Civil Rights Passage May Kill Off Conservative Congressmen

WASHINGTON (UP)—It is six months now since President Eisenhower sent to Congress a four-point program to compel southern states to accord certain civil rights to Negroes.

The four points were these:

1. Establish a bi-partisan commission to investigate civil rights violations and to make recommendations.

2. Create a civil rights division in the Justice Department.

3. Prohibit "new laws to be enacted in the enforcement of civil rights."

4. Permit the federal government to act in civil courts to impose civil rights by injunction.

POINT FOUR would permit punishment without trial by jury of persons who obstructed civil rights for Negroes as defined by law and the Constitution. This is the point most actively assailed by southern Democrats in Congress.

The administration bill is likely to be amended to provide for jury trials or to die in the Senate filibuster. A similar bill sponsored by Eisenhower died last year in Congress. The issues have been re-opened.

The extent to which the bill would be explored if the Senate filibuster were defeated.

Senator Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) Tuesday said that American news paper and radio-television media of "abuse of the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech."

Russell said the bill had come along behind a smoke screen of propaganda to insure Negro voting rights whereas its real purpose was to give the federal government power to suppress power to force white and Negro children to attend school together.

The Eisenhower bill unquestionably is intended to arm the Justice Department with power to suppress power to force white and Negro children to attend school together.

The five are: Miss Dolores Chandler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chandler, 138 W. Walnut St., Kankakee; Robert Chandler, 212 S. Blaine Ave., Bradley; Miss Lou Ann Abden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Abden, Watseka; Ronald Abden, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Abden, Watseka; and Miss Joan Eberhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eberhart.

These students were chosen to assist newcomers because of their leadership ability, personality and scholastic record. They will help newcomers to the campus and assist them in making adjustments to college life, and interpret university traditions.

Orientation Week begins with a convocation and picnic for students, parents and faculty members. During the week there will be meetings with deans, counselors and department heads, social events, registration, tests and tours.

Pleasant 30 Days Seen By Bureau

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Weather Bureau expects above normal temperatures during July throughout the southern half of the United States and in the Ohio Valley and Middle Atlantic states.

Is 30-day forecast said below normal temperatures are indicated for the northern half of the country. The rest of the country can expect normal temperatures.

Above normal rainfall is expected in the Pacific Northwest and the northern Plains; as well as in the extreme Southeast. Sub-normal rains are indicated over southern New England, the Middle Atlantic states and the lower Ohio Valley. The rest of the nation should have normal rainfall.

How to start an investment account—and keep it going

To begin with, you must decide what you primarily want from investing—income, stability or long-term growth. Then you must familiarize yourself with the "how's" and "why's" of securities.

Next, you study the securities which appear to meet your specifications and select those which you will buy. Then, once you have bought, you'll keep an eye on the over-all market, and particularly on the industries and companies that you have invested in.

For a starter, we suggest that you let us send to you our newly written booklet, "Opening an Account." It's an ideal beginning. No charge or obligation. Just use the coupon below.

Picnics Are In Style

What's Happened To Old-Time 4th?

Has the Fourth of July—at least its observance—changed over the years?

In surveying the files of the Kankakee Daily Journal, there is little mention of community-wide observances but rather picnics and programs planned by local organizations and family picnics and celebrations in the outlying towns.

GOING BACK TO 1876, the 100th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, the following account appeared on page one of the Kankakee Gazette:

"About 200 of our citizens went to Chesham where there was a large crowd, a big procession, a superabundance of heat and a corresponding paucity of shade."

"The Germans of this city had a picnic celebration in Perry's Grove where they enjoyed themselves heartily and quietly."

In 1881, "there was no celebration of general character in this city," but nearby at Waldron a large program was held with 2,000 people at the local picnic ground.

"The procession was headed by the Waldron brass band and marched to the picnic grounds near the lake house where the lunch was disbanded and the people proceeded to enjoy themselves at the different kinds of amusements until noon when the lunch baskets were produced and everybody ate heartily and they enjoyed themselves hugely."

"The Declaration of Independence was read . . . in a manner which deserves much praise. The orator of the day, Capt. W. Delvin Wallace . . . delivered an oration which elicited hearty commendation from all who heard it."

WITH THE TREND toward private or small community observances, established the Kankakee American Legion's annual Fourth of July picnic last night as hundreds of cars and thousands of people thronged Third Park to witness the display.

At the home of the boy's grand- parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Forth, located about 2 1/2 miles north of Bourbonnais on Route 113, the boy was taken to St. Mary's hospital in the Bourbonnais infirmary or vehicle. He is still confined to the hospital where his condition was reported as good.

Participating in the Thursday night game were the following pupils: Theresa Dickman, Norma Christensen, Sharon Severson, Charles Jensen, Mija Caron, Kathleen Cotter, Patricia Cotter, Carol Schwark, Gloria Mau, Jacqueline Piper, Christine Bauer, Patsy Patterson, Elaine Geiger, Mary Ann Wagner, Judith Borer, Janice McCarney, Betty Diefenbach, Virginia Burr, Virginia Meyer, Jimmy Jensen, Goran Williams, Paul Jensen, Judith Wamborn and Ronald Schweigert.

In the Sunday recital were: Charlene Dahn, Janice Nelson, Judith Feeke, Jacqueline LaVoie, Lin Peterson, Vern Weiss, Dennis Stevens, Johnnie Wadley, Sharon Hansen, Debbie Gooding, Betty Burr, Virginia Meyer, Jimmy Jensen, Lana Weiss, Carolyn Kerosue, Yolanda Granger, Cindy Schwark, Betty Baker, Jaana Krummel, Doree Arvantes and Karen Stevens.

Punch and cookies were served to guests.

Peak In Bond Interest May Be At Limit

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Those conspicuous victims of tight money and fear of more inflation—federal, corporate and municipal bonds—seem today to be digging in for at least a holding action.

The prices of the older ones have taken quite a beating this year. The interest rates that have been offered to sell new ones have risen steadily.

Some underwriters have had a soreful time of it. They are now investors' hands. And some times companies and corporations have had to raise the rates to pay and have to forego the improvement or expansion they'd like to make.

But this week and last bond dealers have seen some sign of a halt to the downward trend in prices and signs that the peak of interest charges may have been reached.

One reason could be that now they top those on many blue chip stocks, thus attracting investors to the bond market.

Another is that fear of a new surge of inflation which would wipe out the higher yields back has abated a bit for the moment.

IF RUNAWAY INFLATION is to be avoided—and Washington money men say it is—bonds are set on a stoppage. It is a hedge against inflation which will look more attractive when the price of goods is high.

Investment return on top rated corporate bonds has risen in recent weeks as high as 4.5 per cent. Bonds with a rating as low as 20 per cent are selling as high as 6 per cent. This is a striking rise in the last year and a half.

As interest rates on new offerings have risen, so have the prices of older bonds. The average yield on top rated corporate bonds is now 4.5 per cent.
