed by Dr. Anderson on their television series “Thirty Good Minutes”, broadcast on WBBM Channel 11. They are both available in book and CD form as part of a collection entitled For the Beauty of the Earth, published by Lillenas.
“Come, Thou Fount” portrays a joyful spring of water in a dry land. A plain two-part invention opens the piece, but grows into a gushing torrent as the spring overflows. After the outpouring subsides, the dry invention returns. However, one can hear the glistening droplets of water with the last chord.

“How Firm a Foundation” proclaims confidence in God’s grace as we face the challenges of life. Some of these are sudden and unexpected, “deep waters”, “fiery trials”. We need not fear, for God uses these experiences “our gold to refine”. Other issues, “old age”, are more gradual, quieter, but lose their poignancy when we realize we are still “like lambs” to our God. Even during the most difficult part of the journey, we can exclaim with the hymn writer, “I’ll never, No Never, NO NEVER forsake.” Amen

Landscapes

Horizons

Waters

Wind Devil

Dr. Ball, Piano

Landscapes is a piano suite of tone poems based on the poetry of the composer. The music is intended to describe the images and ideas presented in the text. The pieces are through-composed and exhibit harmonies that are chromatic and at times dissonant. Keep the poems in mind as you listen to the music.

Horizons

The horizon, shrouded in mystery, so indiscernible, so very far away,

Human nature anointed, reaching, every striving for that distant mark,

Excitement born with each mile gained, the soul aflame with inspired thought.

When all becomes clear, that great distance breached, the eyes gazing upward see

The horizon, shrouded in mystery, ambiguity, so indiscernible, so very far away.
Waters

Bountiful waters, dancing in bubbling springs and gentle streams

Majestic rivers surging relentlessly as they flow to the sea.

The ocean’s tide a magnificent power, its swirling depths a shrouded mystery.

Oh bountiful waters, the substance of life, the power of death,

Oh paradox divine.

Wind Devil

Oh hear the wind, its hollow moan,

A swirling foe with mournful drone.

Frantic it whips the trees and grass, its whirling dervish a devil’s dance.

With fury it turns and turns about, then spins away with a shriek and a shout.

Souvenir de Mount Vernon- grande valse brillante, op. 29  G. F. Bristow

Dr. Anderson, piano

George Frederick Bristow (1825-1898) was an American composer at a time when the musical culture was dominated by European style, and American music was largely ignored in favor of higher quality music from abroad. Bristow was a violinist, member of the New York Philharmonic, serving as concertmaster of that orchestra from 1850-1853. Even with that connection, he was only able to get one of his overtures played by the orchestra. He wrote five symphonies, chamber music, and an opera based on the story of Rip Van Winkle.

The “Souvenir de Mount Vernon”, written in 1861, relies heavily on the European grand waltz model. Bristow was, no doubt, familiar with the waltzes of Chopin and other composers of the time. Students of harmony could note his dramatic use of the German augmented sixth chord at the conclusion of the piece, a textbook example. At the same time, Bristow refers to Mount Vernon, an important American icon, home of George Washington. This combination of an important American reference with a highly European genre and style reflects the dilemma of American composers in the mid-19th century. It is at this time that American music first began to find its voice.
Grand Galop Chromatique

Dr. Ball, piano

Grand Galop chromatique, written in 1838, is a whirlwind of notes, chromaticism, and galloping rhythms. A gallop (English spelling) is a very fast dance, with dancers in a circle trotting with small jumps to imitate a gallop. This was a very popular dance in Vienna during the first half of the nineteenth century. Liszt, a virtuosic pianist, would often close his programs with this piece to the delight of his audiences. With such jovial rhythms and light-heartedness, it is difficult to play the piece with a serious countenance. It is really quite comical. Liszt even includes a measure rest, possibly to give the pianist a much needed reprieve. To most pianists, it is an accomplishment to at least hit most of the notes.

Desperate Measures (Paganini Variations) op. 48

Dr. Anderson, piano

Niccolò Paganini was a larger than life musical personality of the 19th century. His violin virtuosity was legendary. As a composer, he is known primarily for his 24 Caprices for Solo Violin, which test the capability of both instrument and performer. His most famous caprice was the last, written in A minor, cast as a theme with 11 variations and finale. This piece was the subject of several major variation sets for piano, by Liszt, Brahms, and others. Rachmaninoff gave us the most best-known setting with his Variations for Piano and Orchestra.

Robert Muczynski was born in Chicago in 1929, and now resides in Tuscon, Arizona. He is one of the most acclaimed American composers of the post-World War II years, having written a variety of orchestral and chamber music, as well as music for piano. Desperate Measures, composed in 1996, brings an eclectic style to this traditional theme. Like Paganini’s model, the piece is written in A minor. The theme is followed by 12 variations. There is a distinct jazz influence throughout the work. Variation 8 is labeled “Tango”. The octatonic scale is heard in several passages, indicating an influence of modernism. Pungent cross-relations abound, but the tonality is never in doubt. Muczynski is evidently gleaning from the sounds of his youth, growing up in Chicago, in a culture mixing jazz, Hispanic influence, and modernist thinking. The result is a wonderful example of music that is aware of European style, but unabashedly American.
Be Still My Soul (SCHELGEL, SIBELIUS)
arr. Karen Ball

Joyful, Joyful, We Adore Thee (VAN DYKE, BEETHOVEN)
arr. Karen Ball

Dr. Ball, piano

Be Still My Soul and Joyful, Joyful, We Adore Thee are two beloved hymns of the church. The original settings of these hymns are quite contrasting in mood, a reflection of the versatility that can be achieved in arranging. Joyful, Joyful, along with nine other hymn settings, is published by Lillenus Publishing. The book and accompanying CD are entitled Fount of Every Blessing. Be Still My Soul is soon to be released on a new CD performed by Dr. Ball for the Olivet Presents Series.

Suite no. 2 for Two Pianos, Four Hands op. 17
Serge Rachmaninoff

Introduction

Romance

Tarantella

Dr. Anderson, Dr. Ball – duo pianos

Suite No. 2, Op. 17 for two pianos was composed in 1901 in Italy. It follows a long period of silence from the composer due to depression. After the failure of Rachmaninoff’s first symphony, he lost confidence in his writing ability. Composing at a time when composition was taking a course away from Romanticism into Neo-Classicism and Dodecaphonic Serialism, his music was thought to be irrelevant to the Twentieth Century, even though it remained popular with audiences world-wide. Creativity returned in 1901, and in November of that year, the premiere of this suite was played by the composer and his cousin, Alexander Siloti. The pieces manifest Rachmaninoff’s talent for harmonic color, lush and powerful sound, and rhythmic vitality. The formal structure of the piece is in traditional four movement form (three of which are being performed tonight) with each movement embracing a specific character: Introduction (Alla Marcia), Valse, Romance, and Tarantelle. Rachmaninoff’s works were rediscovered in the 1970’s, and many of his finest compositions have been resurrected.

Entrada for Trumpet in C and Piano

Mr. Wright, trumpet
Dr. Gerald Anderson, piano

Arthur Honegger

Honegger was born in a Swiss colony in Le Havre, France. To avoid the persecutions in most of Europe during his life, Honegger spent most of his adult life in Paris, joining the French Revolution, but not having much involvement with the Nazis. While other French composers scoffed at the new style of German romanticism brought about by Brahms and Mahler, Honegger embraced it.

This piece was originally written as an end-of-term exam at the Paris Conservatory for the trumpet studio. It was never intended to become a part of regular trumpet repertoire, but it has caught on as one of the most called for pieces for major Symphony Orchestra auditions. It is often called upon because it exploits the full range of the trumpet, from Low G to High C, and also the full gamut of tonal colors, articulations, and styles. It asks a lot of the performer, and is considered one of the more difficult pieces of the modern standard repertoire.

Wayne Shorter

Wayne Shorter was one of the most important jazz saxophonists of the 60s and 70s. Shorter won numerous Grammys, both as a band leader, and as a member of Art Blakely’s Jazz Messengers and Miles Davis’ quintet, where he replaced John Coltrane. Footprints was a tune that Shorter wrote while a member of Miles’ band. When asked about Shorter as a composer, Miles is quoted as saying "Wayne is a real composer. He writes scores, write the parts for everybody just as he wants them to sound... Wayne also brought in a kind of curiosity about working with musical rules. If they didn't work, then he broke them, but with musical sense; he understood that freedom in music was the ability to know the rules in order to bend them to your own satisfaction and taste."

The Hollow Men

Mr. Wright, trumpet
Members of the University Orchestra

Persichetti was born and raised in Philadelphia. His earliest influences included Bartok, Stravinsky, Hindemith, and Copeland. By age 20, he was professor of Theory and Composition at his Alma Mater, and studying conducting with Fritz Reiner, principal conductor of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

The Hollow Men was written to parallel the moods of T.S. Eliot’s poem of the same name. Mr Wright invites you to read along as he performs the piece.

I

We are the hollow men
We are the stuffed men
Leaning together
Headpiece filled with straw. Alas!
Our dried voices, when
We whisper together
Are quiet and meaningless
As wind in dry grass
Or rats’ feet over broken glass
In our dry cellar
Shape without form, shade without colour,
Paralysed force, gesture without motion;

Those who have crossed
With direct eyes, to death’s other Kingdom
Remember us—if at all—not as lost
Violent souls, but only
As the hollow men
The stuffed men.

II

Eyes I dare not meet in dreams
In death’s dream kingdom
These do not appear:
There, the eyes are
Sunlight on a broken column
There, is a tree swinging
And voices are
In the wind’s singing
More distant and more solemn
Than a fading star.
Let me be no nearer
In death’s dream kingdom
Let me also wear
Such deliberate disguises
Rat’s coat, crowskin, crossed staves
In a field
Behaving as the wind behaves
No nearer—
Not that final meeting
In the twilight kingdom

III
This is the dead land
This is cactus land
Here the stone images
Are raised, here they receive
The supplication of a dead man’s hand
Under the twinkle of a fading star.

Is it like this
In death’s other kingdom
Waking alone
At the hour when we are
Trembling with tenderness
Lips that would kiss
Form prayers to broken stone.

IV
The eyes are not here
There are no eyes here
In this valley of dying stars
In this hollow valley
This broken jaw of our lost kingdoms

In this last of meeting places
We grope together
And avoid speech
Gathered on this beach of the tumid river
Sightless, unless
The eyes reappear
As the perpetual star
Multifoliate rose
Of death’s twilight kingdom
The hope only
Of empty men.
Here we go round the prickly pear
Prickly pear prickly pear
Here we go round the prickly pear
At five o'clock in the morning.

Between the idea
And the reality
Between the motion
And the act
Falls the Shadow

For Thine is the Kingdom

Between the conception
And the creation
Between the emotion
And the response
Falls the Shadow

Life is very long

Between the desire
And the spasm
Between the potency
And the existence
Between the essence
And the descent
Falls the Shadow

For Thine is the Kingdom

For Thine is Life is
For Thine is the

This is the way the world ends
This is the way the world ends
This is the way the world ends
Not with a bang but a whimper.

Kurt Weill wrote this song for the 1943 Broadway Musical "A Touch of Venus". It was originally recorded vocally, with lyrics by Ogden Nash, and has been recorded vocally by dozens of famous singers, including Barbara Streisand and Sarah Vaughan. Over time, it has become a jazz standard for instrumentalists, as well, such as Bill Evans and Roy Hargrove.

Eric Ewazen was born and raised in Cleveland. He studied at both Julliard and the Eastman School of Music, earning many awards, competitions, prizes, and fellowships during his time. Ewazen studied under Milton Babbitt, Samuel Adler, and Joseph Schwantner. He has served on the faculty of Julliard for 30 years, now.

Ewazen’s Sonata finds itself somewhat removed from the typical American trumpet Sonata. While sonatas like those of Hindemith, Kennan, and Stevens find their modernity in complex changes in meter, odd harmonies, and angular melodic lines, Ewazen’s Sonata is more traditional in those senses. Throughout the first movement, the melodic lines are easy to follow, tonally solid, and rhythmically simple, without ever coming off as predictable or stale. There is a lyricism to the melodic lines which is absent from most modern music, and is certainly welcome. The second movement has some lines reminiscent of Celtic themes, and is more of a duet between Trumpet and Piano, rather than Trumpet solo with Piano accompaniment. The third movement introduces Ewazen’s take on the typical American ideas of a trumpet Sonata, with angular lines, rhythmic complexity, and a spectacularly exciting finish where both musicians push one another onward to an exciting conclusion.

Mr. Wright presents this recital in partial fulfillment of the requirement for the Bachelor of Music degree in Performance. He is the trumpet student of Prof. Brian Reichenbach.

MOZART

Mozart’s Concerto No. 2 for horn (which was actually the first completed horn concerto) was written for a close friend of his, Joseph Ignaz Leutgeb. Leutgeb was principal horn in Saltzburg where Mozart grew up, and many of the horn parts in Mozart’s early symphonies were written with Leutgeb in mind. Although they had a lighthearted friendship, Mozart must have thought very highly of his friend’s playing abilities as all four horn concertos demand a great deal from the player.

The concerto is written in the usual three movement format. The first movement contains broad melodies that suit the rich tone of the horn. It demands a great deal of breath control and great agility from the soloist. The second movement is a lyrical and sustained melody that moves between the orchestra and the soloist. The third and final movement is a lively rondo that places the horn in its most natural setting – the hunt.

KROL

Bernhard Krol is a German composer born in 1920. His works use the tonal system and many times look back to the styles of Paul Hindemith and Max Reger. As a horn player, his compositions are well suited to show the abilities and the great sound of the horn. Laudation, an unaccompanied horn solo, is a very expressive piece. The main theme is stated in the opening and is weaved throughout the piece between the contrasting sections. The piece creates tension as it builds to the climax but is quickly brought back to a quiet end.

HINDEMITH

German-born Paul Hindemith was a composer who began studying composition at the age of fourteen. His music is tonal, but non-diatonic, moves in and out of keys, and creates much dissonance which later resolves. Hindemith was one of the leaders in writing “music for use,” which is music that has specific musicians or a specific purpose in mind. His Sonata for Four Homs was written for the Salzburg hornists, who once greeted Hindemith early in the morning with a horn call. The first movement, Fugato, is written in a typical fugue fashion. It opens with a single horn and later adds each horn, building to a large climax and then resolving in an open fifth. The second movement has two themes, one new and one similar to the subject of the fugue. The themes are passed throughout each part, creating a dialogue between the players. The movement is dance-like and has many metric subtleties which make the movement flowing and expressive.
STRAUSS

Franz Strauss, father of Richard Strauss and son to Johann Strauss, was an accomplished composer and musician. He was most well-known for his talent of playing horn (he is considered one of the greatest hornists of his time) and the pieces he wrote for the horn. Because of his knowledge of the instrument, his horn solos demonstrate many capabilities of the instrument and provide a challenge for the performer, as the pieces are often quite demanding. This theme and variation piece is no exception, as it insists on a great deal of technique.

ORPHEUS CHOIR

Orpheus Choir, now in its eighth decade of annual performances, represents Olivet in concerts on the university’s educational region (Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin), and has sung at many general assemblies of the Church of the Nazarene.

The choir was founded by Prof. Walter B. Larsen in 1932. Prof. Naomi Larsen, led the choir after her husband’s passing in 1957, conducting until 1972. Dr. D. George Dunbar served as conductor of Orpheus from 1972 until retiring in 1999. Appointed conductor of Orpheus Choir in 1999, Dr. Jeff Bell serves as Professor of Music at Olivet, where he earned an undergraduate degree in Music Education in 1981. He also earned the M.Mus. degree from the University of Illinois in 1983, and the Doctor of Arts degree from Ball State University in 1996.

Orpheus Choir has appeared in concerts across the nation, as well as Canada, Mexico, and Israel. It has performed twice at the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C., and three times at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado. Orpheus Choir was selected to sing at two national Music Educators National Conference conventions in California, and has sung at the Illinois Music Education Association convention. The choir also represented Olivet at the annual Praise Gathering in Indianapolis from 1978 to 2005.

The repertoire of this select group of singers includes anthems, hymns, spirituals, and contemporary compositions, representing different styles and periods of choral music.

Dei Pezzi caratteristici
These are two of six songs that share the same text, and, together with a piano Prelude, make up the Musique anodine (Soothing Music). Rossini catalogued this work for his wife after she had cared for him during his long illness. The Musique anodine marks his return to active composing after his extended physical and psychological maladies.

Translation:
In silence I will complain about my bitter fate. But not to love you, dear; do not hope to obtain that from me. Cruel one, why do you still let me suffer like this? You are cruel! Do not wish it upon me.

Quoniam tu solus sanctus
Rossini scored his Petite Messe Solenelle (Small Solemn Mass) for two pianos, a harmonium, and a twelve voice SATB choir made up of the four soloists and two more of each voice part. The Quoniam tu solus sanctus (For You alone are holy) from the Gloria features some of Rossini's more operatic writing for this mass.

Translation:
For You alone are holy. You alone are God. You alone are the most high, Jesus Christ.

Largo al factotum
In the morning, Figaro boasts about his fame throughout the city as the “Barber of Seville.”

Translation:
Make way for the factotum of the city, hurrying to his shop, since dawn is already here. Ah, what a fine life, what a pleasure for a barber of quality! Ah, bravo Figaro! Bravo, bravissimo! A most fortunate man indeed! Ready to do anything, night and day, always on the move. A greater reward for a barber, a more noble life, is not to be had. Razors and combs, lancets and scissors, at my command, everything's there. Here are the tools of my trade...with the ladies...with the gentlemen...Everyone asks for me; everyone wants me: Ladies, young lads, old men, young girls. Here a wig...the beard is ready...Here the leeches...The love note is ready, etc. Hey! Figaro! Figaro! Figaro!, etc. Ah me, what frenzy! Ah me, what a crowd! One at a time, for pity’s sake! Hey, Figaro! Here I am. Figaro here, Figaro there, Figaro up, Figaro down. Swifter and swifter, I'm like a lightning bolt: I'm the factotum of the city. Ah, bravo Figaro! Bravo, bravissimo! You'll never lack for luck!

Masks by Dana Wilson
The title for this piece came from the varied personalities that mutes allow the trumpet to explore. Mutes are similar to masks both in how they're put on the trumpet physically and in how they alter the instrument's identity and character. Human masks are used in many cultures for just this reason, often conjuring the persona of specific gods. Though in the Christian tradition the role of masks has been largely relegated to the Hallowed Eve (commonly celebrated in the United States as the secular ritual known as Halloween) masks are importance vehicles for self-expression. The very word "person" derives from "persona" which is Latin for an actor's face mask (literally "to sound through"). the psychological masks to express who they are in different settings.

So this piece, Masks, is an exploration of three extremely different trumpet personas, each movement drawing upon different mutes and ways of approaching the trumpet. Masks was awarded the 2001 International Trumpet Guild Composition Prize.

Lieben, hassen, hoffen, zagen

During the play within a play, Harlequin tries to cheer up Ariadne after she has been abandoned by her beloved Theseus.

Translation:
Love, hatred, hope, fear, every joy and every pain, all these can the heart endure once, indeed many times over. But not to feel joy, nor sadness, even pain itself being dead: this is fatal to your heart; this you must not do to me! You must lift yourself from darkness, were it only for new pain! You must live, for life is lovely. You must live again once more.

Sei still mein Herz (Be still my heart)

Translation
1. I once harbored hope deep in my breast which, trusting, unlocked to her; my eyes were radiant with joie de vivre while her magic encircled me. But, when I harkened to her beguiling voice, the echo died away in the storm. Be still, my heart, and give it no thought: This now is reality, the rest was delusion.
2. Earth lay before me in a spring dream suffused with warmth and light, and, drunk with joy, I wafted through space. Blossoms burst forth from my breast;
love's springtime awakened in me. Now frost shudders through me; in my soul it is night. Be still, my heart, and give it no thought: This now is reality, the rest was delusion.
3. Out of sunshine and flowers I built myself a bridge through life passing over which, laurel-crowned, I devoted myself to the noblest of strivings. Man's gratitude was my finest reward; the crowd laughs aloud now with impudent scorn. Be still, my heart, and give it no thought: This now is reality, the rest was delusion.

Zwiegesang (Duet)

Translation
1. In a lilac bush sat a little bird in the quiet, lovely May night. Below in the high grass sat a girl in the quiet, lovely May night. The girl sang: if only the bird would be quiet. The bird sang: if only the girl would listen. And far and away their duet rang the length of the moonlit valley.
2. What was the bird singing in the branches throughout that quiet, lovely May night? And what, too, was the young girl singing throughout that quiet, lovely May night? Of spring sunshine sang the little bird, of love's delight sang the young girl. How that song pierced my heart; I shall never forget my whole life long.
Sehnsucht (Longing)

Translation
1. I look in my heart and I look at the world till out of my burning eyes a tear falls. Though the distance glows with golden light, the north wind tells me I shall not reach it. Ah! How narrow our confines, how wide the world, and how fleeting is time!
2. I know a land where in sun-filled greenery grapes gleam among sunken temples, where the purple wave covers the shore with foam and laurels dream of singers to come. It lures from afar and beckons my longing soul, and I cannot go there!
3. If I had wings to fly through the blue, how I would wish to bathe in sun’s fragrance! But in vain! Hour flees upon hour; pass your youth in mourning, bury your song. Ah! How narrow our confines, how wide the world, and how fleeting is time!

Vocalise-Pedrell
Uruguayan composer and educator, Carlos Pedrell (1878-1941), studied in Spain before going on to teach in both Paris and Argentina. His output includes operas and ballets but is particularly remembered for his music for classical guitar.

Vocalise-J. Canteloube
Marie-Joseph Canteloube de Malaret (1879-1957) was a French composer, musicologist, and author best known for his collections of orchestrated folksongs from the Auvergne region.

A la “Santé” (To “Health”)

Translation
As you pass the hours, as a funeral passes, you will mourn the hour when you cry, which will pass too quickly, as you pass all the hours.

Clotilde (Ending)

Translation
The anemone and columbine grow in gardens where gloom has slept between love and disdain. Our shadows meet there, too, which the night will dissipate until the sun sinks to disappear with them. The gods of living water cast down their long hair; you must pass to continue to follow the shadows you desire.

Automne (Autumn)

Translation
In the fog will knock a peasant and his bull, in the autumn fog that hides the poor and shamed hamlets. And the peasant will go singing a song of love and infidelity, speaking of a ring and a broken heart. Oh, Autumn! Autumn has been killed by Summer! In the fog go two gray silhouettes.

Saltimbanques (Acrobats)

Translation
In the plain are the strollers walking the length of the gardens before the doors of gray inns, for villages without churches. And the children go on ahead, the others follow dreaming. Each fruit tree resigns itself when they signal from afar.
They carry loads, round and square drums with golden hoops. The bears and sage monkeys collect fare on their passage.

L'Adieu (A Farewell)

Translation

I've gathered this sprig of heather. Autumn is dead, you must remember. On earth we will see no longer see each other. Fragrance of time, sprig of heather, remember I wait for you forever.

Les Cloches (The Bells)

Translation

My beautiful gypsy, my love, hear the bells on high. We loved each other passionately believing none could see us. But we were so poorly hidden; all the bells round saw us from their towers and told the world: tomorrow Cyprien, Henry, Marie, Ursula, Catherine, the baker and her husband, and Gerturde, my cousin. They'll smile when I pass; I won't know what to do with myself. You'll be far away from my cries. Perhaps I'll die.

Ô vin, dissipe la tristesse

In Act II, Hamlet sings a song about wine before introducing the mime play reenacting his father's murder before his father's murderer, King Claudius.

Translation:

Oh wine, dispel the sadness which lies heavy upon my heart! Give to me the dreams of intoxication and mocking laughter! O enchanting liqueur, pour drunkenness and forgetfulness into my heart! Sweet liqueur! O enchanting liqueur, pour drunkenness and forgetfulness into my heart! Life is somber; years are short. Of our good days God knows the number. Each person, alas! Carries here his heavy chain—Cruel duties, long despairs of the human soul! Away from us, black omens! Ah!

Calls and Echoes by Verne Reynolds

Calls and Echoes was written in 1984 for Charles Geyer and Barbara Butler (current trumpet professors at Northwestern University) by Reynolds, the horn professor at Eastman(1959-1995). The title refers to an early function of brass instruments when forerunners of the modern trumpet were used as signaling devices for the hunt or the military. Some of the calls in this work are fast and have immediate echoes while others are slow with correspondingly delayed responses. The use of mutes in this work is very similar to that of the Masks piece—they modify the perceived sound of the trumpet. A "whispa" mute is used to create the effect of a distanced sound on stage, heard as if the performer were outside of the hall. Through his harmonically organized chaos, elaborate rhythms, and color painting, Reynolds has created one of the most noteworthy brass duets of the 20th century.

There was a knight, once

From Mark Adamo's 1998 Houston Grand Opera commission, this is John Brooke's aria. Brooke uses Miss Meg March's game of storytelling to reveal his affection for her.

Program Notes

Songs of Sorrow
Roger Quilter (1877-1953) was a prominent English composer of vocal music. Songs of Sorrow uses four poems by Ernest Dowson (1867-1900).

Allerseelen (All Souls Day)
Translation

Place on the table the fragrant mignonettes
Bring here the last of the red asters,
And let us speak again of love,
As long ago in May.
Give me the hand that I may secretly clasp it,
And if it is observed by others, I will not mind;
Give me one of your sweet glances,
As long ago in May.
Today each grave is flowering and fragrant,
Once a year is All Souls’ Day,
Come to my heart that I again may have you,
As long ago in May

Liebst du um Schonheit (If You Love for Beauty)
Translation

If you love for beauty, the do not love me!
Love the sun, with its golden hair!
If you love for youth, then do not love me!
Love the spring, which is young every year!
If you love for treasure, then do not love me!
Love the mermaid, who has many shining pearls!
If you love for love, oh then love me!
Love me always, as I will always love you!

Immer leiser wird mein Schlummer
Translation

My slumber grows ever more peaceful; and only like a thin veil now does my anxiety lie trembling upon me. Often in my dreams I hear you calling outside my door; no one is awake to let you in, and I wake up and weep bitterly. Yes, I will have to die; another will you kiss, when I am pale and cold. Before the May breezes blow, before the thrush sings in the forest: if you wish to see me once more, come, o come soon!
Ich liebe dich
Ich liebe dich was written in 1795 by Ludwig Van Beethoven (1770-1827).
Translation
I love you as you love me, in the evening and the morning, nor was there a day when you and I did not share our troubles. And when we shared them they became easier to bear; you comforted me in my distress, and I wept in your laments.
Therefore, may God's blessing be upon you, You, my life's joy. God protect you, keep you for me, and protect and keep us both.

Ein Jüngling liebt ein Madchen
This song is one selection out of Robert Schumann’s song cycle Dichterliebe (Poet’s Love). The cycle was composed in 1840 using the poetry of Heinrich Heine.
Translation
A youth loved a maiden who chose another: the other loved another girl, and married her. The maiden married, from spite, the first and best man that she met:
the youth was sickened at it. It's the old story, and it's always new: and the one whom she turns aside, she breaks his heart in two.

An die Musik
This song was composed by Franz Schubert in 1817 with text by Franz von Schober.
Translation
Oh lovely Art, in how many grey hours, when life's fierce orbit ensnared me, have you kindled my heart to warm love, carried me away into a better world!
How often has a sigh escaping from your harp, a sweet, sacred chord of yours opened up for me the heaven of better times, oh lovely Art, for that I thank you!

Smanie Implacabili (From Cosi fan tutte)
Translation
Ah move away!
Fear the sad effect of a desperate affection!
Shut those windows, I hate the light, I hate the air that I breathe.
I hate myself!
Who mocks my pain, who will console me?
Oh leave for pity’s sake, leave, leave me alone.
Implacable restlessness, that disturbs me
Inside this soul, doesn’t cease, until it makes me die.
A miserable example of fateful love
I will give to the furies, if I live, with the horrible sound of my sighs.

Come Raggio di sol
Translation
As a ray of peaceful sunshine gleams on the tranquil wave, while deep in the sea's bosom the tempest lies hidden: so it may happen that a smile of contentment blooms upon the lips, while the heart is writhing in secret anguish.
La Pesca
Translation
Already night is approaching, come o Nice, my beloved, from the calm seascape let us breathe the fresh zephyrs. No one can say that he is loved unless he stands on these sands now that a slow little breeze gently ripples the sea.

Lydia
This song was composed by Gabriel Faure (1845-1924) in 1870 to poetry by Charles-Marie-Rene Leconte de Lisel.
Translation
Lydia, on your rosy cheeks, And on your neck, so fresh and white, Flow sparkingly The fluid golden tresses which you loosen. This shining day is the best of all; Let us forget the eternal grave, Let your kisses, your kisses of a dove, Sing on your blossoming lips. A hidden lily spreads unceasingly A divine fragrance on your breast; Numberless delights Emanate from you, young goddess, I love you and die, oh my love; Kisses have carried away my soul! Oh Lydia, give me back life, That I may die, forever die!

Plaisir d’amour
Plaisir d’amour was composed in 1784 by Johann-Paul Martini (1741-1816), a German native who spent most of his career in France, becoming quite well known for his operas.
Translation
The pleasure of love lasts only a moment, the pain of love lasts a lifetime. I gave up everything for ungrateful Sylvia, she is leaving me for another lover. "As long as this water will run gently towards this brook which borders the meadow, I will love you," Sylvia told me repeatedly. The water still runs, but she has changed.

Le Charme
Translation
When your smile surprised me, I felt a shudder through my entire being, But what tamed my spirit, At first I did not recognize. When your glance fell on me, I felt my soul melt, but what that emotion was, at first I could not answer it. What conquered me forever, that was a charm more sad, and I did not know that I loved you, Until I saw your first tear.

Arriette
Translation
Were I sunshine, I should come, pretty maiden. Were I sunshine flashing bright from the skies, should pour the light of my fire, sweet maiden, in thy pretty eyes. Were I Zephyrus, I’d blow thr’ thy tresses, thro’ the tresses soft of thy golden hair. I should play in them with wanton caresses, no for rivals care! Were I perfume sweet, and thy smile malicious. Were I perfume sweet, yet I should impress on thy dimpled cheek, or thy lips delicious, a delicious kiss! Could I be a voice, humble or imperious, ever shall I come, ceaseless, undeterred, whispering in thine ear many a mysterious and amorous word. And if I were love, I’d dwell in thy spirit, and if I were Love thy heart I should claim. I would breath my name; at eve thou shouldst hear it, my all-conquering name!
Ah pieta, signori miei

This aria is from Mozart’s opera Don Giovanni. The story of the opera is about the corrupt, womanizing Don, and his eventual downfall. This aria is sung by his servant Leporello, the comic relief of the opera who is always left cleaning up after all of Don Giovanni’s messes.

Translation

Ah, be not so hard upon me, give me leave, good friends, to speak! Wrongs like yours surely had undone me. But, believe me, I am not he you seek. I will tell you how my master, did from bad to worse descend. Donna Elvira, do you tell them, By what arts he gains his end; As for thee, I’ve not a notion what befell thee; as this lady here can tell thee, for I met her, with him philand’ring, well I knew how all would end; and to your lordship, I will admit it, I’ve acted wrongly, not as befitted... I know I’ve trespas’ed, I ask your pardon, lost in the darkness, I entered the garden, Not thought t’offend. ‘Twas a blunder; greatly I wonder, how all was known! Masters, I would now with speed be gone.

Son lo spirito che nega

This aria is from the opera Mefistofele by Arrigo Boito. It is based on Goethe’s Faust. This aria is sung by Mefistofele (the Devil).

Translation

I am the Spirit that eternally denies everything: the star, the flower. My mocking laughter and my quarrelling, disturb the Creator’s rest. I seek Annihilation and Creation’s universal ruin, vital, my breath of life is that which is called sin, Death and Evil. "No!" I laugh and I hurl this word: "No!" "No!" I devour, I tempt, I roar, I hiss: "No!" I gnaw, I stir things up, I devour, I tempt, I roar, I hiss: "No!" Eh! I whistle mockingly! I whistle! I whistle! Hey! I am part of a lurking-place of the great Ill-in-all: Shadow. I am a son of the Darkness that to Darkness will return. If for now the light usurps and seizes my scepter in rebellion, soon will come its battle over the Sun and over the Earth, is Destruction!

In the Baroque era, the first works called "oratorios" were religious operas, complete with costumes and staging. By Handel's time, the scenery, costumes, and actions had been abandoned but the idea of drama was retained. Each soloist represented a specific character. Like opera, an oratorio was a work of considerable scope, requiring two or more hours to perform. It featured an accompanying orchestra and a chorus in addition to the soloists.

During the 1740's and 1750's there flowed from Handel's pen a remarkable series of oratorios - Messiah, Samson, Semele, Joseph and his Brethren, Hercules, Belshazzar, Judas Maccabaeus, Joshua, Susanna, Solomon, Jeptha - over twenty-five in all.

In spite of Handel's earlier successes with staging Italian Grand opera in England, by the 1740s this style was out of vogue. In 1741, Handel poured most of his money into the revival of his two Italian operas, Imeneo, and Deidamia, and had met with failure. Rather than brood his time away, Handel set about writing the oratorio Messiah, working on it with consuming intensity. He must have labored constantly, and it is known that he paid little attention to the food his servant left at his door. After the completion of the "Hallelujah Chorus" a servant found him with tears in his eyes exclaiming, "I did think I saw Heaven before me, and the great God himself!"

Handel accepted an invitation to give a series of benefit concerts in Dublin, Ireland. He thought the change from London to Dublin might do him some good as well as revitalize his finances. Also, he was a philanthropist who was sensitive to needy causes. The Dublin benefit was for the Society for Relieving Prisoners, The Charitable Infirmary and Mercer's Hospital. By the end of 1741, Handel had traveled to Dublin and led a series of concerts. He kept Messiah "up his sleeve" until March of 1742. An open rehearsal of the work a month before its premier helped stimulate public interest so that hundreds of people had to be turned away from the first performance on April 13. An extract from the Dublin news-letter April 10 (1742) concerning this public rehearsal reads:

"Yesterday Morning, at The Musick hall there was a public Rehearsal of the Messiah, Mr. Handel's new sacred Oratorio, which in the opinion of the best judges, far surpasses anything of that Nature, which has been performed in this or any other Kingdom. The Elegant Entertainment was conducted in the most regular Manner, and to the entire satisfaction of the most crowed and polite assembly."

Only 700 people squeezed into the hall for the first performance even though advertisements asked the ladies not to wear hoops that made their dresses billow out and then men to leave their swords at home. The performance was a tremendous success.

The Dublin Journal of April 17 contained this report:

"On Tuesday last Mr. Handel’s Sacred Grand Oratorio, the MESSIAH, was performed at the New Musick-Hall in Fishamble-street; The best Judges allowed it to be the most finished piece of Musick. Words are wanting to express the exquisite Delight it afforded to the admiring crowded Audience. The Sublime, the Grand, and the Tender, adapted to the most elevated, majestic, and moving Words, conspired to transport and charm the ravished Heart and Ear."

The oratorio Messiah differs from other oratorios chiefly in that its text is entirely scriptural and it has no part for a narrator, who through singing describes the events of a story. Further, certain of Handel’s oratorios are mythological (as in Semele) while others are allegorical (as in Alexander’s Feast). Messiah is a contemplation on the Christian faith, starting with a section on prophecy and Christ’s birth, followed by a vivid evocation of His suffering and death, and concluding with the triumph of the Resurrection and Redemption for all mankind. Like his other oratorios, Messiah was written to be performed in the concert hall during the Lenten season, during which time the performance of opera was forbidden.

The text, solely scripture, is drawn from seven Old Testament and five New Testament books. Although close to the original narrative, the text was rewritten in recitatives (sometimes prose, sometimes rhymed verse), arias and choruses. Strangely, there is some conjecture as to who arranged the Bible verses for the oratorio. It is known who sent the text to Handel, Charles Jennens, who is described by Dr. Samuel Johnson’s cutting tongue as “a pompous, conceited, wealthy fop who imagined himself to be a literary genius.” Despite this controversy, the masterly skill exhibited in the integration of text and music is unequivocally Handelian.

One well-known tradition has developed regarding Messiah. At the first performance in London on March 23, 1743, King George II was reportedly so awed by the “Hallelujah Chorus” that he rose and stood at his seat. In that era, when the monarch stood, everyone stood. So the King’s spontaneous action became a tradition that is often followed today.
Olivet Premier

An enthusiastic and appreciative crowd greeted the premier performance of Messiah by the College Oratorio Society at 10:30 a.m. on May 26, 1936. The performance in the Chapel of “Old Olivet” was conducted by Dr. Walter Burdick Larsen (Department Head). The featured soloists were Lois (Sutton) Walker, soprano; Naomi (Tripp) Larsen, contralto; H.H. Price, tenor; and Melvin Anderson, baritone.

Mrs. Lois Walker, a student of Walter and Naomi Larsen and soprano soloist in 1936, 1937, and 1939, relates some pertinent details of this first performance. Mrs. Walker noted how “excited” she was having been selected to sing five recitatives and arias. The soloists and chorus of some 140 members were accompanied on this occasion by two pianists—Mrs. Hertenstein and Mrs. Geraldine (Spangler) Hatton. Dr. Larsen conducted with “precision and enthusiasm.”

Reminiscences

Naomi Larsen relates an incident from an era when rules were “ultra strict” and the “10 p.m. rule” was unequivocally enforced. Convinced that a vibrant Spring evening was to be enjoyed, Naomi, her date and three couples embarked on the three mile square” - (a walk bordering the campus of Old Olivet and a nearby graveyard). The next day Olivet buzzed with the news of the recalcitrant behavior. The verdict- Naomi and her friends were suspended from campus for two days. The timing, ironically, was during Messiah rehearsals. Walter Larsen was beside himself on discovering that his accompanist Naomi was “grounded.” Fortunately, Dr. Larsen’s frustration at not having an accompanist was tempered by his own personal agenda- he proceeded to marry his accompanist the following summer!

Dr. Ray Moore, a sophomore and baritone soloist in 1939, remembers the trauma that surrounded the Easter performance of the Messiah that year. Dr. Larsen had insisted that all solos be sung by memory. Ray Moore with trepidation began the aria “The People That Walk in Darkness.” This frightened sophomore began well, and then took an unrehearsed turn. Dr. Larsen, exasperated, motioned to Ray to pick up the score. On seeing this cue all the other soloists unanimously breathed a sigh of relief!

Dr. Harlow Hopkins remembers an accident that turned into a blessing: “In December, 1961, the 25th anniversary of Olivet Messiah presentations, Mrs. Larsen fell and broke her arm a few days before the performances. It became evident that she could not conduct an entire performance without help. She turned to me—I was greatly honored! The result was that Mrs. Larsen conducted the majority of each performance but I conducted several choruses. It was the first time that anyone other than Dr. or Mrs. Larsen had conducted any portion of Messiah since tradition began in 1936.”
Conductors

Walter Burdick Larsen (March 12, 1908-June 14, 1957)-conductor 1936-1956

Dr. Larsen was raised in Minot, North Dakota, and received his first piano lessons from his mother. After graduating from the Western Conservatory of Music in Minot he studied at the MacPhail School, Minneapolis and at Bethany College, Lindborg, Kansas.

He received bachelor of music and master of music degrees from the American Conservatory, Chicago; a bachelor of science in music education, and honorary doctorate from Olivet Nazarene College and an advanced certificate in music education from the University of Illinois, Urbana.

Dr. Larsen had also studied with Mrs. Edward MacDowell, widow of the famed American composer, and with George Liebling, a pupil of Franz Liszt.

He joined Olivet's faculty in 1930, serving as chairman of the division of Fine Arts from 1940 to 1957. He taught principally choral music and music theory. He founded the Orpheus Choir in 1932 shaping it into a first rate ensemble. Orpheus Choir became the backbone of the College Oratorio Society which presented the Messiah. Dr. Larsen directed the Messiah for 21 years, most of these years in Kankakee where the production had become so popular that three performances were necessary to accommodate the crowds.

A man committed to the welfare of his community, Dr. Larsen served on the board of the Kankakee Civic Music Association, directed the Kankakee County Hymn festival and the Kankakee Centennial Chorus. In addition to membership in professional music organizations, Dr. Larsen was a guest conductor and judge at many high school music festivals and contests in the Midwest.

An active member of College Church, Dr. Larsen was an articulate communicator of the highest ideals in church music and worked tirelessly to model these ideals.

While still a sophomore in high school, Naomi's considerable keyboard skills attracted the attention of Olivet's music department. That year, 1926, she was appointed chapel pianist and ensemble accompanist. She subsequently graduated from Olivet with a Bachelor of Music in 1933.
Mrs. Larsen held two master of music degrees from the American Conservatory, one in voice and one in piano. She did additional study at Bethany Lutheran College, the University of Missouri (KC) and the University of Illinois. After teaching one year at Northwest Nazarene College, Mrs. Larsen joined the Olivet faculty in 1935 teaching piano and voice.

Mrs. Larsen was the contralto soloist in the first Messiah presentation at Olivet in 1936, and alternated roles as soloist and member of the chorus until 1957. That year she took over the baton of Orpheus Choir (of which she was a charter member), serving as its conductor until 1972. In addition, she conducted all Messiah performances during that period. Naomi noted that “conducting Messiah for me was utopia.” Moreover, the initial exposure of the Larsens to the massed choir presentations of Messiah while at Bethany College in 1934, served as a formative catalyst. She recollected that those performances had a great impact on them.

Joe Noble holds a bachelor’s degree from Luther College, Decorah, Iowa, and a master’s degree in Music from the University of Iowa. He has completed course work and comprehensive exams for a doctoral degree from the University of Iowa. Mr. Noble conducts public school workshops, festivals and Church choir retreats throughout the Midwest and East Coast regions. He conducted the Choral Union (massed choir), Viking Male Chorus, and taught voice, conducting, and music education courses in the Music Department at Olivet.

George Dunbar (conductor in 1984-1985)

A Canadian by birth, George Dunbar took undergraduate studies at Canadian Nazarene College completing his BA at Olivet Nazarene College. His academic program includes an MM in voice from the University of Illinois, Urbana, and a Doctor of Musical Arts in Church Music from 1970, from the University of Southern California.

Before joining the Olivet faculty in 1969, Dr. Dunbar taught for a period at Cascade College, Portland, Oregon. His distinguished career includes choral conducting clinics, the performance of Orpheus Choir at Gaither “Praise Gatherings,” MENC conventions and General Assemblies of the Church of the Nazarene. Over the years, Dr. Dunbar has inspired many through his direction of church choirs in Oregon, California, and Illinois. He retired from Olivet in 1999.

Harlow Hopkins graduated from Olivet Nazarene College in 1953. Dr. Walter B. Larsen hired him to teach the following year. He completed a Master's in Music Education at the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago. Military service intervened, during which time he played in the 7th Army Symphony, touring NATO countries. In 1956 he returned to teach at Olivet and began graduate work at Indiana University (Bloomington). The D. Mus. in Woodwind Literature and Performance was conferred in 1974.

He was chair of the Division of Fine Arts and the Department of Music from 1967 to his retirement in 1996. He conducted the Olivet Concert Band from 1957 to 1996, taught woodwind instruments, instrumental conducting and directed the Olivet symphony. Today he serves as Adjunct Professor of clarinet.

Dr. Hopkins' community activities have included serving as choir director at local churches and as an active Rotarian. His participation in the Kankakee Valley Symphony Orchestra began in 1968 as principal clarinetist, after which he became conductor until resigning to complete doctoral work. Returning to the orchestra as principal clarinetist in 1974, he continues in that capacity. Dr. Hopkins became a KVSOA Board member in 2000 and currently serves as board president.

The highest honor of his life came in 1995 when the former music building was named the Harlow E. Hopkins Alumni Center.

Dr. Jeff Bell has served as Professor of Music at Olivet Nazarene University since 1997, and he is the conductor of ONU’s Orpheus Choir. Other teaching responsibilities include Beginning Conducting, Voice Literature and Pedagogy, 20th Century American Popular Music, Senior Seminar, Choral Literature and Conducting, and the annual performances of Handel’s Messiah. in Bourbonnais, and he is a frequent adjudicator and clinician for choral and instrumental clinics and competitions. Dr. Bell performs in recitals, opera, and oratorio, and is a published composer and arranger. He and his wife, Carole (ONU '81), and daughters Christin and Katie Jo reside in Bradley, IL.

Dr. Neal W. Woodruff (ONU, '91) joined the Olivet faculty in 2000, serving as professor in the Department of Music. Dr. Woodruff is the conductor of the University Orchestra and Concert Singers. Other teaching responsibilities include applied voice/pedagogy (both classical and contemporary), opera/music theatre, applied conducting, and church music. Prior to his appointment at Olivet, Dr. Woodruff served on the faculties of Malone College (Canton, OH), Southern Nazarene University (Bethany, OK) and the Herscher (IL) school district. In addition he has maintained numerous full and part-time church positions in Illinois, Ohio, Oklahoma, and Texas, most recently at College Church of the Nazarene in Bourbonnais, IL.

Dr. Woodruff completed the Doctor of Musical Arts degree in conducting at the University of Oklahoma, where he was a student of Dennis Shrock and Alan Ross. Previous studies culminated in the M.M. in voice performance/pedagogy from Stephen F. Austin State University, and a B.A. in music education from Olivet. He has been a student of David Jones, Deborah Dalton, Jeannette LoVetri, and Terry Eder. He has also participated in master classes with Richard Miller, Fiora Contino, Paul Kiesgen, and John Keenan.

Dr. Woodruff currently serves as the Illinois Governor for the National Association of Teachers of Sings (NATS) and as Orchestra manager, and associate chorus master for the Sugar Creek Opera Festival. A former understudy soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Woodruff has performed under the baton of Sir Georg Solti, Margaret Hillis, Zubin Mehta, and James Levine. He maintains an active schedule as performer, clinician, and adjudicator. Recent performances include Handel’s Messiah, Beethoven’s Ninth Symphony, Verdi’s La Traviata, L’Elisir D’Amore by Donizetti, and Pagliacci by Leoncavallo.

Current and former students of Dr. Woodruff have performed leading roles with the Stephen Sondheim Center for the Performing Arts, Indianapolis Opera, Sugar Creek Symphony and Song, Crane River Theatre Company, and Concord.

Dr. Woodruff resides in Kankakee with his wife Shannon (Dunn, SNU '95) and children Ryan, and Kayelyn.

“Good evening and welcome to Centennial Chapel for the seventy-fifth annual presentation of Handel’s Messiah on the campus of Olivet Nazarene University. What a fitting way for the campus and community to join together in celebration of the Advent season. In addition to the University Orchestra and Choral Union, this evening’s presentation by the Olivet Music Department will feature a fine group of soloists and guest conductors. It is my prayer that the Lord will speak to each of us through these sacred texts and beautiful music.”

John C. Bowling
President

“A great college needs great traditions. The annual presentation of the Messiah at Christmas time is one of the Olivet traditions that students, faculty, and community people hold in high esteem. From time to time, the representatives of all of these groups in the choir have added a dimension of excitement and genuine praise to God which has enriched the life of this community. Audiences are struck with the sincerity and vigor with which the great choruses are sung. From time to time, the conductors are performing their roles far above their normal level of artistic ability. God has used Messiah at Olivet as a special instrument of unity in the community as well as praise at Christmas time.”

NIELSON & YOUNG, duo-pianists

Now in the 40th year of a musical collaboration that continues to take them around the world, duo-pianists STEPHEN NIELSON & OVID YOUNG are veterans of more than 3,600 concerts in a fascinating array of venues. Those performance sites have included Moscow's Tchaikovsky Hall and the Kremlin; Copenhagen's Tivoli Concert Hall; India's Chennai Academy of Music; Toronto's Roy Thompson Hall; Germany's Oberammergau Passionspiel Theatre; Bern, Switzerland's Konzerthaus; England's Coventry and Chester Cathedrals; Rome's Basilica of St. Paul's Outside-the-Wall; Dallas' Meyerson Symphony Center; Nashville's Grand Ol' Opry and the Schermerhorn Symphony Center; Jerusalem's Pavilion Concert Hall; Southern California's Crystal Cathedral; and a 1st-century Roman amphitheatre at Caesarea among numerous other stages such as television studios and ocean-going cruise ships!

Nielson & Young have been hosted for concerts at hundreds of America's churches and college campuses, appearing by themselves or with symphony orchestras. On the artistic staff of the famed International Church Music Festival in Europe with Sir David Willcocks since 1985, Ovid and Stephen have been active church music leaders in addition to having held appointments as university professors in California, Texas, Indiana and Illinois. Individually and jointly, they are widely-published composers of music for solo and multiple keyboards, choir and orchestra.

Stephen and Ovid's extensive discography includes numerous recordings from the classical repertoire as well as from the ever-expanding output of their signature hymntune arrangements, many of which settings are for two pianos with orchestra.

Currently residing in Dallas, TX, Stephen Nielson was a member of Olivet Nazarene University's music faculty 1971 – 1978. Ovid Young resides in Bourbonnais, was a past Conductor of the Kankakee Valley Symphony Orchestra 1974 – 1984 and presently serves as Artist-in-Residence at Olivet.

Nielson & Young are listed on the International Roster of Steinway artists.

Program Notes

Bassoon Sonata in F - William Yates Hurlstone (1876-1906) is one of the intriguing might-have-beens of musical history. Although very highly thought of in his time, he died before his talent could come to full maturity. He published his first compositions at the age of nine and gained a scholarship to the Royal College of Music at the age of eighteen. He became a brilliant pianist, had his works widely performed, and returned to his college as Professor of Counterpoint by the age of twenty-five. Sadly, he died five years later of bronchial asthma. The Bassoon Sonata in F Major was written two years before his death and is one of his few compositions in print.

Blue Skies – Blue Skies has become one of the many jazz standards by the legendary Irving Berlin. The song, written in 1926, gained immediate success. In 1927, Blue Skies was sung by Al Jolson in the film The Jazz Singer. Since that time, it has been performed countless times by many legendary singers such as Frank Sinatra, Mel Torme, and Bing Crosby. This arrangement for bassoon quartet is by Lennie Niehaus.

Pigs (A Present for Gordon Jacob) – Alan Ridout was born in England in 1934. He taught composition at the University of Birmingham (England), the Royal College of Music, the University of Cambridge, and the University of London. “Pigs” was an affectionate contribution to Gordon Jacob’s famous collection. He had pigs made of china, leather, wood – even marzipan, and always welcomed new additions.

The Five Sacred Trees – John Williams is best known for his many film scores, including Star Wars, the Indiana Jones movies, E. T., Harry Potter, and many, many others. The Five Sacred Trees was written as a result of a request for a concerto by the great bassoonist Judith Le Clair, the current principal bassoonist of the New York Philharmonic.

Because of the shape of the bassoon, it has long been associated with trees. The German word for bassoon, “faggot”, literally means a bundle of twigs, sticks, or branches bound together. The composer has given the following program notes for each movement.

I. Eó Mugna, the great oak, whose roots extend to Connla’s well in the “otherworld,” stands guard over what is the source of the River Shannon and the font of all wisdom. The well is probably the source of all music. The inspiration for this movement is the Irish Uilleann pipe, a distant ancestor of the bassoon, whose music evokes the spirit of Mugna and the sacred well.

II. Tortan is a tree that has been associated with witches and as a result, the fiddle appears, sawing away, as it is conjoined with the music of the bassoon. The Irish Bodhrán drum assists.
III. The Tree of Ross (or Eó Rossa) is a yew, and although the yew is often referred to as a symbol of death and destruction, the Tree of Ross is the subject of much rhapsodizing in the literature. It is referred to as “a mother’s good,” “Diadem of angels,” and “faggot of the sages.” Hence, the lyrical character of this movement, wherein the bassoon incants and is accompanied by the harp.

IV. Craeb Uisnig is an ash and has been described by Robert Graves as a source of strife. Thus, the ghostly battle, where all that is heard as the phantoms struggle, is the snapping of twigs on the forest floor.

V. Dathi, which purportedly exercised authority over the Poets, and was the last tree to fall, is the subject for the close of the piece. The bassoon soliloquizes as it ponders the secrets of the Trees.

Fripperies are short, light-hearted pieces, intended to give the quartet the opportunity to play in various styles. Each “frippery” has a unique character. #1 uses “swing” rhythms, #2 is a light piece in a “straight” rhythm, #3 is a syncopated waltz, and #4 is described by the composer as a “spooky” march.

Variations on a Theme of Robert Schumann is a light piece based on the tune The Happy Farmer. This short set of variations was written for bassoon or contrabassoon and includes three variations and a cadenza. It was written by William Davis, Professor Emeritus of Bassoon at the University of Georgia.

FAMIGLIA ARTIGIANA FRATELLI RUFFATTI (Ruffatti Brothers, Family of Artisans) of Padua, Italy — renowned firm of pipe organ builders — created the instrument. In their design, they considered the University's musical needs, as well as the architecture and acoustics of the Chapel. This firm has provided the world with the sweet sounds of Italian organs since 1940. Long respected throughout the United States and the world, their craftsmen are setting a new international standard of excellence among pipe organ builders.

MARSHALL & OGLETREE, a Massachusetts firm, created the organ's digital component. Two contemporary innovators, Douglas Marshall and David Ogletree, formed this partnership in 2000 to design and build digital organs. Their goal is to please even the most critical pipeless organ detractors. This firm is located in the Boston area, a region of unique richness in American pipe organ building history and innovation.

A Litany for Dedication of our Organ
Adapted from Psalm 150

Leader: For the gift of music and song
People: We praise you, O God, in your sanctuary!

Leader: For notes and rhythm and varieties of expression
People: We praise you, O God, in your mighty firmament!

Leader: For our ancestors in the faith, who invested in music for future generations
People: We praise you, O God, for your mighty deeds!

Leader: For all those who offer their musical gifts in this space
People: We praise you, O God, with trumpet sounds!

Leader: For the inspiration and joy that music brings to our worship
People: We praise you, O God, with tambourine and dance!

Leader: For those who with great artistry and expertise, brought our organ to this moment
People: We praise you, O God, with strings and pipes!

Leader: For those who invested in the beautiful space which houses this organ
People: We praise you, O God, with clanging cymbals, with loud clashing cymbals!

Leader: For music which will be produced through these pipes and keyboards for generations to come
People: We praise you, O God, with every breath that we take, with every song that we sing, with all that we are we praise you, O God.

A Prayer of Dedication

Eternal God, our praises join with the songs of heavenly choirs and the music of the universe. May this organ encourage our praise and lift our singing. May the music it produces bring our prayers to You in times of joy and times of sorrow.

Trusting in Jesus Christ, we dedicate this organ in Your name, O God,

Now and always.

Amen.
TIMOTHY NELSON is in his 35th year as professor of music at ONU. He holds the AAGO Certificate from the American Guild of Organists. A former dean of the Kankakee AGO chapter, Timothy has served as organist in several Kankakee-area churches, including College Church of the Nazarene. He was a student of Jerald Hamilton at the University of Illinois, later studying with Richard Enright and Wolfgang Rubsam at Northwestern University, the institution which awarded him the doctor of music degree. A versatile performer, Timothy is a respected recitalist and clinician throughout the Chicago region.

KATHERINE OUWENGA '90 is a registered nurse at Provena St. Mary's Hospital in Kankakee. Presently pursuing a masters of health administration degree at Governor's State University, Katherine studied organ at ONU with Timothy Nelson. Her current organist duties are at Manteno Church of the Nazarene. A member of the Salvation Army Advisory Council, she resides in Manteno with her husband, Richard. She is the mother of Erin Rogers (OUN '05), grandmother of Kate, and expectant grandmother of Samuel.

BARBARA SASS GRIFFIN '60 has been a church organist since 1956 when she was in high school. After graduating from ONU and earning a master's in music education from VanderCook College of Music, Barbara taught children in K-6 grades for 38 years, retiring from the Steger, Ill., School District in 1997. The most recent of her several church organist assignments was the Crete, Ill., United Methodist Church where she served for 25 years before her retirement in 2006. Married for 50 years to Ted Griffin (OUN music alumnus), Barbara speaks proudly of their two children and three grandchildren.

SUSAN DECKER CAUDILL '72 and her husband, Steve, were on staff for 13 years at Shadow Mountain Community Church with Dr. David Jeremiah in San Diego. Susan presided at a 4-manual, 117-rank hybrid pipe and electronic organ and also arranged for and directed a 40-piece orchestra and various singing ensembles. She now writes and performs while maintaining a new career in real estate with Steve. A former student of Ovid Young, she also studied on the West Coast with Ted Alan Worth and Richard Unfried. The Decker Quadrangle on Olivet’s campus is named for Susan’s father, Dr. Gerald Decker, longtime board member and supporter of ONU.

JEFF HENDRICKER ‘89, music education graduate of ONU, studied organ with Timothy Nelson. He was a member of Olivet’s Orpheus Choir and today brings all those experiences to his work as organist, worship coordinator and director of the Contemporary Choir at First United Methodist Church of Lincoln, Ill. During the school year, Jeff can also be found teaching a fifth grade general music class, directing a high school choir, rehearsing a school musical or working with band students in his hometown of Clinton, Ill.

DANIEL MAU ‘07 was an organ student of Timothy Nelson at Olivet. He is currently finishing the master of church music program at Concordia University, Wis., where he studies organ with James Freese. He has played at several churches of various worship traditions in the Kankakee area and currently serves as organist of Trinity Lutheran Church in Herscher, Ill.

EUGENE FOILES ’57 was an organ student of Kenneth Bade while a music major at ONU. He’s also a good singer and a facile pianist. He spent 30 years as a successful choral director, the last 23 of those in Xenia, Ohio, where he is now retired but continuing as the organist at Westminster Presbyterian Church.

MATHEW GERHARD ’08 graduated from ONU with a degree in church music, studying organ with Timothy Nelson. He also earned a master’s degree at California Baptist University in Riverside, studying choral conducting there with Dr. Gary Bonner and organ with Beverly Howard. He has served as organist-music director at First Baptist Church in Glendale, Calif., and, currently, at Zion United Methodist Church in Kokomo, Ind.

KAREN LARKINS YOUELL ‘67 completed a trifecta — and more — in her undergraduate days at ONU, graduating cum laude with a voice major plus minors in organ, piano and choral conducting. Studying organ at Olivet with Wanda Kranich, and later with Rodney Loren and David Schraeder, Karen holds three master’s degrees — organ, voice and choral conducting — from the Chicago College of Performing Arts of Roosevelt University. Her professional music experience has ranged from singing in the Chicago Lyric Opera Chorus to entertaining in Midwest supper clubs to serving as organist and/or choir director for several area churches. For several recent years, she served in the music ministries of St. Michael Catholic Church in Orland Park, Ill., and presently plays at St. Margaret Mary Church in Herscher, Ill.

RODNEY LOREN '85 was named Music Teacher of the Year by the Milwaukee, Wis., Civic Music Association in 2006. He spent the summer of 2010 as a Fulbright Scholar in Hungary and the Czech Republic. After graduating from Olivet with majors in music education and church music, he earned an M.M. in Organ from Indiana University and the Ph.D. in Music Education from the University of Illinois. He has served as a visiting lecturer on the U of I faculty, as the Arts in Education program director for the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra, and he currently teaches music to children in kindergarten through fifth grade at a Milwaukee area public school.

KENNETH BADE '49 studied with two organ teachers while a music major at Olivet: Dr. Ella Leona Gale and Irving Lauf. After he graduated from Olivet, he earned the master of music degree from the University of Illinois where his organ studies were with the eminent Bach scholar, Russell Hancock Miles. Ken was the first organist in the history of the School of Music selected to perform as soloist with the University of Illinois Symphony Orchestra. Following his teaching tenure at ONU, he served 37 years as the beloved organist and director of music at Asbury United Methodist Church in Kankakee, Ill.

JANE LAMPING HOLSTEIN '80 has served as editor with Hope Publishing Company for more than 15 years and was an integral part of the team that compiled that publisher’s new Worship and Rejoice hymnal. Busy as an arranger, choral clinician, organist, worship planner and concert artist, Jane studied organ at Olivet with Timothy Nelson and later received the doctor of music in organ performance from Northwestern University. In addition to her editorial duties at Hope, she is director of music ministries at First Presbyterian Church in River Forest, Ill. As a gifted concert organist, Jane has joined forces with Joel Raney for a series of duo-concerts featuring the piano and organ. Joel joins Jane this evening to perform one of their concert offerings.

JAMES E. MILLER ’70 studied organ with the late Wanda Kranich during his student days at Olivet. In his graduate studies at Southern Seminary in Louisville, Ky., his organ teacher was the noted organist, composer, author and pedagogue Dr. Donald P. Hustad. Longtime Olivetians may recall that Don Hustad served on ONU’s music faculty in the early 1950s. Jim Miller is president and CEO of the Miller Pipe Organ Company in Louisville, and continues to be active as a church musician.

OVID YOUNG ’62 studied organ at ONU with Kenneth Bade. He later studied with Robert Reuter at the Chicago College of Performing Arts at Roosevelt University. A widely-published composer of choral, orchestral and keyboard music, Ovid has concertized for 45 years in most of the major musical centers of the world — chiefly as half of the duo-piano team of Nielsen & Young — and, for 20 years, as pianist/arranger/conductor with the renowned operatic singers Hale & Wilder. Active both as pianist and organist, he is listed on the International Roster of Steinway Artists, and also has played hundreds of organs throughout the U.S. and abroad. In 1985, ONU conferred on Ovid the degree doctor of letters honoris causa, and in 2007 he returned to campus, appointed to the music faculty as artist-in-residence.
Betty and Kenneth Hawkins donated the stunning Ruffatti pipe organ in addition to their lead gift that made the construction of Centennial Chapel possible. Their gift for the organ was matched by a second anonymous gift used to create the organ chamber, chancel area and provide enhancements for the organ.

Ken is a graduate of Olivet, class of 1953. He is a retired businessman who for over 25 years rendered valuable service to his alma mater by directing and advising the University’s insurance program. Betty and Ken met following the death of their spouses. After their marriage, Betty was soon introduced to the Olivet family. From that first moment, she has been an enthusiastic supporter of the University.

A FEW INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT THIS ORGAN

- Each pipe was tuned and voiced individually.
- Tanned leather used in the bellows comes from a tiny village in southern Italy.
- Sipo mahogany wood used for the visible casework, windchests, reservoirs, supports and some pipes comes from Africa.
- All wooden pipes are assembled with tongue-and-groove, an elaborate technique that provides the utmost stability under any environmental condition.
- All reed stops are individually made.
- Trompette en chamade, the Ruffatti signature stop, has brass resonators that look like orchestral trumpets.
- Malaysian tin and 99.99% pure lead are used to make the metal organ pipes.
- Toe stud labels light when the toe studs are pressed.
- After manufacture and before shipping, this organ was completely assembled in the erecting room of the Ruffatti factory in Italy. Every part of the instrument was checked there.
“Education with a Christian Purpose.”
This statement is more than a motto; it is an expression of the mission of Olivet Nazarene University. Since its founding in 1907, Olivet has provided an educational experience that integrates faith, learning and living. This mission is expressed in the academic, social and spiritual life of the University.

The Betty and Kenneth Hawkins Centennial Chapel, home of the mighty Ruffatti organ, is one more expression of this missional legacy. Through the prayers and sacrificial support of Olivet alumni and friends, countless generations will be forever changed because of the events that will transpire within these walls.

Ah! Per sempre io ti perdei
Riccardo had been promised Elvira's hand in marriage by Lord Valton but, returning to Plymouth, he finds that she is in love with Arturo (a Royalist), and will marry him instead. He confides in Bruno.

Ubriaco non son io
Simone, a servant of the young officer Fracasso, is flirting with Giacinta's maid, Ninetta.
Translation: I am not drunk, no, no, just a little merry, but the ring is still mine, and I can demand it. Even if the wine speaks in me, that which is mine remains mine.

Voi, che Sapete
Although the character, Cherubino, who performs this piece in Mozart's opera Le Nozze di Figaro is a young man, the part is portrayed by a female. He sings with the emotion of a love-struck young man and is overcome by his own feelings.
Translation: You who know what love is, Ladies, see if I have it in my heart. I'll tell you what I'm feeling; it's new for me, and I understand nothing! I have a feeling, full of desire, which is by turns delightful and miserable. I freeze and then feel my soul go up in flames then in a moment I turn to ice. I'm searching for affection outside of myself. I don't know how to hold it, nor even what it is. I sigh and lament without wanting to, I twitter and tremble without knowing why, I find peace neither night nor day, but still I rather enjoy languishing this way. You who know what love is, Ladies; do I have it in my heart.

La Pastorella
Here German composer Franz Schubert writes in the Italian style and complements Carlo Goldini's poetic lyrics describing a lovelorn shepherdess. Schubert uses a mixture of supple harmonies and graceful ornamentation that make this song feel as if a native Italian composer had constructed it.
Translation: The little shepherdess goes happily through the meadow with a little lamb at her side singing in freedom. If innocent love were what her shepherd liked, the beautiful shepherdess would always be happy.

Le Charme
With a falling melody, Chausson (1855-1899) shows the singer literally falling in love as the song progresses. There is a sense, though, that the singer is resisting — the melody avoids falling down to the tonic note of the scale. Finally, the singer reaches resolution at t'aimais - "I loved you." The singer does not hold that tonic pitch, and the line continues to descend as the tear falls; even the final note in the piano does not reach a definitive resolution, with the final pitch played being the third, not the tonic—capturing both the beauty and hesitation of falling in love.
Translation: When your smile surprised me, I felt a shudder through my entire being, but what tamed my spirit at first I did not recognize. When your glance fell on me, I felt my soul melt, but what that emotion was, at first I could not answer. What conquered me forever, was a charm more sad; I did not know that I loved you until I saw your first tear.

Plaisir d'amour
Martini's (1741-1816) song, composed in 1780, took its libretto from a poem by Jean de Florian's romance, Célestine. The classical French composer Hector Berlioz arranged the piece for orchestra in 1859.
Translation: The pleasure of love lasts only a moment; the pain of love lasts a lifetime. I gave up everything for ungrateful Sylvio; he is leaving me for another lover. "As long as this water will run gently toward this brook which borders the meadow, I will love you," Sylvio told me repeatedly. The water still runs, but he has changed.
Spanisches Liederbuch I
Wolf was famous for his use of tonality to reinforce meaning. Concentrating on two tonal areas to musically depict ambiguity and conflict in the text became a benchmark of his style, resolving only when appropriate to the meaning of the song. His chosen texts were often full of anguish and inability to find resolve, which gave a wandering tonality, unable to return to the home key. He sought out texts that were not used by other composers of his time.

Nun wandert Maria
Translation: Ride onward, sweet Mary, ride onward, keep on, the roosters are crowing, we’re close to the town. Ride onward, beloved, where comfort waits; we’ll soon be arriving at Bethlehem’s gates. And there you may slumber safe and warm. The roosters are crowing, we’re nearing the town. See how you falter, so weak and weary! Nor can I ease your pain, dearest Mary. Take heart, for shelter awaits us now. The roosters are crowing, we’re nearing the town. Oh! That your time had arrived, little dear; good news that I’d give if it were done. The roosters are crowing... come, near is the town.

Auf dem grünen Balcon
Translation: From her balcony green my maiden peeps at me who waits below. With her eyes she coyly beckons, but her finger always says no. Luck so seldom aids young lovers when they seek a new adventure. I myself, I dared to venture, but here also doubts assail me. First she flatters, then she quarrels, when I pass beneath her window. Always, as one knows with maidens, they must mix their joy with woe. How, alas, can I endure it, all her coldness, all my fire, and her love my one desire! But, I fear, we’ll ne’er be mated. As a lover, I seem fated, for this cold and charming beauty, she has never once embraced me. She’s bewitched me. With her eyes she coyly beckons but her finger always says no!

In dem Schatten meiner Locken
Translation: In the shadow of my tresses, fast asleep my loved one lies. Shall I wake my love? Ah, no! With such care I comb my curling locks early in the morning, but in vain is all my trouble, by the wind they’re soon entangled. Carefully I comb my ruffled locks, early every day; yet for nothing is my trouble, for the wind makes them disheveled yet again. The shadows of my tresses, the whispering of the wind, have lulled my darling to sleep. I must listen to her complain that she pines for me so long, that life is given and taken away from her by this, my brown cheek, and she calls me a snake; yet he fell asleep by me. Shall I awaken my love? Ah, no!

Die Lotusblume
Taken from a poem written by Heinrich Heine, Robert Schumann composed this song as a part of his Myrthen collection. This collection is a compilation of 26 poems by various authors which encompass themes involving love and marriage. He dedicated this collection to his wife, Clara, on their wedding day.
Translation: The Lotus flower fears before the sun’s splendor, and with drooping head she dreamily awaits the night. The moon, he is her lover. He wakes her with his light and to him she happily unveils her devoted flower-face. She blooms and glows and shines and stares mute in the heavens. She exhales and weeps and trembles with love and love’s pain.

Lachen und Weinen
This piece is one of the six lied-settings of Friedrich Rückert poems that he composed while recuperating from the reoccurring illness that would later take his life. It focuses on a young girl’s discovery of her ever changing emotions. Schubert constructs this piece as a sympathetic response and writes the accompaniment as light-hearted and reassuring for her.
Translation: Laughter and tears at any hour rest on love in so many ways. In the morning I laugh for joy, and why I now weep in the evening glow, is something unknown to me. Tears and laughter at any hour rest on love in so many ways. In the evening I weep for sorrow: and why you can awake in the morning with laughter. I must ask you, o my heart!
Scarlatti's (1660-1725) music forms an important link between the early Baroque Italian vocal styles of the 17th Century, with their centers in Florence, Venice, and Rome, and the classical school of the 18th Century. This famous aria is from one of Scarlatti's early operas entitled L'honestà negli amori from 1680.

Translation: Already, from over the Ganges, the sun sparkles more brightly and dries every drop of the dawn, which weeps. With the gilded ray it adorns each blade of grass; and the stars of the sky it paints in the field.

Che fiero costume

Legrenzi's (1626-1690) song is an intense piece. The pianist plays a chord and the singer comes right in, ranting about Cupid, and how he has a tendency to make us humans fall in love with the wrong people. The singer knows that the person she longs for mistreats her, yet she can't help but have amorous feelings. The text is relentless, in constant eighth or sixteenth notes, with the exception of a few sustained cries of frustration on half notes.

Translation: How cruel are the ways of that pitiless god, to make us worship him by making us suffer! The treacherous deity compels me in my passion to idolize a pleasing appearance. O evil fate, that a sightless infant, his mouth still full of milk, can command my respect. Yet this barbarous tyrant has entered through my eyes to bring me grief.

Épouse quelque brave fille

Des Grieux has entered the seminary of Saint-sulpice. His father, Le Compte, tries to dissuade his son from this new life, in order to preserve the family name.

Translation: What big words those are! What path have you then been following, and what do you know, about life to think that it ends there? Marry some fine girl, worthy of us, worthy of you; Become a family man, no worse nor better than me. Heaven does not want more; that is your duty, do you understand? Virtue that makes a lot of noise is not virtue!

Bergère Légeré

Translation: Capricious, delicious, adored shepherd maid, You're charming, yet harming my heart and I'm afraid. In your face rebelling, you seem both false and true; Though you're oft repelling, I'll ever pursue. When you quote so boldly, the laws of cupid's court, I must here you coldly, your love's only sport.

Je La Vis S'arreter

Translation: When yesterday we met, her words and glances faltered; In silence I, too, stood before her. O, Heavens! How her looks had changed through the years. Her eyes lost their fire and her beauty was quickly fading. I wanted to break the spell of silence, speaking and saying: 'twas heaven checked my words! Then quickly she drew her hand away and made her last endeavor saying, Good bye! She then whispered, till our next meeting. Oh, how I wanted to say this is our one, last greeting farewell, "poor soul, even though she was dear to me as ever".

Le Lever de la Lune

Although this song is not taken from an opera, its composition has the same feel of an aria. Its flowing melodic line and dramatic textual content make it comparable to any true aria.

Translation: Like a beautiful young woman, Silent and solitary, the moon rises mysteriously from flanks of silver cloud. Sweet daughter of heaven, with slow and silent step you glide through the air where shines your crown, and your passing is surrounded by the splendid cortege of the suns of the night. What do you do when you are far away from us, when the dawn fades your charming smile and your soft light from our eyes, our saddened eyes? Do you, like Ossian, plaintively keen the bury your languishing beauty in the refuge of pain? Sweet daughter of heaven, do you know sorrow? Now do you dream of its light? Your sumptuous chariot rolls above the mountains. If you can, slow its journey and pour your peaceful rays over the sea.
Mon coeur s’ouvre à ta voix

From Saint-Saens’ opera Samson et Dalila, the emotional and provocative piece is performed by Dalila as she sings to Samson about her need for his love. The beautiful accompaniment complements the passionate architecture that the singer produces. As the song progresses, it evokes deep emotions within the listener as Dalila sings to her beloved.

Translation: My heart opens to your voice like the flowers open to the kisses of the dawn! But, oh my beloved, to better dry my tears, let your voice speak again! Tell me that you are returning to Delilah forever! Repeat to my tenderness the promises of old times, those promises that I loved! Ah! Respond to my tenderness! Fill me with ecstasy! Like one sees the blades of wheat that wave in the light wind, so trembles my heart, ready to be consoled, by your voice that is so dear to me! The arrow is less rapid in bringing death, than is your lover to fly into your arms! Ah! Respond to my tenderness Samson, Samson. I love you!

Wie Melodien

Composed in 1886, this piece by German composer Johannes Brahms (1833-1897) features an evocative setting of Klaus Groth’s poem in which melodies bloom like flowers and words fade like the mist above arpeggiated figures. The song has a soaring, lengthy melodic line, typical of Brahms, which unfolds in three varied verses.

Translation: Just like a melody to draw me so gently through my mind as flowers in the Springtime, as fragrance floating by. But when imprisoned in the poem that rests before my eyes, to misty gray it fades like vapor from my breath. And still, aroma from my verses will linger in the buds, then softly come unbound all mysteries before my eyes to unfold.

Wiegenlied

Brahms’s Lullaby or Cradle Song is the common name for a number of children’s lullabies with similar lyrics and the same melody, the original of which was Johannes Brahms’ Wiegenlied: Guten Abend, gute Nacht (“Good evening, good night”), Op. 49, No. 4 (published in 1868). The first verse is taken from a collection of German folk poems called Des Knaben Wunderhorn; the second stanza was written by Georg Scherer in 1849. The lullaby’s melody is one of the most famous and recognizable in the world, used by countless parents to sing their babies to sleep.

Translation: Good evening, and good night, with roses adorned, with carnations covered, slip under the covers. Early tomorrow, so God willing, you will wake once again. Good evening, and good night. By angels watched, who show you in your dream the Christ-child’s tree. Sleep now peacefully and sweetly, see the paradise in your dream.

Mörike Lieder

In 1988, Hugo Wolf composed the Mörike lieder at a fast pace while vacationing in Perchtoldsdorf. For these lieder he chose to set poems of Edward Mörike.

In der Frühe

Translation: And still no sleep has cooled my eyes! Already through my window i can see that day is dawning. My mind is so distressed with anguish, that I find no peace or rest, but only dreams alarming. Lost one, doubt thyself no longer, troubled spirit! Courage! For from every steeple, bells of morning wake from slumber.

Lebe wohl!

Translation: Farewell! You do not know what despair these words have brought to me. With undaunted countenance you said, with heart so carefree, “farewell!” A thousand times I these words have spoken in the hope that my sad heart might at last by them be broken!

Verborgenheit

Translation: Peace. O world, grant me peace. Lure me not with love’s sweet bounties. Let my heart untrammelled, cherish all its rapture, all its pain. Ah, I know not why I grieve. It is an unknown, poignant sadness. Every dawn through tears that blind me, I behold the light.
of day. Often I feel my senses wane, then a ray of hope enthralls me, through the darkness, closely holds me. Joy divine then fills my breast.

Songs from Peter Pan
Although Bernstein’s Peter Pan was eclipsed by the success of another musical of the same name by Mark Charlap, the music still holds great integrity. Bernstein creates an intimate and entertaining selection of three female pieces performed by Wendy that give great insight into the mind of a young girl. The last piece, Never-Land, is performed by two mermaids wishing you a wonderful time whenever you visit this mystical place!

As Some Day It May Happen
This song is performed by Ko-Ko, Lord High Executioner of the town of Titipu, and the male chorus. Ko-Ko is asserting himself by reading off a list of people who would not be missed.

On a Clear Day
The musical has the character Daisy Gamble who has a nasty smoking habit, which will interfere with the chances of her fiancé, Warren, for a job with great benefits. She seeks help from a psychiatrist, Dr. Mark Bruckner, to stop smoking. When he hypnotizes her, she describes living a previous life in late 18th Century England as Melinda Wells, who died in her late twenties from circumstances beyond her control.

Simple Gifts
The song was largely unknown outside of Shaker communities until becoming famous through Copland’s (1900-1990) score for Martha Graham’s ballet Appalachian Spring in 1944. Copland used Simple Gifts a second time in 1950 in his Old American Songs for voice and piano. Many people thought that the tune was a traditional Celtic one but both the music and original lyrics are actually the compositions of Joseph Brackett, Jr.

Lullaby
The Consul was composer and librettist Gian Carlo Menotti’s (1911-2007) first full-length opera, and it was particularly successful. It premiered on March 1, 1950 at the Schubert Theater in Philadelphia and was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for musical compositions, a New York Drama Critics Circle citation for best musical play, and a Donaldson award for best musical play. Tonight’s aria a grandmother sings to her grandson, her lullaby a beautiful expression of love and tenderness, even though she is fully aware that the child she holds has just died. The dissonance in the chords provides a macabre tension as the song ends.

I Am Easily Assimilated (Old Lady’s Tango)
Candide, an operetta by Leonard Bernstein (1918-1990), is based on the novella of the same name by Voltaire. First performed in 1956 with a libretto by Lillian Hellman, since 1974 it has been generally performed with a book by Hugh Wheeler that is more faithful to Voltaire's novel. Although unsuccessful at its premiere, Candide has achieved enormous popularity, and it is popular among major music schools as a student show because of the quality of its music and the opportunities it offers to student singers. Tonight’s aria is reflective of my time at Olivet Nazarene University. As a non-traditional undergraduate student, and with the relationships I have formed here, I believe I have proven that “... I am easily assimilated!”

Old American Songs
Aaron Copland arranged these songs in 1950. They vary in different forms of folk song literature. The Boatmen’s Dance is a minstrel song from the year of 1843. The Dodger is a campaign song, which is clearly illustrated by the text of the selection. Long Time Ago is the ballad of the set. Simple Gifts is an old Shaker hymn, which Copland used in other compositions, including Appalachian Spring. I Bought Me a Cat is a children’s song, which uses animal sounds that would be appealing to young children.

Soave sia il vento
Translation: Gentle is the wind, calm is the wave, and every one of the elements answer warmly to your desire.

Orpheus Choir, now in its eighth decade of annual performances, represents Olivet in concerts on the university's educational region (Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin), and has sung at many general assemblies of the Church of the Nazarene.

The choir was founded by Prof. Walter B. Larsen in 1932. Prof. Naomi Larsen, led the choir after her husband's passing in 1957, conducting until 1972. Dr. D. George Dunbar served as conductor of Orpheus from 1972 until retiring in 1999. Appointed conductor of Orpheus Choir in 1999, Dr. Jeff Bell serves as Professor of Music at Olivet, where he earned an undergraduate degree in Music Education in 1981. He also earned the M.Mus. degree from the University of Illinois in 1983, and the Doctor of Arts degree from Ball State University in 1996.

Orpheus Choir has appeared in concerts across the nation, as well as Canada, Mexico, and Israel. It has performed twice at the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C., and three times at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado. Orpheus Choir was selected to sing at two national Music Educators National Conference conventions in California, and has sung at the Illinois Music Education Association convention. The choir also represented Olivet at the annual Praise Gathering in Indianapolis from 1978 to 2005.

The repertoire of this select group of singers includes anthems, hymns, spirituals, and contemporary compositions, representing different styles and periods of choral music.

Unfinished Tales

The composer’s first foray into writing for wind symphony, this minimalist flavored work utilizes a strong underlying rhythm to push the music forward and lend momentum to the overall feel. The marimba opens the piece with a steady pattern. The flutes join with a free flowing melody which meanders and grows, and are eventually joined by several other motifs which intertwine and build, traveling into the B section. This brings some relief to the rhythmic intensity and begins again in a more subdued manner. After exploring several new melodies, the energy begins to build again, this time stronger than before. A new melody is transformed into cannon by the higher woodwinds and the euphonium. The bulk of this melody is then discarded in favor of a three note motif traded between several instruments, bringing the tension to a climax. The return occurs suddenly, and although familiar, it is able to get off the ground sooner than before due to the tension building behind it and a stronger foundation laid by the low brass. Once more, the music progresses through the use of several different melodies and motifs, some familiar and some new. Things come to a head quickly though, and after reaching the peak, all voices cut out suddenly, leaving only the chimes to ring out alone.

The Glory of the Day Was in Her Face
James Weldon Johnson’s text reflects a man mourning the loss of his sweetheart, remembering her finest qualities as they compare to the beauty of nature. The music uses seventh chords in a closed texture, taking on a character of a Barbershop quartet. Yet, dissonance and voice leading paint the text in instances when Barbershop rules are disregarded. Suspensions are plentiful, each one attempting to imitate the sentiment in the lyrics.

Sensei’s Reflection
Sensei is a Japanese title of respect given by a student to a teacher. In America, this term is commonly associated with a martial arts instructor, as it is in this work. Inspired by the composer’s personal experience with martial arts training, this piece is written in ballad form, a storytelling style. Musically, “Sensei’s Reflection” follows the relationship of the master and student as they learn from and inspire one another. The straightforward rhythms and themes prominently place the melody before the audience, guiding them on the journey of the student and teacher. The piece contains multiple key changes, following the emotional curves of the karate lesson. “Sensei’s Reflection” unfolds the story of a karate lesson, in which the teacher instructs his student in kata, a dance-like combination of techniques. At first the student is confident, performing what she already knows. But, when her teacher demonstrates a new section of the kata she is disheartened by its complexity. As the work progresses, the sensei guides his student who despairs of ever becoming a reflection of her sensei. Listen carefully and you may discover where their journey leads.

Fantasy in F# Minor
A fantasy is any musical composition of a free or improvisatory nature. This piece spins through an ABCAB form with the B sections having an ABAC feel. The composer encourages the audience to picture favorite movie scenes along with the piece to grasp the emotion behind the music.
Color Wheel

Color Wheel for Euphonium is a series of short pieces for a piano and euphonium (and/or trombone) that serves to represent the complexity of how we interpret colors.

When contemplating Red, most individuals think of anger or love, therefore this piece features irritating minor nine chords in the piano against romantic, sweet melodies on the euphonium. I invite you to imagine an awkward first date, where romance tries to overcome the awkwardness of the situation.

When contemplating Green, I think of sagely experience, like a giant oak tree, or youthful innocence, like a gentle seedling. I invite you to imagine the never-ending life cycle of a tree: from a fallen seed to a brand new seedling and from seedling to fully grown tree.

When contemplating Orange, I find it a modern, vibrant hue. With its inconsistent Latin rhythms and passionate melodies, I invite you to interpret this piece as a high school party, where the youthful abandon and unassailable enthusiasm shift and change the mood with every second.

When contemplating Blue, it is a rather calming color, and yet also a sad color. By mixing a relaxing piano part with a subdued, almost crying euphonium part, I invite you to imagine an individual in the acceptance stage of grief.

When contemplating Yellow, obviously it is bright and cheery, almost to the point of being annoying. Since this piece features a comedic euphonium part juxtaposed to a bouncy piano rhythm, I invite you to imagine a playground full of impish children playing.

When contemplating Violet, it is a unique blend of solemn blue tint and amorous red color, therefore this piece moves from different moods, tempos, and textures to represent the complexity of this color. I invite you to imagine a soldier returning from war, when disturbing memories from battle compete with rampant joy for seeing home again invade his or her mind. Zach Kohlmeier.

Ivory Waltz

The Ivory Waltz is a piece intended to attract the listener’s imagination. Though the piece was not originally created with an actual story in mind, the composer had an idea that the piece would represent a gruesome dance between a frightened young woman and the man turned hideous beast that wishes to woo her. The piece’s solemn four-bar introduction demonstrates an almost mournful, dream-like state, as the performer showcases the primary melody with the right hand. This melody, representing the cursed man’s wish to be with the woman he loves, will reappear often throughout the piece’s entirety. Then the listener will feel the dance begin and sense the struggle that goes on between the beast and the young woman who fears him. Does the man win his love over by the end of the piece? It is the listener’s duty to decide.

Miroir d’Étoiles

Miroir d’Étoiles, or Mirror of Stars, is a duet for violin and cello, accompanied by piano. The balladic nature of the piece is designed to evoke an emotional process which, like the harmonies, will gradually shift and evolve. Accordingly, the piece calls for a great deal of movement and interpretation, much of which is left up to the collective discretion of the performers.

Winter Blessings

Begun on Christmas Eve, this piece for string quartet is written in a mock-fugue form. The classic fugue is developed around a single theme, commonly written in a straightforward Baroque style with linear melodies. The beginning of a fugue, and Winter Blessings, presents the theme to the audience in a unique way: each instrument makes a full statement of the theme, accompanied by countermelodies from other parts of the ensemble. As a fugue progresses, the composer develops the piece by using small segments of this theme and its countermelodies.
Throughout the piece, the theme will also be restated in its entirety. In Winter Blessings, the composer chose to not only use sections of development and restatements, but also mix these classic elements of fugue with an entirely different styled theme, focusing on vertical harmonies and chordal textures. These contrasting themes provide contrast in the work. The piece ends as a classic fugue does, with a section called a streto, where all members of the ensemble play the main theme simultaneously, building to the conclusion.

Music for Prepared Piano and Electronic Effects

Although the techniques used in this work will create sounds unfamiliar to the ears, the harmonic structure is fairly conventional. It is primarily an experiment in timbre. Through the use of homemade microphones, guitar effects, and a guitar amplifier, a simple piece of music can become quite exciting to hear. The sound of the piano is also altered by taping a thin strip of rubber across the strings at specific points.
Fantasia (One Moment ‘til Tomorrow)
This exciting solo piano piece begins with an ostinato, setting up the framework for the main theme as well as several improvisatory passages heard throughout the duration of the work. The piece was written in only two days with very little editing or revision. Because of the manner in which the piece was written and the nature of the ostinato, it is directly based on the original improvisation from which the idea for the main theme was created.

Chasing Sunsets
This piece explores the texture of an Octatonic scale – a scale that alternates whole steps and half steps resulting in 8 pitches per octave. The two guitars alternate between comping and playing the melody. With an ABCADA form, this piece has an improvisational section followed by a rhythmic section that drives to the finish.

The Liberty Bell March – Originally published in 1894, The Liberty Bell March has become one of Sousa’s best known marches. According to America’s leading Sousa scholar, Paul E. Bierley, Sousa was inspired to write this march because of a huge painting he had seen of the Liberty Bell in Chicago. This march is in typical Sousa style, full of bouncy rhythms, brilliant in its orchestration, both melodic and stirring. It is one of Sousa’s finest marches, bringing the audience’s attention to the Liberty Bell itself through the use of chimes during the trio.

Festa! – Elliot Del Borgo, an American composer, is best known for his music for wind bands. His works include Do Not Go Gentle Into That Good Night, Rituale, and music for the closing ceremonies of the 1980 Winter Olympics in Lake Placid, New York. Festa! is a three-part composition. The first part, a lively celebration, is followed by a slower, more pensive section. The final section of the work is a repeat of the opening celebration that ends with full forte.

My Faith Looks Up To Thee – This work, premiered in April of 2001, was commissioned for Elizabeth Webb, a longtime band booster president, by the Cisco, Texas High School Band and Band Boosters. This arrangement of the hymn My Faith Looks Up To Thee, words by Ray Palmer and music by Lowell Mason, was created to employ the various orchestration colors and textures of the symphonic band. This simple, yet profound setting opens with a quite flute solo. Following various settings of the hymn tune, a short reference to Amazing Grace is heard and the composition ends peacefully.

Prelude, Siciliano, and Rondo – This work was originally written for the brass bands for which England is well-known. It was titled Little Suite for Brass. John Paynter’s arrangement expands it to include woodwinds and additional percussion, but faithfully retains the breezy effervescence of the original composition. All three movements are written in short, clear five-part song forms: The ABACA design will be instantly apparent to the listener while giving the imaginative melodies of Malcolm Arnold a natural, almost folk-like setting. The Prelude begins bombastically in fanfare style, but reaches a middle climax, and winds down to a quiet return of the opening measures that fades to silence. The liltingly expressive Siciliano is both slower and more expressive, affording solo instruments and smaller choirs of sound to be heard. It, too, ends quietly. The rollicking five-part Rondo provides a romping finale in which the technical brilliance of the modern wind band is set forth in boastful brilliance.

The Wind Symphony is presenting a concert of pioneers of wind music repertoire. The following pieces represent a sampling of “firsts” for the composers and, for some, their first foray into writing for the wind band medium. Spanning the decades from 1920’s to the present, they remind us of our past and yet look towards an exciting future in the compositions written for the wind band.

“Canzona” represents Peter Mennin’s first and only wind band composition. Mennin was primarily an orchestral composer and was a faculty member at The Julliard School. The following are the notes as given by the composer: “Canzona” is a short, brisk work, which opens with a declamatory idea expressed in massed sonorities. Next, a broad melodic line is introduced and supported by powerful rhythmic figurations. This is followed by a cantabile section. These materials are developed and expanded, and the piece closes with the opening statements brought back in a more dramatic presentation.

In the notebook in which he kept a record of his compositions from 1895 until his death, Holst entered the 1st Suite in E Flat for Military Band Op. 28A on the page for 1909. This is the only evidence we have of the work’s origins, for there is no certain record of any performance before 1920, nor is there any evidence of for whom the work was written. It seems likely that Holst, himself a proficient trombone player, was distressed at the level of music written for the wind band (military band) and decided he might be able to lend a helping hand. The original instrumentation was scored thinly enough to be able to be played by 19 players as many of the military bands of the era had flexible instrumentation that varied greatly from rehearsal to rehearsal.
The First Suite has become one of the cornerstones of wind band literature and helped to change the course of all music written for wind band thereafter.

Unfinished Tales: The composer’s first foray into writing for wind symphony, this minimalist flavored work utilizes a strong underlying rhythm to push the music forward and lend momentum to the overall feel. The marimba opens the piece with a steady pattern. The flutes join with a free flowing melody which meanders and grows, eventually being joined by several other motifs which intertwine and build, traveling into the B section. This brings some relief to the rhythmic intensity and begins again in a more subdued manner. After exploring several new melodies, the energy begins to build again, this time stronger than before. A new melody is transformed into a cannon by the higher woodwinds and the euphonium. The bulk of this melody is then discarded in favor of a three note motif traded between several instruments, bringing the tension to a climax. The return occurs suddenly, and although familiar, it is able to get off the ground sooner than before due to the tension which has building behind it and a stronger foundation laid by the low brass. Once more, the music progresses through the use of several different melodies and motifs, some familiar and some new. Things come to a head quickly though, and after reaching the peak, all voices cut out suddenly, leaving only the chimes to ring out alone.

Vincent Persichetti was a member of the Julliard School of Music and was head of the composition department of the Philadelphia Conservatory. His works in all genres of music helped to establish him as a uniquely American composer. Pageant, commissioned by the American Bandmasters’ Association, was completed in January 1953, and is his third band work. It opens in a slow tempo with a motive in the horn that is used throughout both sections of the piece. The slow chordal section is succeeded by a lively parade section introduced by the snare drum. In the final portion of the work the two principal subjects are developed simultaneously to a lively climax. Interestingly, the final cluster of notes represent all the notes in the chromatic scale, save those three introduced by the horn in the beginning.
Steven Bryant is a prolific composer for wind band and studied with John Corigliano, Cindy McTee, and Francis McBeth. “Dusk” is based on a simple chorale that works to capture the “reflective calm of dusk, paradoxically illuminated by the fiery hues of sunset.” Bryant relates that he is always struck by the dual nature of this experience, as if witnessing an event of epic proportions silently occurring in slow motion. “Dusk” is intended as a short, passionate evocation of this moment of dramatic stillness.

Shostakovich’s Fifth Symphony has been the subject of an immense amount of scrutiny and research. The symphony, “a soviet artist’s reply to just criticism” as related by a reporter, did much to try to smooth relations with the Stalin regime after a scathing article in the Pravda on the “screaming” music of Shostakovich’s opera “Lady McBeth.” Shostakovich had seen family and friends, in fact most of the arts community in Russia, repressed, exiled, or even killed and was forced to make a decision in order to save his family. The Fifth Symphony was his response. The Finale heard this evening is bombastic and march-like and very much a piece “for the people.” However, listen closely, as under the surface the music can come across as hollow and, with the fierce timpani, likened to being beaten over the head and forced into submission.

Lichinelle
Karol Rathous was born in Poland on September 16, 1895. He studied with Franz Schreker in Vienna. His initial style was a mixture of the Viennese elegance and elements of Poland’s folk tradition. His music then evolved to a romantic and melodic style. He was the pioneer of film scoring in Germany when sound films were invented. In 1938, he came to the U.S. and worked in Hollywood. Later, Rathous became a professor of music at Queens College in New York City and held that position until his death in 1954.

Concerto for Horn in C minor
The concerto for horn in c minor by Franz Strauss showcases the composer’s extraordinary ability to compose for the horn. Franz Strauss was born in Bavaria and composed during the later romantic period. He comes from a family of musicians, most famous of which is his son, Richard Strauss. Franz Strauss was well acquainted with the horn being a horn player himself and he was able to compose in such a way as to showcase the best characteristics of the instrument. This concerto explores many different realms of horn playing and reveals the wonderful music that can be produced with the instrument.

Sonate pour Bassoon avec accompt de Piano
This work was part of a set of three sonatas for “otherwise neglected instruments”—oboe, clarinet, and bassoon. It is more straightforward than Saint-Saëns' earlier chamber music, and it follows time-honored Classical forms. It was published just before the composer's death, and he dedicated it to a bassoonist/professor friend. The work was premiered after the composer's death. The first movement ebbs and flows between major and minor key areas and includes a development section with a gentle peak. The second movement is quite "snarky" in style. The third and final movement bridges a rather plaintive slow section with a shorter, "choppy," fast one.

Verie
This piece, originally composed for Piano by Felix Mendelssohn is a part of his “Songs without words” collection. Mendelssohn was a German composer, composing in the early-middle romantic period. He was a very versatile composer, composing for many genres. His "Songs Without Word are probably his most famous piano compositions. The melody and accompaniment of this particular piece are very simple yet beautiful. This short, sweet piece is sure to leave the listener feeling peaceful and at ease.

3 Elegies

Emile Naoumoff, born in Sofia, Bulgaria in 1962, was noticed as a musical prodigy at the age of five. He studied piano and composition with Nadia Boulanger until her death in 1979. He premiered his first piano concerto at the age of ten, when he began studies at the Paris Conservatory. Along with 3 Elegies, Naoumoff composed two other works for bassoon and piano as well as numerous piano compositions.

Sonata for Horn and Piano

The Sonata for Horn and Piano, by Paul Hindemith provides a challenge for both the horn player and the piano player. Hindemith was a German composer, composing in the 20th century. Many of his works combine the newer tonalities of the 20th century with the contrapuntal style of J.S. Bach. The Sonata for Horn and Piano challenges the horn and piano players both technically and musically. This three movement work explores many different moods, often within just one movement, ending very broad, heavy, and with much finality.

The Grouchy Old Bear

Fucik, born in Prague in 1872 learned to play the bassoon, violin and various percussion instruments as well as composition. In 1891, he joined the 49th Austro-Hungarian Regiment as a musician. Fucik left the army in 1895 and took a second bassoon position with the German Theatre. A year later he started composing chamber works mostly for clarinet and bassoon. His most famous composition, Entrance of the Gladiators, has become associated with clowns and the circus. In 1913, he married and started his own band to market his works. When his business dialed his health began to suffer and he died in 1916.

Hindemith Sonata
Paul Hindemith (1985-1963) is known as one of the most significant German composers of his time. His Sonata for Trumpet and Piano was first published in 1939, just prior to WWII, while he was in exile from Germany, living in Switzerland, a year before he moved to the United States. The piece was written to an audience on the verge of wartime, and is at first a stately piece for the trumpet, with precise leaps in the melody. Listen for the difference in meter in the piano, laying a quick triplet pattern under the trumpet’s broad phrasing. In later movements, the subject moves to what the somber consequences of wartime are, and even borrows ideas from the chorale, "All Menschen müssen sterben" (All men must die).

Wer hat dies Liedlein erdacht-
Up there on the mountain, in a high-up house,
a lovely, darling girl looks out of the window.
She does not live there:
she is the daughter of the innkeeper,
and she lives on the green meadow.

"My heart is sore!
Come, my treasure, make it well again!
Your dark brown eyes
have wounded me.

Your rosy mouth
makes hearts healthy.
It makes youth wise,
brings the dead to life,
gives health to the ill."

Who has thought up this pretty little song then?
It was brought over the water by three geese - two grey and one white -
and if you cannot sing the little song,
they will whistle it for you! Yes!

Nacht und Traume
Holy night, you sink down;
Dreams, too, drift down
Like your moonlight through space,
Through the quiet hearts of men;
They listen with delight
Calling out when day awakens:
Return, holy night!
Fair dreams, return!

Double Trumpet Concerto
Not much is known about Francesco Manfredini (1684 - 1762), but the few pieces of his that survived time continue to be excellent examples of Baroque literature. Listen to the tight harmonies of the trumpets, as well as the exchange of the melodic line from the trumpets to the organ and back.

Psyche
I am jealous, Psyche, of all nature!
The sun's rays kiss you too often,
Your hair suffers too much the wind's caresses.
As it flatters you, I mutter in protest!
The same air that you breathe with so much pleasure passes over your mouth.
Your dress touches you too closely!
And whilst you sigh
I do not know what it is that startles me
Fear, amidst your sighs, those distracted sighs!

Il est doux, il est bon from Herodiade
He whose word erases all sentences,
The Prophet is here! Unto him I'm going!
It is sweet, it is good, his voice is serene:
He speaks ... all is silent ...
Lighter on the plain
The air passes quietly attentive ...
He speaks ...
Ah! when he returns? when will I hear?
I suffered ... I was alone and my heart calmed down
Listening to his melodious voice and tender,
My heart has calmed down!
Beloved prophet, can I live without you!
Beloved Prophet, may I live ... live without you!
There it is! in this desert where the astonished crowd
Had followed in his footsteps,
He greeted me one day, abandoned child!
And it opened my arms!
He is gentle, he is good
His voice is serene,
He speaks ... all is silent ... lighter on the plain ...
The air passes quietly attentive ...
He speaks!

Ah! when he returns?
When can I hear?
I suffered ... I was alone and my heart calmed down
Listening to his melodious voice and tender,
My heart has calmed down!

Beloved prophet, can I live without you!
Beloved Prophet, may I live ... live without you!
Ah! when he returns? When can I hear it!
Beloved prophet, can I live without you!

Haydn Concerto

Haydn’s Concerto for Trumpet is one of the first known concertos for chromatic trumpet. The first trumpeters that performed the piece played it on a keyed trumpet, much like a saxophone or clarinet. When the trumpet gained valves, the concerto continued to be popular, and is now part of the standard repertoire. Listen for the sweet and simple classical phrasing, and imagine how the accompaniment would sound as a string section.

Quando men vo

Having spotted her occasional boyfriend, Marcello, Musetta sings of how everyone always notices her beauty when she goes out.

When I walk all alone in the street
People stop and stare at me
And look for my whole beauty
From head to feet

And then I taste the slight yearning which transpires from their eyes and which is able to perceive to most hidden beauties.
So the scent of desire is all around me,
It makes me happy!
And you, while knowing, reminding and longing
you shrink from me?
I know it very well:
you don't want to express your anguish,
but you feel as if you're dying!

Variations on a Theme from Norma

J.B. Arban was a composer and cornet player most known for his complete cornet method, a standard method book of trumpet and cornet players. His Variations on a Theme is based on Casta Diva, from the opera Norma by Bellini. Listen to what was originally a glorious soprano solo, then try to find the musical ideas from the theme in the variations that follow.

Summertime

George Gershwin began composing Summertime in 1933, setting out to create an original spiritual in the style of current African American folk song. It was originally an aria sung as a part of the opera Porgy and Bess. The song itself has been recorded over 24,400 times, and has become classic American literature. The style the song will be performed in is based off the 1957 recording by Ella Fitzgerald and Louis Armstrong.

Clarinet Concerto

At the peak of his compositional abilities and just weeks before his death, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart (1756-1791) composed the Clarinet Concerto in A major. He wrote it specifically for his friend and fellow freemason, Anton Stadler. There is no extant manuscript of Mozart's clarinet concerto. What does survive is an unfinished draft of the Concerto's precursor. The Clarinet Concerto stands as a supreme example of the genre and contains some of Mozart's finest writing for any instrument. The Concerto uses the entire standard range of the instrument, from low C (basset clarinet) to high G. Timbral differences of the clarinet's various registers are beautifully employed to vary mood and affect. The clarinet's ability to navigate very large intervals is tastefully demonstrated in numerous passages and helps create excitement and freshness.

Cantilene

Louis (Jean Baptiste) Cahuzac (12 July 1880 – 9 August 1960) was a French clarinetist and composer. Cahuzac was an outstanding performer and one of the few clarinetists who made a career as a soloist in the first part of the 20th century.

Louis Cahuzac was born in Quarante, south France. His teachers were Felix Pagès in Toulouse conservatoire and Cyrille Rose in Paris conservatoire.

Premiere Rhapsodie

Claude-Achille Debussy (August 22, 1862 – March 25, 1918) was a French composer within the impressionist era. Debussy is among the most important of all French composers and a central figure in European music of the turn of the 20th century.

His music is noted for its sensory component and how it is not often formed around one key or pitch. Often Debussy's work reflected the activities or turbulence in his own life. His music virtually defines the transition from late-Romantic music to 20th century modernist music.

The Premiere Rhapsodie was written in the Impressionistic Era intended for clarinet and piano. Debussy wrote this piece for French clarinet professor Prosper Mimart in 1910. He published his own orchestration of the accompaniment in 1911, after the official premiere with Mimart.
Scaramouche

Darius Milhaud (French pronunciation: 4 September 1892 – 22 June 1974) was a French composer and teacher. His compositions are influenced by jazz and make use of polytonality (music in more than one key at once).

Milhaud was an extremely rapid creator, for whom the art of writing music seemed almost as natural as breathing.

A scaramouche was originally a variation of the commedia character, Capitano, a braggart soldier. The Italian actor, Tiberio Fiorillo transformed the military role to a roguish clown character. He is portrayed as a buffoon or boastful clown.

Song Without Words

Libby Larsen (b. 24 December 1950, Wilmington, Delaware) is one of America’s most performed living composers. She has created a catalogue of over 400 works spanning virtually every genre from intimate vocal and chamber music to massive orchestral works and over twelve operas. Grammy Award winning and widely recorded, including over fifty CD’s of her work, she is constantly sought after for commissions and premieres by major artists, ensembles, and orchestras around the world, and has established a permanent place for her works in the concert repertory.

Concertino

Carl Maria von Weber, son of a versatile musician who had founded his own travelling theatre company, and a cousin of Mozart’s wife Constanze, was trained as a musician from his childhood. As a composer he won a lasting reputation with the first important Romantic German opera, Der Freischütz. He wrote the Clarinet Quintet for the outstanding clarinetist of the Munich Orchestra, Heinrich Bär mann. Weber was so taken with Bär mann’s playing in 1811 that he quickly composed two clarinet concertos and a concertino for him. As the instrument was relatively new, Weber’s works for the clarinet broke new ground, affording it a new measure of prominence and displaying its wide-ranging capabilities for both expressivity and virtuosic display. It is a tribute to Weber’s ability that this piece remains a favorite in the standard repertory.

NOTES

Appassionata
Ludwig van Beethoven’s Piano Sonata No. 23 in F minor, Op. 57, also known as the Appassionata, is considered one of the three great piano sonatas of his middle period (the others being the Waldstein, op. 53 and Les Adieux, op. 81a). The work was composed shortly after Beethoven was struggling with the realization of his oncoming deafness. It was considered by Beethoven to be his most tempestuous Sonata. It is almost as if the listener can feel what Beethoven was going through.

A Perilous Night
John Cage is known for his unique sense of composition. A Perilous Night is a piece for prepared piano. Prior to a performance, the performer puts various items in the piano strings to create a sound not normally produced by a piano when the correlating key is struck. Objects that are utilized for this piece include bamboo, bolts, weather stripping, screws, and pieces of rubber.

Africa
Saint Saëns was a French composer during the 19th century who composed for nearly every genre of music. In his work Africa he takes the listener through a very programmatic journey that depicts what he saw on one of his visits to the continent of Africa. A standard performance of this work would normally be performed with a full orchestra.

Ballade
As stated by Robert Schumann, this Ballade was inspired by Adam Mickiewicz’s poem The Three Budrys, which tells of three brothers sent away by their father to seek treasures, and the story of their return with three Polish brides. The piece starts with a melancholy introduction which ends suddenly followed by the main reoccurring theme. Compared to Chopin’s other ballades this one doesn’t have as many ‘outbreak’ sections of fast arpeggios or scales, however this piece contains some of Chopin’s most difficult writing both interpretively and technically.

La Cenerentola (Cinderella) is a drama giocoso (jocular drama) in two acts, composed by Gioachino Rossini at age 25. The overture is a reworking of the overture from his earlier opera La gazetta.

Prokofieff’s Symphonie Classique, Op. 25 is a study in classical form set to early twentieth-century harmonies. The thematic content and use of form are among the most engaging features of the symphony. Prokofieff dedicated this work to Russian composer and critic Boris Asafieff, who said of this composition: “The composer’s idea in writing this work was to catch the spirit of Mozart, and to put down that which, if he were living now, Mozart might put into his scores.”

The Symphony No. 2 in D major, Op. 73, was composed in the summer of 1877. Its composition was brief in comparison with the fifteen years it took Brahms to complete his First Symphony. The cheerfulness of the symphony is akin to the pastoral mood of Beethoven's Sixth. While the work is neither tragic nor especially dramatic, the dynamic of the first two movements is largely piano and reaches forte only in minor scales. The last two movements are lighter in dynamics and more brief. The interplay of contrasting melodies overlapping and being subtly passed around throughout the instruments of the orchestra allow for moods and colors to emerge from within similar textures.

“Love Is Worth Fighting For”
“Love is patient, love is kind. It does not envy, it does not boast, it is not proud. It does not dishonor others, it is not self-seeking, it is not easily angered, it keeps no record of wrongs. Love does not delight in evil but rejoices with the truth. It always protects, always trusts, always hopes, always perseveres. Love never fails.”
-1 Corinthians 13:4-8 (New International Version, ©2011)

A Note From The Directors...
The Clefhangers is an entirely student-led ensemble. We began rehearsals at the start of the Spring 2011 semester. Although, from the start, we knew how difficult of a task it would be to start an ensemble here at Olivet as involved as a show choir, we had no idea the amount of joy it would bring us. This ensemble has demanded full commitment and individual practice from all of its members and we are so grateful for a group of students who willingly and enthusiastically rose to the challenge. With a mere fourteen rehearsals, we are so proud of the show that we have to perform for you tonight. First and foremost, we would like to thank God for giving us the opportunity to serve Him through our talents and abilities. We look forward to glorifying Him through our performance tonight. We hope that the theme “Love Is Worth Fighting For” speaks to your heart through our music and lyrics the way that it has spoken to us. Enjoy.

Ali Carter & Ashley Raffauf

We would like to give a special thanks to LTC Peaslee and the Roaring Tiger Battalion for letting us borrow ROTC uniforms. We would also like to thank Dr. Reddick and the music faculty for their support of this new group.

ORPHEUS CHOIR

Orpheus Choir, now in its eighth decade of annual performances, represents Olivet in concerts on the university’s educational region (Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin), and has sung at many general assemblies of the Church of the Nazarene.

The choir was founded by Prof. Walter B. Larsen in 1932. Prof. Naomi Larsen, led the choir after her husband’s passing in 1957, conducting until 1972. Dr. D. George Dunbar served as conductor of Orpheus from 1972 until retiring in 1999. Appointed conductor of Orpheus Choir in 1999, Dr. Jeff Bell serves as Professor of Music at Olivet, where he earned an undergraduate degree in Music Education in 1981. He also earned the M.Mus. degree from the University of Illinois in 1983, and the Doctor of Arts degree from Ball State University in 1996.

Orpheus Choir has appeared in concerts across the nation, as well as Canada, Mexico, and Israel. It has performed twice at the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C., and three times at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado. Orpheus Choir was selected to sing at two national Music Educators National Conference conventions in California, and has sung at the Illinois Music Education Association convention. The choir also represented Olivet at the annual Praise Gathering in Indianapolis from 1978 to 2005.

The repertoire of this select group of singers includes anthems, hymns, spirituals, and contemporary compositions, representing different styles and periods of choral music.

Aurore
Translation: From the gardens of the night the stars fly away, Golden bees attracted by an unseen honey, and to the dawn, in the distance, spreading the brightness of its canvas, Weaves silver shreds into the sky’s blue mantle. From the garden of my heart, intoxicated by a languid dream My desires fly away with the coming of the morn, like a light swarm to the coppery horizon, Called by a plaintive song, eternal and far away. They fly to your feet, stars chased by the clouds, Exiled from the golden sky where your beauty blossomed, and, seeking to come near you on uncharted paths, Mingle their dying light with the dawning day.

Madrigal
Poem by Robert De Bonnieres
Translation: Who was ever more charming face, neck whiter, hair silkier, Who was ever more nice blouse, Who never was, that my lady with gentle eyes! Who never had more lips smiling, smiling who made the heart more joyous, more chaste breast under guimpos transparent, Who never took my eyes to the sweet lady! Who never had a sweeter voice heard, Cute teeth mouth emperlent better; Whoever was looking at so tender, Who never was, that my lady with gentle eyes!

Nachtlied
Translation: Over all the peaks, is peace
In all tops, you hearest, hardly a breath;
The birds in the forest. Just wait, soon
You will rest well.

Ich Liebe Dich
Translation: I love you dear, as you love me, today and all tomorrows, we share each day with simple joy, and also share life’s sorrows. Each moment of our days we fill with graceful love and gladness; you comfort me when I am low, my tears assuage your sadness, assuage you r sadness. May God’s kind blessings be on you, my love, my life, my treasure; may God protect and hold you near, and give us joy and pleasure. May God protect and hold you near, and give us joy and pleasure! And give us joy and pleasure! Beyond all measure.

O Isis and Osiris
Translation: O Isis and Osiris, grant, the wisdom of mind to the new couple! Their lenket Wanderer the steps, Strengthen them with patience in danger. Let them see the fruits of the test, But they should go to his grave, Reward their courageous course; Take them up in your abode.

Cara, Cara e Dolce
Translation: Dearest liberty, Dearest liberty, dearest liberty of life, dearest liberty of life. You console my spirit now; no more servitude allow, if my heart is free of strife, if my heart is free of strife. Dearest liberty, dearest liberty, dearest liberty of life. Dearest liberty of life, dearest liberty of life.

Io le dirò che l'amò
Translation: I will tell her that I love her and I will not be fearful. I desire her for my own; I know what I must do.

Sabor a Mi
So long enjoyed this love our souls and approached both I keep your taste but you also wear taste of me. If you deny my presence in your life enough to hold you and talk I gave you so much life strength that you already taste of me. I do not pretend to be your master. I am nothing I have no vanity give me the good life. I am so poor, what else I can give. Spend more than a thousand years, many more. I do not know if eternity has love but there as here in the mouth will carry taste of me.

Mr. Ramirez presents this recital in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the Bachelor of Arts in Music degree with an emphasis in Voice. He is the student of Dr. Neal Woodruff.

THE HALE-WILDER VOICE SCHOLASHIP
The scholarship is available to music majors with Voice as their applied area. Selection is made through a competitive audition in which participants sing four pieces, one each in English, Italian, French, and German.

THE BENEFACTORS
ROBERT HALE, distinguished leading bass-baritone of NYC’s Metropolitan Opera- as well as nearly every major opera house on four continents- has enjoyed a singing career spanning more than five decades. The late DEAN WILDER was chairman of the voice departments of Westminster Choir College (Princeton, NJ) and William Jewell College (Liberty, MO).

Concurrent with their individual professional commitments, Messers Hale & Wilder collaborated in a joint singing career (1964-1984) which resulted in 15 albums of music and some 4,000 personal appearances throughout the world, most of them performed with pianist-conductor-arranger, Ovid Young. Several of those concerts took place on ONU’s campus.

The Nielsen/Young Piano Scholarship

Duo-pianists Stephen Nielson and Ovid Young are the benefactors that make possible this scholarship. They met while both faculty members of the Olivet Nazarene University Music Department, and they continue to maintain busy careers in performances throughout the world. Prof. Young has since returned to ONU as Artist-in-Residence.

The Scholarship is available to Music Majors whose applied instrument is piano, and it is awarded through a competitive audition where the pianists must play a fifteen-minute program including works from at least three style periods.

ORPHEUS CHOIR

Orpheus Choir, now in its eighth decade of annual performances, represents Olivet in concerts on the university’s educational region (Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin), and has sung at many general assemblies of the Church of the Nazarene.

The choir was founded by Prof. Walter B. Larsen in 1932. Prof. Naomi Larsen, led the choir after her husband’s passing in 1957, conducting until 1972. Dr. D. George Dunbar served as conductor of Orpheus from 1972 until retiring in 1999. Appointed conductor of Orpheus Choir in 1999, Dr. Jeff Bell serves as Professor of Music at Olivet, where he earned an undergraduate degree in Music Education in 1981. He also earned the M.Mus. degree from the University of Illinois in 1983, and the Doctor of Arts degree from Ball State University in 1996.

Orpheus Choir has appeared in concerts across the nation, as well as Canada, Mexico, and Israel, and will travel to Nairobi, Kenya and London in 2011. It has performed twice at the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C., and three times at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado. Orpheus Choir was selected to sing at two national Music Educators National Conference conventions in California, and has sung at the Illinois Music Education Association convention. The choir also represented Olivet at the annual Praise Gathering in Indianapolis from 1978 to 2005.

The repertoire of this select group of singers includes anthems, hymns, spirituals, and contemporary compositions, representing different styles and periods of choral music.

NOTES

Variations on a Korean Folk Song – John Barnes Chance first heard the melody Arirang while serving in the U. S. Army in Korea. The tune is a pentatonic melody, using only 5 notes. The opening statement of the melody begins in the low register of the clarinets and grows to include the full band. The first variation is marked Vivace and includes rapidly running fragments from the melody. The second variation is a quite lyrical setting. The third variation is Allegro con Brio and is set in a compound meter. This moves smoothly into a sustained statement of the melody followed by the final variation, Con Islancio, meaning with impetuosity, and includes a wide variety of percussion.

Country Gardens – Grainger originally wrote this playful piece for piano in 1918 as a present for his mother. He later scored it for orchestra and in 1953, he scored it for band. The band arrangement contains a number of odd occurrences, not unusual for Grainger! At several points, there are some very loud brass chords and some raucous glissandos in the brass at unexpected places. There are even several “wrong notes” that were written in.

Greensleeves – This traditional folksong dates back to 16th century England. Originally a love song, alternative lyrics have been used for the tune, including “What Child Is This?” and a variation that was used in the 1962 film How the West Was Won. This arrangement by Alfred Reed has long been a standard in the wind band repertoire.

Energetikos – Energetikos is a wildly energetic and rhythmic piece that gets its inspiration from the intensity and life energy of Southern California. The title of the work is Greek and comes from the word Energein which means to be active. Dr. Gilroy is well known for an intense energy in much of his music. He often produces this musical energy through ostinatos along with interesting and sometimes unpredictable rhythmic involvement. This three part piece begins fast, moving to a slow, reflective section. The final section returns to the patterns of the opening with some rhythmic twists along the way.
Sunrise at Angel’s Gate

Sunrise at Angel’s Gate was commissioned by Colonel Finley Hamilton, conductor of the United States Army Field Band, and first performed by them in March 2001.

Philip Sparke provides the following composer’s notes:
“In October 1999, I was privileged to be invited to Flagstaff, Arizona, to take part in the centenary celebrations of Northern Arizona University. The University is a two hour drive from the Grand Canyon, so a visit was compulsory! It’s really not possible to describe this amazing natural phenomenon- it’s just too big. You can’t even photograph it effectively but it undoubtedly leaves a lasting impression on anyone who visits it. Sunrise and sunset are the best times to view the Canyon, as a sun low in the sky casts shadows that give depth and form to the vast panorama. Angel’s Gate is one of the many named rock formations on the northern side of the Canyon and in this piece I have tried to depict the sights and sounds of dawn there, birdsong in the early morning sky and the gradual revelation of the Canyon itself as sunlight reaches into its rocky depths.

The faster central section depicts the arrival of the tourist buses, which run back and forth along the Southern Rim, and towards the end of the piece, to the sound of a tolling bell, we are reminded of the dangers that the beauty of the Grand Canyon so cleverly hides.”

Colorado Peaks

“Because this piece was commissioned by an ensemble in Colorado, I wanted the piece to make some reference to the awe-inspiring Colorado Rockies. The work is not, however, a depiction of their majesty. Instead it suggests a person’s relation to them via a rugged and persistent climb.” Dana Wilson

Sleep

Sleep began its life as an acapella choral setting, with a magnificent original poem by Charles Anthony Silvestri. The choral-like nature and warm harmonies seemed to call out for the simple and plaintive sound of the winds, and I thought that it might make a gorgeous addition to the wind symphony repertoire. Sleep can be performed as a work for band, or band and mixed chorus.
Zion

The composer writes:

Zion is the third and final installment of a series of works for Wind Ensemble inspired by national parks in the western United States, collectively called “Three Places in the West.” As in the other two works (The Yellowstone Fires and Arches), it is my intention to convey more an impression of the feelings I’ve had in Zion National Park in Utah than an attempt at pictorial description. Zion is a place with unrivalled natural grandeur, being a sort of huge box canyon in which the traveller is constantly overwhelmed by towering rock walls on every side- but it is also a place with a human history, having been inhabited by several tribes of Native Americans before the arrival of the Mormon settlers in the mid-nineteenth century. By the time the Mormons reached Utah, they had been driven all the way from New York State through Ohio and through their tragic losses in Missouri. They saw Utah in general as “a place nobody wanted” but were nonetheless determined to keep it to themselves. Although Zion Canyon was never a “Mormon stronghold,” the people who reached it and claimed it (and gave it its present name) had been through extreme trials.

It is the religious fervor of these persecuted people that I was able to draw upon in creating Zion as a piece of music. There are two quoted hymns in the work: “Zion’s Walls” (which Aaron Copland adapted to his own purposes in both Old American Songs and The Tender Lands) and “Zion’s Security,” which I found in the same volume where Copland found “Zion’s Walls”—that inexhaustible storehouse of the nineteenth-century hymnody called “The Sacred Harp.”

My work opens with a three-verse setting of “Zion’s Security,” a stern tune in F# minor which is full of resolve. (The words of this hymn are resolute and strong, rallying the faithful to be firm, and describing the “city of our God” they hope to establish.”) This melody alternates with a fanfare tune, whose origins will be revealed in later music, until the second half of the piece begins: a driving rhythmic ostinato based on an alternating meter scheme. This pauses at its height to restate “Zion’s Security” one more time, in a rather obscure setting surrounded by freely shifting patterns in the flutes, clarinets, and percussion—until the sun warms the ground sufficiently for the second hymn to appear. “Zion’s Walls” is set in 7/8, unlike Copland’s alternating 9 and 6 pattern (the original is quite strange, and doesn’t really fit any constant meter) and is introduced by a warm horn solo with low brass accompaniment. The two hymns vie for attention from here to the end of the piece, with the glowingly optimistic “Zion’s Walls” finally achieving prominence. The work ends with a sense of triumph and unbreakable spirit.

Zion was commissioned in 1994 by the wind ensembles of the University of Texas at Arlington, the University of Texas at Austin, and the University of Oklahoma. It is dedicated to the memory of Aaron Copland.

“The Gumsucker’s March”
The composer writes: “Gum-sucker” is an Australian nick-name for Australians born in Victoria, the home state of the composer. The eucalyptus trees that abound in Victoria are called “gums,” and the young shoots at the bottom of the trunk are called “suckers;” so “gum-sucker” came to mean a young native son of Victoria, just as Ohioans are nick-named “Buck-eyes.” In the march, the composer has used his own “Australian Up-Country Tune” melody, written for him to typify Australia, which melody he also employed in his “Colonial Song” for two voices and orchestra (root form), or for military band.
