One Issue: Progress

If voters use "accomplishment" as a criterion, William G. Stratton will be reelected governor of Illinois Nov. 6.

And if the voters recall, even a fraction of the achievements under Stratton in the last four years, the governor's reelection will be an enthusiastic one indeed.

For 46 months now the newspapers of Illinois have been charting the programs and projects of the Stratton administration, and the list is as impressive as it is long:

1. One of the greatest highway construction projects in the history of the state, including a modern turnpike system to be financed by users. Only a few days ago Gov. Stratton opened 42.5 miles of an improved U. S. highway 66.
2. Redistricting to give Illinoisans fair representation in the General Assembly. Reapportionment had been beyond the reach of Illinois governors for 50 years until Gov. Stratton personally sponsored a constitutional amendment to compel redistricting. Adlai Stevenson tried it and failed.
3. Legislation has enabled Illinois cities to overcome financial problems by allowing, at a city's own choice, a city sales tax. Four years ago most municipalities in Illinois were sifting deeper and deeper into debt. As a result of Stratton's efforts, most cities have eliminated public debts and have embarked upon comprehensive public improvement projects.
4. Beds, not floor pallets, have been provided for the state's mental patients.
5. A state office building has been constructed to bring all state offices under one roof, ending rentals of a half-million dollars a year for 19 separate office locations.
6. Capital improvements were made at state teachers' colleges and the University of Illinois, and the state distributive fund allotment for individual students was raised to $200.
7. The Illinois Youth Commission was created to provide rehabilitation programs and to prevent delinquency.
8. A new mental hospital at the Chicago Medical Center will provide training and research in mental illness.
9. The first new mine safety code since 1916.
10. Unemployment compensation based on the number of dependents rather than a fixed weekly amount.
11. A 2.5 million dollar plan for wildlife restoration and development.
12. Contracts to improve 12 Illinois airports.
13. A 40-hour week for welfare institutions.
14. Eradication of brucellosis.

There are more, but the record above is sufficient to document the scope and depth of achievements by the Stratton administration.

Gov. Stratton's political opponents have neither a record nor a program. Their political strategy is to try to lay the responsibility for Orville Hodge's defeat of state funds on the governor's doorstep.

But political strategy is not based upon the truth and fact; at least it isn't in the Hodge case. The truth is that Gov. Stratton acted swiftly and effectively to drum Hodge out of the state auditor's office and to restore public confidence in the personnel of the office with the appointment of Lloyd Morey, former president of the University of Illinois.

The truth, moreover, is that Hodge not only deceived Gov. Stratton but the entire Republican Party and the entire state, for Hodge was nominated and elected by Illinois voters.

In addition, it is the state constitution, not Gov. Stratton, which provided the framework for the operation of the auditor's office. The clear truth of this was pointed out a few days ago by Albert E. Jenner, special counsel to the Illinois Budgetary Commission, who has built up a fine reputation among Illinois people, regardless of politics, for his work with that commission. Mr. Jenner, recommending abolition of the office of state auditor, pointed out:

"Under existing law there is no check or safeguard against dishonest manipulations in the office of the state auditor."

This situation was, in fact, recognized by Adlai E. Stevenson, former Democratic governor, in his budget report of 1951, in which it was said:

"The governor does not have direct administrative control over other elective state offices. They have independent constitutional and statutory authority."

Stratton's record as governor, not the shortcomings of the constitution or the law, is the issue in the Nov. 6 election.

It is our conviction that Gov. Stratton's record shows four years of progress, and that he deserves reelection.

ROBINSON'S HIT GIVES VICTORY TO BUMS, 1-0

Winning Run Comes In Tenth Inning

FROM THE JOURNAL'S WIRE SERVICES
BROOKLYN—Jackie Robinson's hit with Jim Gilliam on second base gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 1-0 victory in 10 innings over the New York Yankees today in Ebbets Field to square the 1956 World Series at 3 games apiece. Robinson's hit was only the fourth off Yankee pitcher Bob Turley who had struck out 11 batters. The winner was Clem Labine who held the Yankees to seven hits.

Gilliam had walked with one out and was sacrificed to second by Peeewe Reese. It was only the second time in history that a World Series game was a scoreless tie after nine innings of play.

YANKEES FIRST
Berra dropped a Texas League single behind second. Collins grounded to Hodge, Gilliam threw Mar. No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

YANKEES SECOND

Get Out And Ring Doorbells, Community Chest Workers Told

With the Community Chest fund drive lagging seriously, general campaign chairman Harold H. Jeske, in a letter to workers, urged volunteers to emulate Paul Revere and "get on your horses and ride."

THE PRESIDENT will go to Minnesota, Washington and Oregon next week. But Hagedorn said there is little chance of Mr. Eisenhower making another one-day campaign trip this week after he returns from Pittsburgh.

Mr. Eisenhower will answer questions of a selected group of "citizens for Eisenhower" in a television appearance here Friday night. Saturday night, he will participate briefly in a televised "like a birthday celebration."

But political strategy is not based upon the truth and fact; at least it isn't in the Hodge case. The truth is that Gov. Gov. Stratton To Visit City Wednesday

Gov. William G. Stratton will meet with Republican leaders here Wednesday on his campaign swing which is taking him to every Illinois county.

Traveling with him in the GOP caravan are Nathan Castle, candidate for attorney general; Charles F. Carpenter, candidate for state auditor; and Sen. Elbert Smith, candidate for state auditor.

Earlier, at 9:30 a.m., the candidates will be guests at a public breakfast sponsored by the Illinois County Federation of Republican Women at the American Legion hall in Watseka.

The GOP state candidates will go from Kankakee to Joliet, where a reception is scheduled for 3 p.m. at the Woodruff Hotel.

Wednesday night the governor will speak at a rally at Yorkville. He was to be in Sullivan, Tazewell, Paxton and Danville today and tonight.

The other GOP caravan, headed by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, was here for a rally Sept. 18.

His other appearance will be at 8 p.m. Thursday in the West Bradley Grade School gym at Michigan.

The six constitution and by-laws of the Board of Supervisors will be adopted at a meeting of the Board of Supervisors.

Develop Child Study Clinic In Kankakee Schools; Hire Staff

A child study clinic being developed by the Kankakee School District moved a step nearer reality Monday night with the employment of a second member of the staff.

THE BOARD MONDAY night will select a third member of the staff who will have the designation of school psychologist.

Williams, who has 13 years experience as a teacher, coach and athletic director, and 9 1/2 years experience in the field of psychology, will join the school staff Nov. 1.

The district already has employed a visiting counselor, and eventually hopes to add two more. It is looking for special education teachers, but so far has been unable to find any.

The state will reimburse most of the cost of the special education program when it is established.

THE BOARD MONDAY night also employed Mrs. Sylvia Palow, 103 S. Evergreen Ave., as a half-time kindergarten teacher at Franklin School.

Williams majored in education and mathematics in receiving his bachelor's degree in 1944 from Southern Illinois University. He received his M.A. degree from the University of Illinois in 1947, and has

Other schools where he has taught and coached include Huntley, 1939-41; Illinois State Normal University, where he was a critic of the school's yearbook, 1942-43; and the University of Illinois, 1943-44.

Williams headed the psychology department at Jacksonville State College, where he was employed from 1945 to 1955, and for nine months prior to that was a psychologist at Montevideo State Hospital.

HE HAS BEEN a supervising psychologist at Kankakee State Hospital since August, 1955.

He supervised college students in psychological testing at McHenry and Illinois College, Jacksonville, over a six-year period. Williams also was part-time consulting psychologist for the community mental hygiene clinic, Springfield, for four years, 1947-51.

He is a member of state and national associations in the field of education and psychology.

Mrs. Palow, employed as a kindergarten teacher, attended Milwaukee Schools and completed her bachelor's degree at the University of Wisconsin.

She has taught kindergarten and second grade.

Bradley Population Now Totals 7,376

The new U. S. census of the Village of Bradley, completed today, shows the population to be 7,376.

This is an increase of 29.4 per cent over the 1950 census figure of 6,600.

Robert C. Jackson, representative of the U. S. Department of Commerce, census bureau, said the increase was due to the new census completed this summer.

Bourbonnais, which has approved payment of the initial charge for a new census, is predicting a further increase in population.

Bradley's population figure would be 7,376, estimates the village clerk John Grimes, who previously predicted Bradley's new figure would be 7,100.

The new figure represents a 29.4 per cent increase in population over a small part of the increase due to acquisition of new area.

Bradley's increase percentage is three times that of Kankakee. Kankakee's population increased 7.9 per cent, from 24,000 to 25,800.

Fire Toll Lists Life, Property, Employment

Support a Kankakee news item said: "Fire snuffed out the lives of 11,475 men, women—and children here today and severely burned or disfigured for life 30,000 others." No, it hasn't yet happened in Kankakee, or in any other city or town in the United States—not all at once.

But it did happen in our country last year—in cities, towns, villages and hamlets from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the Rio Grande to the Canadian border, in a 12-month period.

During annual Fire Prevention Week, which is this week, it is appropriate to repeat the figures: 11,475 dead by fires, 30,000 more injured, 31 dead by fires every day. These are official totals.

Speculate on the possibility of Kankakee being swept by a fire which killed 12,000 and injured thousands more. It would be a horrible catastrophe.

Is it any worse that the 12,000 needless deaths were spread over 365 days? Do 31 fatalities per day by fire lessen the shock and waste?

One death by fire is one too many.

Material losses are, of course, relatively unimportant. Yet it is important that fires last year cost the nation $1,140,768,000 in direct loss. This was nearly $120,000,000 more than the previous record high in 1953.

Fire is bad business anytime and for everybody, but fire is particularly bad on a farm, where a family's livelihood and home are both at stake.

Total direct loss by fire to American farmers last year was estimated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture to be more than $150,000,000. The real loss in terms of crippled earning power and a family's well-being can never be computed.

Don't gamble with fire. The odds are against you.

Chance At College Is Prize To Be Won Now

STREATOR DAILY TIMES-PRESS

Parents and teachers should advise and urge high school students this fall to make a firm resolve to study hard. Never was there a time in the educational field when satisfactory scholastic records are as important as today, with subsequent rewards increased each year.

The day is rapidly approaching when boys and girls without reasonably high standing may not get into college. These institutions of higher learning already are being taxed in their ability to accommodate the increasing number of students.

Many private schools have had screening tests for prospective students and more will turn to this practice as capacity attendance records are approached. They are eliminating those who have not been able to rate well in their high school classes.

It is likely also that state-supported colleges and universities will find it necessary to resort to some form of screening as there are more students seeking admittance than there are accommodations.

The high school student has a tremendous incentive to secure satisfactory records for college entrance which should be sufficient to induce him to take his class work seriously and to achieve the very best grade of which he is capable.

Average American Is Better Off With Ike

By John B. Crane

The average American factory worker is now earning almost $80 a week, which is $3.50 more than a year ago and $12 more than four years ago.

This substantial gain in wages has been accompanied by only a slight increase in the consumers price index, which was 113.5 in 1953 as compared to 117 now.

These figures show that American workers have never had it so good, which shows up as utter propaganda Democrat claims that there is something illusory about 1956 prosperity.

While there are a few spots in our economy, such as some unemployment in southern Illinois, whose coal has been priced out of the market, most Americans find themselves better off than ever before.

The gross national product last year was 400 billion dollars, which was regarded by everybody as something phenomenal, as it was. This year, however, we are producing at the rate of 408.5 billion dollars, with record-breaking employment on a national basis.

These are powerful factors in favor of President Eisenhower—factors which the Democrats implicitly acknowledge with their attempts to discredit the general prosperity of the Eisenhower years.

3 Major Problems For Israel

JERUSALEM, Israel.—To make a successful go of it and to survive as a nation, Israel must solve three major problems, a top government spokesman declared to me in a conference as we were discussing Israel's future.

The first big problem is to create the Jewish state in the land of Israel.

In the immediate future, Israel must solve three major problems, a top government spokesman declared to me in a conference as we were discussing Israel's future.

Both he and other officials here have often used the analogy of a pressure cooker to explain present day Israel's problem of integration.

When that pressure cooker of a melting pot is not at all present this takes too long. Israel must do in a few short years what it took years to do in the past.

Israel must "pressure cook" its assimilated immigrants to the same degree of national tendency.

THIS PROBLEM of integration is not growing less, and may even grow greater during the next few years, since the policy of the government is to bring in 50,000 additional immigrants each year for the next five years.

Many of these newcomers are coming from the communist countries of Eastern Europe and more are expected from North Africa and other Arab countries. Hence, the problem of integrating these newcomers into the Israeli culture, which today is essentially western, will be likely to prove exceptionally difficult.

But the difficulties will probably be successfully overcome, if the success in the pressure cooking of all immigrants to date, is any measure of future results. Israel appears to have done a splendid job so far and every Israeli I talked to was strongly loyal and patriotic and proud of his new little country.

Statistics for recent years show that for every 10 immigrants who come to Israel, 15 remain and become successful citizens.

The second problem which Israel must solve, if it is to survive, is of an economic nature. Israel must produce enough and export enough to pay for the essential imports it requires from abroad.

So far it has not been able to do this, but Israel must rely heavily on German reparations payments, financial aid from the American government and private gifts from America and other foreign countries.

BUT, IN SPITE OF the fact that Israel's imports still exceed its exports by a wide margin, rapid progress is being made in closing the gap. Since 1950, for example, Israel exports have increased by 350 per cent, a remarkable rate of progress.

Israel is making herculean efforts to produce as much of its food requirements and raw materials within the country as possible. Except for grains, it does not import. The nation took a good deal when the Bible was taken out of the schools. It used to be read in

C. B. Finds Happiness In Film Classic

NEW YORK.—Everyone today seems to be searching for happiness. At 75 Cecil B. DeMille is sure he knows the best way to find it.

"Let the divine mind flow through your own mind, and you will be happy," he said.

"I have found the greatest power in the world is the power of prayer. There is no shadow of doubt that I speak from my own experience."

In the twilight of a fabulous career, the silver-haired producer has emerged triumphant from four-year struggle to create the most expensive motion picture ever made, "The Ten Commandments." It is the story of Moses whom DeMille regards as "the greatest human of all time."

BUT HE SAYS he actually began preparing for the film his 75th birthday.

"The idea began more than 70 years ago when my father and mother every night read to children a chapter from the Old Testament, a chapter from the New Testament, and a chapter of history," he recalled.

22nd Amendment

WASHINGTON.—President Eisenhower has put his finger on one of the real weaknesses of the American constitutional system—the fact that the American people, perhaps even in the midst of a nuclear war, cannot continue their commander-in-chief in office if he happens to be finishing a second term during a crisis.

The President says that adoption of the 22nd amendment which limits a President to two terms "was not wholly wise" and that the United States "ought to be able to choose for its president, anybody that it wants, regardless of the number of terms he has served."

The 22nd amendment was adopted by two-thirds of both houses of Congress in March 1947 and after ratification by three-quarters of the states was proclaimed in February 1951.

Mr. Eisenhower has never before expressed himself on the subject and did so only because the question was asked by Ed Morgan of the American Broadcasting Company at a press conference a few days ago as a result of talk in political circles that a President in his second term might have less influence with Congress.

Mr. Eisenhower thought not and pointed out that the next aspirant would want a President's support for nomination and election. But David Lawrence the weakness arises when a chief executive can no longer hold—not the candidates—but party members in line.

Mr. Eisenhower never faced the 22nd amendment and yet, extended throughout all the Roosevelt administrations that the American people ought to be given the constitutional right to pick their presidents for any length of time they wished—and that some modification of the parliamentary system for both Congress and the President was a far better way to protect the nation's interest.

As it is, the 22nd amendment not only deprives particular individuals of the opportunity to serve the government in its highest post where experience in office is so important but it deprives the people as well of their opportunity at any time to draft the most experienced man they can find to serve them, especially in emergencies.

When President Wilson was asked in February 1913 by congressional committee his views on a proposal for a constitutional amendment limiting a President to a single term of six years, he replied that he was in favor of it.

Four years is not long enough depending on how good the President happened to be and that he hoped some day the American people would establish a system more responsive to the nation's will. Only he had in mind a four-year term.

The late President Franklin D. Roosevelt in talks with friends used to cite the successful experience of Canada under the 21 year tenure of Mackenzie King as prime minister—a service interrupted only twice for brief intervals.

This writer in a dispatch on July 10 last predicted that the matter of a third term would come up in the event of Mr. Eisenhower's re-election. Of particular interest now is an unpublished letter written to this correspondent on July 25 last by Rep. James M. Quigley, Democrat, of Pennsylvania, who had just introduced a resolution to repeal the twenty-second amendment. He said:

"I invite your attention to this legislative measure because its introduction was inspired, at least in part, by your recent column suggesting the fairness or desirability of making an exception to the rule of the twenty-second amendment in the case of President Eisenhower."

I favored it for Mr. Roosevelt, but I am terribly afraid that the devastating effects of four years of a "lame duck" president would have on this country are far greater than those that might come from the possibility or even the realization of a President being re-elected for a third term.

"Since I am a Democrat, and since I happen to have the honor of representing the district in Pennsylvania which includes Gettysburg, I suppose it should be expected that I should be doing everything possible to discourage President Eisenhower from seeking a second term. Let alone attempting to create a situation where he might possibly run for a third term. However, since I am convinced that the twenty-second amendment is wrong in principle, I think it incumbent upon me to urge its repeal before it has an opportunity to do great harm to this country regardless of what the political consequences might be to me personally."

This statesman-like attitude—for it really isn't a partisan matter or a question of personalities—is likely to gain more adherents as the American people come to understand why the present rigid system of presidential tenure is outmoded. For, in time of atomic war, continuity of service of the experienced leader in the White House could mean to the nation the difference between disaster and survival.

Public, Private Debts Up But So Is U.S. Wealth

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK.—Debt totals—public and private—were soaring to new highs in America this year. The lofty structure worries those who wonder what would happen if something should shake the foundations of the present good times.

But comfort can be found today in a report that the nation's tangible wealth—public and private—is increasing much faster than its debts. And our national income has been rising for the last 10 years proportionately more than our debts.

Debt, wealth and income, however, are not the same thing. They are three different things that have considerably less purchasing power than they had in 1945.

THE NORTHWESTERN National Life Insurance Co. of Minneapolis estimates that the net total of public and private debt owned by the American people will pass 700 billion dollar mark by the end of the year. This will be a whopping 294 billion more than we owed at the end of World War II.

What we owe, however, is not the same thing as the debt. Buildings, equipment, stocks of goods and other tangible wealth—has increased by $44 billion dollars since 1945, the insurance company's economists estimate that by the end of this year these assets will be worth nearly 1½ trillion dollars—a sum too big for many of us to grasp. And they expect national income this year to be 340 billion dollars, or almost half of the total debt owed.

AT THE END of 1945 our debts were nearly three-fourths as big as our total tangible wealth. Now the debts are only about half as big. In 1948 our debts were 117 per cent of the 1947 debt. In 1953 it was 55 per cent of that average.

If, in other words, prices in 1953 had been as high as they are today, the national income then would have been twice what it was. Or, if prices and wages today were what they were then, our present national income would be reckoned at about half what it now appears.

But, compare 1953 with the present in the terms of a constant dollar and things look a lot different. The cost of living now is around 117 per cent of the 1947 average. In 1953 it was 55 per cent of that average.

'Fine-A-Meters' To Be Set Up In Downtown Joliet

JOLIET—Handling of new parking tickets scheduled to be put into use in Joliet within the next 10 days was discussed at a city hall meeting of the city manager, the police chief and the police magistrates.

Envelope-type tickets are to be put into service for overtime parking violations in the immediate future. They were recommended by the parking commission. In keeping with this recommendation, 10,000 of the new type tickets were ordered on Friday by City Purchasing Agent George Comerford. They are to cost 25 cents each and were ordered from a firm in Elkhart, Ind.

The new envelope-type tickets, 10 "fine-a-meters" or deposit tickets for such tickets will be set up in the downtown area. There will be one to a block. It was indicated. With these set up, persons who receive tickets will be able to put the amount of their fine into the envelope and deposit it in the special meter, eliminating the need of going to the police station to pay overtime parking fines.

The depositors are to cost about $24 each, according to City Manager Chester B. Lewis.

Feature Family Night At Meeting Of Bonfield Group

BONFIELD (JNS)—The Women's Society of World Service sponsored a Family Night and birthday meeting Thursday evening in the church parlors.

A share-dish dinner was served to 82 members and families. The hostesses served the ice cream and cake. Happy birthday was sung to all who had birthdays in October.

The lesson for the month was "Those on the Move." Mrs. Clarence Wingert was the leader. She gave a few thoughts on the lesson and offered a prayer.

A play, "It Could Be You," was given by Mrs. Melvin Kirchner, Mrs. Alvin Stehr and Mrs. Henry Walter. Following this portion of the program, there was a brief intermission while the tables were cleared.

Following intermission, Joy Mehner showed pictures he had taken on trips to Niagara Falls, Maine, Nova Scotia and Canada. Mrs. William Jensen announced a fall institute would be held Oct. 28 in the Bradley Evangelical United Brethren Church.

Says Seaway Not Bothering Lake Ontario

OTTAWA (UP) — The International Joint Commission said today that the level of Lake Ontario has been unaffected by construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The commission's joint chairman, Len Jordan of the United States, and Gen. A. G. L. McLaughlin of Canada, also said some power would be available during the coming winter from the Schoelkopf hydroelectric power station at Niagara Falls, N. Y., which was partly destroyed by a rock fall.

The IJC will tour the St. Lawrence Seaway site next week. Its St. Lawrence River board of control told the commission that it was working on the seaway and power development was proceeding on schedule.

"CONSTRUCTION of the works in the international rapid section has had no significant effect to date on the levels of Lake Ontario, or the mean monthly discharge," the board told the commission.

The commission's technical advisory board on air pollution said there had been "substantial improvement" in controlling smoke of ships in the Detroit River, and a definite lessening of pollution in the area as a whole.

Steps taken by Canadian and American authorities to control pollution on the lakes have been "most favorable," the commission said.

Keep In Trim Movie Star Shares Curve Making Problem

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Thin girls, sighing for curves will get you nothing but a dejected feeling of hopelessness. Tune into this story and find out how Hollywood's Vera Miles acquired her curves.

I first heard about Vera when I interviewed designer Edith Head and asked for fashion tips. The ray of sunshine for thin girls is that the covered up look is high style this season. Cover up the bony areas and play up your lovely little waist.

From there on Miss Head enthusiastically told me about Vera's curve making problem. When she first consulted the designer, this star was too thin through the chest, shoulders and arms. "scrawny was the word. A few months later, Vera acquired the proper proportions and glamorous curves.

"However did you do it?" Miss Head asked in wonderment.

"I swam, I exercised, and I studied dancing just to develop the muscles that were deficient," was the answer.

INTRIGUED WITH THE STORY, I hid myself over to talk with this rapidly rising star. Here's her story. Swimming did it. Daily she swam, using the crawl stroke, rhythmically turning her head with each stroke so as to bring the neck muscles into action. To strengthen her leg and thigh muscles, Vera took perfect leg exercises. She has a perfect figure—5'6", 115 pounds, bust 36, waist 22, hips 35 inches. Ah!

While working hard, Vera could lose a pound a day if she didn't eat right. She starts her day with an energy building breakfast—fruit, eggs, buttered toast, a glass of milk and coffee. Midmorning she has a glass of milk and some raisins. At noon she eats a nourishing meal and then has a full course dinner at night and a glass of milk at bedtime.

VERA, WHO HAS A truly beautiful posture, took a modeling course. When I asked if she recommended this for thin girls, she answered thoughtfully, "No, I would suggest ballet or modern dance and swimming. Modeling courses just give the finishing touches. It takes an action program to build up."

This star's action program has been most rewarding. Fred Astaire watched her dancing on the set of "Beaumont" and promptly asked to have her for a partner in his next picture. High praise!

Vera's winning philosophy is that nothing ever just happens, you have to make it happen. Well, you pools, but you can go to the Y pool and swim regularly to curve an exciting figure.

The Worry Clinic Experiment In Love Making

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Clint R. 21, was a senior in one of my university classes. But he was a cynic and hostile to women, all because his fiancée had run away and married another man from Clint's home town.

Clint was sour on women. He vowed he never would marry. He said women were all fickle and irresponsible.

His attitude was obviously hurt and he was transferring his ire to all womankind. So I told him he was illogical and unfair to classify the whole female sex for the faithlessness of his former fiancée.

My classes were large, often running between 100 and 150 students, so I had Clint look the field over and tell me which girls looked "least repulsive" to him.

Since half the class enrollments were coeds, he had as high as 75 coeds from which to choose.

Reluctantly he agreed to test my statement that love can be developed. So he pointed out three coeds who didn't look too bad to him.

Knowing the background of these three, I selected the one who would harmonize best with Clint.

Her name was Anne.

THEN I ARRANGED my seating chart so Clint would be next to Anne. Maybe some of you readers will think it strange that I cooperated with my students in this fashion, but I have always stressed applied psychology.

In my large classes maybe a dozen such experiments would be going on without anybody else's knowledge thereof.

Well, Clint agreed to follow my prescribed pattern. He came to consult me privately on numerous occasions, during which we would even map out a specific dialogue for him to use.

Winning friends is just like winning clients or customers in the business world. It is a matter of salesmanship. They must anticipate their sales interview and memorize a "canvass" sales talk.

Clint did just that. And he took Anne to athletic meets and to the young people's meeting at a big Evanston church.

They went on picnics and hikes. They came down to the Chicago Loop to the Art Institute and the other museums.

Love is a mass of pleasant emotional experience shared with another person of suitable age and interests. It grows like a spider web.

DESPITE CLINT's protests that he still didn't love Anne, he could detect a note of insincerity in his voice. He was growing uncertain.

Anne was a talented girl and a gay conversationalist. She wasn't a beauty queen, but she wasn't hard to look at, either.

Her greatest charm was her vivacious personality. It really isn't sheer beauty that devastates a man as much as personality, so if you girls aren't Hollywood stars, don't get discouraged.

Just remember that a lot of Hollywood beauties can't hold their mates longer than a couple of years. After divorce, divorcees, whereas hometown girls with personality can stay happily married through their golden wedding anniversary.

Sometimes an early infatuation may becloud a person's viewpoint so that he carries the torch for a former sweetheart.

But a vivacious girl at a man's side, if she uses the proper technique, can beat off a romantic rival. The next meeting will be at the home of Miss Sandra Beck of 470 S. Fifth Ave.

Crusaders Circle Hears Book Review, Plans World Community Day

The October meeting of the Crusaders Circle of the Central Christian Church was held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. J. J. Sullivan Jr. of 928 S. Myrtle Ave.

Mrs. Maude Carlson, president of the Christian Women's Fellowship, gave a book review on "Mission USA."

It was announced that Nov. 2 is World Community Day and a combined services for Kankakee County United Council of Church Women will be held at 9:30 a.m. at St. John's Evangelical United Brethren Church.

Offerings made this day will be used by the Church World Service for drugs and medicine for the needy. It was also announced that the Mission Circle of the Trinity Lutheran Church Thursday.

Miss Juliette Jensen reviewed the book, "The Doctor of Tanganyika," by Paul White. The book is about an Australian medical missionary who went to Africa to teach the natives the way of salvation through the light of the Gospel.

Mrs. Martine Johnson was in charge of the program.

Deviations were presented by Mrs. Gilbert Larkau. Miss Carol Bertelsen played a piano solo.

The business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Robert Holmstrom. Plans were made to serve the dinner for the father and son banquet. Several projects for the beginning of next year were discussed.

Guests were Mrs. Dennis Marshall, Mrs. John Miller, Mrs. Owen Moore, Mrs. Roy Mitchell and Mrs. Robert Schmidt.

Refreshments were served buffet style from a table decorated with seasonal flowers.

The next meeting will be held in the church parlors with Mrs. Howard Brandeland as hostess.

Chebanse CES Honors 55-Year Member

Mrs. Guy Coburn of Prescott, Iowa, attended the 55th anniversary of the Order of Eastern Star of Chebanse Thursday.

Mrs. Coburn who is still a member of the chapter was guest of honor and was seated in the East with Mrs. and Mrs. William Winterroth, presiding officers.

Mrs. Cora Friday, grand lecturer, Mrs. Carrie Mieser of Kankakee and Mrs. and Mrs. Dale Ipe and Mrs. Eugene Nussbaum of St. Anne were also present.

A song was sung by Mrs. Irene Hughes in honor of Mrs. Coburn who has been a member of this chapter for almost 55 years.

The history of the chapter was read by Charles Wheat. Mrs. Frances Lane is the only surviving charter member. Mrs. Lane, Henry Wulfe Sr. and Mrs. Coburn are the three members who have belonged to the chapter the most years.

For a last minute company canapés, top crackers or small slices of rye bread with sharp cheddar cheese and a strip of bacon. Slide under broiler for a few minutes.

For a gloriously golden-brown pie, brush the top crust with egg yolk mixed with 1½ teaspoons water.

Fire Causes Big Loss At Deselm Farm

MANTENO (JNS) — Several thousand dollars damage was done by fire at a farm in Deselm, seven miles west of here, Monday evening. Kenneth Rogers, who occupies the farm, said he lost $2,000 worth of equipment and tools. Replacement of the building would cost $8,000 or $9,000, he estimated. The farm is owned by his father, Leslie Rogers of Manteno. The buildings were covered by insurance but the equipment was not.

Flames, discovered just before 6:15 p.m., burned a combination crib, granary and barn, part of the milk house and ruined the silo. The fire also destroyed a tractor close to the barn, a mower in the crib driveway, an electric welder, two or three electric motors, a large number of hand tools, and 15 or 20 bushels of seed beans. Rogers was at work at Bennett Industries, Peotone, when the fire broke out. Mrs. Rogers and the four children were eating supper.

The fire started in the west end of the 60-foot barn, granary and crib, Rogers said. Manteno firemen found the flames out of control when they rushed to the scene. Milton Platt, Manteno fire chief, called in the Kankakee firemen to help fight the blaze.

Sparks blew across the road and damaged the roof of a barn on the farm of Mrs. Nellie Harman. Trees in the area also caught fire, as did a cob pig. "Everything was so dry it went up like a cracker box," said Rogers.

Fortunately, Rogers repaired electrical connections so there was water pressure at the farm when an old coal house started burning about midnight. Rogers extinguished it with water from a hose.
