Says Wonder Drugs Cause Carelessness

PHILADELPHIA (U) — The rise of the wonder drugs has made doctors less careful about germ precautions measures in hospitals and operating rooms, a Philadelphia surgeon said today.

Dr. H. Taylor Caswell of Temple University Hospital told the closing session of the American Medical Association's 11th annual clinical meeting.

"The medical profession has come to regard the problem of infection much less seriously than it did prior to the development of antibiotics. We are now in an era when this attitude must be changed."

DECLARING that certain strains of staphylococci germs have become resistant to most of the wonder drugs and that they present "a serious problem in hospitalized patients," Dr. Caswell said.

A return to the most strict hospital techniques (of sterilization) is essential. Unless this is done, successful control of infections in hospitalized patients will be impossible.

He indicated that sharp reductions in such infections is possible.

THE NATIONAL SAFETY COUNCIL award of merit for two million man hours of work without a lost time accident at the David Bradley Mfg. Co. is shown being presented to William Koehle, left, industrial safety engineer, at a program held Thursday night. The presentation was made by David L. Arn, Chicago, center, director of industrial safety of the National Safety Council.

Bradley Plant Passes Million Safe Hours

An admonition to "cut down the fantastic accident tolls in our homes and on the highways," was given to members of the David Bradley safety committee and management officials Thursday night by David L. Arn, Chicago, director of industrial safety of the National Safety Council.

Arn spoke at the annual banquet of the safety committee. He presented a plaque for completion of over a million man hours of work without a lost time accident to William Koehle, plant industrial engineer of the David Bradley Mfg. Co. here. Koehle is also the chairman of the plant's safety committee.

Arn emphasized two things in his talk to the 20 persons representing the over 500 employees of the David Bradley plant: He first congratulated the men on the achievement of accomplishing the million man hour goal without a lost time accident. The firm achieved the goal from Feb. 1 through Oct. 31 of this year.

HE REMINDED the management and safety committee members that the award was due to the individual safe worker and an intense interest on the part of the moving safety among the entire staff. He continued urging the plant to continue its record to reach the three million man hour goal to become eligible for the National Safety Council's highest industrial safety award.

Secondly, he urged the men to carry back and install in the work area a program to carry the safety practices learned on the job to the home and the highway. Arn cited figures showing that employees are "safer on the job than anywhere else."

He noted that last year 2,000 persons were killed in industrial accidents and 400,000 persons received lost time injuries while on the job. In contrast, he said 28,000 persons were killed in home accidents and 4,000,000 were temporarily or permanently disabled. 40,000 persons were killed in highway accidents with another 1,400,000 temporarily or permanently disabled.

"We can do a tremendous amount of good will if we will set the attitude of our families," Arn commented. He called the family circle the best place to develop the proper attitude among the members of the family.

"IT'S UP TO YOU people and we people who have the industrial knowledge to lead the problem," Arn stated.

In addition to presenting the plaque, Arn presented a green career safety flag to be flown on all days that there is not an injury in a lost time accident the previous day.

Prior to Arn's address, LeRoy Hummel, plant personnel manager, spoke briefly. Hummel pointed out that the safety program must be brought to the individual with the realization that the accident can

Dad Has Surgery With Mom's Baby

FT. THOMAS, Ky. (U) — It's no gag to say "mother, new baby—and father—doing fine" when you refer to the George Ritten family.

The 23-year-old Ritten, an auto mechanic, was doing an expectant father's usual floor pacing in St. Luke Hospital Thursday night. Suddenly he complained of pains.

Hospital attendants figured it was an old story — "sympathy pains." Then a doctor looked in and diagnosed his pain as appendicitis. He was hustled off for an emergency operation.

His wife, Catherine, 22, gave birth to a 6-pound daughter while he was having his appendix removed.

Lawyers To Fight Arbitrary Hike In Property Taxes

CHICAGO (U) — A drive against arbitrary hikes in property taxes has been launched by the Illinois State's Attorneys Association which decided to work with other organizations in the project.

State's Atty. Bernard J. Moran of Rock Island County said Thursday the association will appoint a committee to meet with representatives of county officials' organizations, school boards and school administrators.

He said the object was to try to work out a fair system that will rule out arbitrary tax increases.

Sputnik Didn't Wait For Kankakee

The nation's first attempt to launch a satellite-carrying rocket has been blasted to inglorious failure on the beaches of Florida. A stunned and humiliated American public, its self confidence shaken, asks: What went wrong? Who failed? Who is to blame?

If we seek to draw some sort of a parallel between this fiasco in Florida and the critical state of affairs in the field of American education, there should be no cry of over-simplification. For there appears to be an affinity, a relationship. Thus it is that we ask: "What's wrong with the schools of today?"

Long before Russian advances in the sciences of the satellites and ballistic missiles, there were many Americans who had a nagging fear that there was something wrong with modern education. They have thrust these apprehensions aside, gladly, to grasp at the proposition that if anything was wrong, there were plenty of professional educators around to set things right.

But now, suddenly, they learn that they had real reason for their fears. Something must be wrong with the schools. For even the educators have become concerned.

For the educators, the present pattern of education is out of kilter. We don't need to peg down the blame. We are all at fault—students, teachers, taxpayers, educators, parents—and newspapers, too, which know full well how they have failed.

It isn't merely that Johnny can't read. Too many youngsters who graduate from high school today cannot spell adequately, and too many cannot write grammatically pure sentences. There are too many high school graduates who are woefully lacking in the ability to take on the challenges of college courses in mathematics, sciences, humanities and others.

Why not? Here in Kankakee the taxpayers have spent many dollars to build new school buildings and furnish a variety of teaching tools. The taxpayers have provided the financial means to pay good salaries to good teachers. They have kept hands off and let the educators develop the curriculum which they said was necessary.

There have been times when they have wondered about the need for teaching a junior high school boy how to dice carrots or a girl in bunny suit to manipulate a band saw. They have pondered the sessions in dancing and the need for a dozen or so specialists to teach physical education. They have accepted the fact that modern education calls for the teaching of instrumental and vocal music and the theatrical arts. They have not questioned the employment of men and women as student counselors, nor the teaching of courses on the family budget.

All school systems are providing this broad curriculum either because the public has demanded it, or the educators think we should have it, or the law requires it. As can be seen from the report on the financial situation of the Kankakee school district in an adjoining column of today's paper, we are straining just to keep up with our neighboring communities in this regard. What are we accomplishing?

The taxpayers have been disappointed to learn that many high school graduates throughout the United States have difficulties in English and mathematics when they go on to college. The public is alarmed when it is told that many college graduates are ill-prepared for the specialty fields of science, engineering and mathematics.

Rear Adm. H. G. Rickover, of atomic submarine fame, has stated that few American students, 22-years old, know as much after four years of college as a European 19-year old who has only finished high school.

This is probably true because the purpose of the American high school is to educate all of the children regardless of their intelligence. This does not mean that the high school is to educate all of the children to the level of the mediocre child, thus neglecting the gifted child.

The important fact is that Russia is training a higher percentage of her population in matters of science and technology, and she is spending a higher proportion of her national income to do it.

America has been great in applied science but weak in basic science—the kind of science which creates new concepts which lead to things like the atomic bomb. We built it, we even solved some of its important problems, but we did not conceive it, nor can our educational system take much credit for it. From the discovery of X-rays by the German, Roentgen, in 1895, to the explosion of the first atomic bomb, American contributions consisted largely of proof of theories advanced by Planck, Einstein, and Schrödinger of Germany; Rutherford, Soddy and Dirac of England and Neils Bohr of Denmark. These men were primarily mathematicians. The first atomic pile, which was built in Chicago, was devised by Fermi who was born and educated in Italy and other parts of Europe. Teller, who succeeded with the hydrogen bomb, was born and educated in Hungary and Europe.

We cannot depend on Europe forever to furnish the cream of educational product, and waste the assets of our own youth who, when properly motivated and trained, will be equally good.

In addition the uncomfortable fact is that while we lag in the sciences, we are not doing a really good job in the humanities and social sciences. Students in high school and college test poorly in the fundamentals of history, economics, politics and geography. There is little grasp of philosophy, religion and art.

The educators no doubt will take pot-shots at this argument. They will offer proof that today's students compare favorably with those of a generation or so ago. But in this space age we cannot settle for that. We want them to be better, many times better, than we were.

In the current national concern over the quality of our educational system as compared to that of the Soviet, it might be timely to stop and ask ourselves some pertinent questions.

What is the purpose of the school? Is it to prepare the child for a career? Is it to prepare the child for a life of service? Is it to prepare the child for a life of citizenship?

What is the role of the teacher? Is it to impart knowledge? Is it to inspire? Is it to guide?

What is the role of the parent? Is it to support? Is it to guide? Is it to discipline?

What is the role of the community? Is it to provide resources? Is it to provide support? Is it to provide guidance?

What is the role of the nation? Is it to provide resources? Is it to provide support? Is it to provide guidance?

What is the role of the world? Is it to provide resources? Is it to provide support? Is it to provide guidance?

What is the role of the universe? Is it to provide resources? Is it to provide support? Is it to provide guidance?

What is the role of the future? Is it to provide resources? Is it to provide support? Is it to provide guidance?

Financial Crisis Looms For Schools

Kankakee District Faces Higher Costs, Greater Enrollment

Doubled enrollments, decreasing assessed valuation per student and unavoidable increases in the cost of education are posing a financial dilemma for the Kankakee School District.

The school board outlines the situation this way:

In the past 10 years, the district has added 1,000 more students and two more additions are being built.

Some of the increase in enrollment and decrease in assessed valuation per student resulted from the annexation of the Aroma Park District, adding to the tax base three Dutch-owned business-Japanese and to army control of all Dutch business in wealthy northern Sumatra.

MEANWHILE, THE cost of educating the present enrollment has gone up—just like everything else. Salary increases resulting from the district's salary formula will amount to more than $80,000 for 1958-59.

The formula ends next year. But the salaries are not the only thing that will increase. The cost of the kind Kankakee must pay if it wants to compete with other districts for teachers, regardless of how the exact figures are arrived at, board members believe.

The cost of janitors, secretaries, classroom supplies, library books, utilities and other materials and personnel also has increased.

At the same time, the increase in assessed valuation of property in the district has not kept pace with the increase in the number of pupils. This means that the assessed valuation per student has dropped considerably.

IT REACHED a peak of $22,300 per pupil in 1950-51. This year the assessed valuation per student is estimated at $17,300.

What does all this mean? If the district wants to maintain its present educational program it will need increased aid from the state or federal government or an increase in its tax limit within three or four years, say the board members.

1958-59 tax levy will use up the last eight cents of the 40-cent increase in the educational fund rate authorized by the 1955, 1956 and 1957 bond issues.

Also, in two or three years, the district will need more classrooms which would require a bond issue, the board estimates.

"We hope people will stay fully posted on these problems because it is they who have to decide the answers," says Board President Roy Strama.

The board sees only two possible alternatives to more classrooms and more money from local or state sources.

The first is to raise the tax rate. The board estimates that this can be done, but it will hurt the taxpayers.

The second is to ask for more money from the state or federal government. The board estimates that this can be done, but it will hurt the taxpayers.

3 Big Dutch Banks Seized In Indonesia

Army Control Of Businesses Spreads In North Sumatra

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UP)—The mass take-over of Dutch interests in Indonesia spread Saturday to three Dutch-owned banks—Jabara and to army control of all Dutch business in wealthy northern Sumatra.

Some American and British citizens, however, holding their national flags over their homes and offices as a means of identifying them during the spreading campaign to eliminate Dutch influences.

Depositors were reported to have started a run on three banks when employees seized them and ran up the red and white Indonesian flag over the bank building.

THE ARMY commander in North Sumatra, Lt. Col. Djarni Ginting, assumed administrative control over Dutch enterprises in his area in order to avoid "excesses."

His communiqué said the army stepped in because of "current developments."

Various labor unions announced their support of the government's campaign to dislodge the Dutch from the nation's economic life.

The employees of the huge KPM international shipping line announced through their union that they supported the government's seizure of the line.

Its vessels were being held in harbors where the government announced it would be returned.

Fire Thor Rocket Out Over Atlantic

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (U) — The United States figuratively picked up the pieces of its exploded Vanguard satellite launcher Saturday and sought to carry on. Officials were clamping down on publicity and there were signs the next attempt would be made with a little fanfare as possible.

There were signs of a clampdown in the wake of criticism that the Vanguard attempt got too much of a publicity buildup, resulting in damage to American prestige around the world when the effort failed.

At Cape Canaveral, somebody clamped the lid on news out of the nation's missile test center. At a conference with reporters, which he said was being held only because of a "prior commitment," J. Paul Walsh, deputy director of the Vanguard project, read a formal statement, saying:

"I have answered all the questions that have been put to us since the program began within the limits of my ability, and I am now on my way to concentrate on the next stage of the Vanguard program."

Claim Soviet Rocket Fell In Alaska Area

RUSSIAN SCIENTISTS REQUEST RETURN OF BROKEN REMNANTS

MOSCOW (UP) — Russia said Saturday night the broken remnants of the Sputnik 1 rocket fell "in the territory of Alaska and the West Coast of North America" last Sunday. Soviet scientists "requested" the return of the pieces.

A blaring object was spotted falling towards the U. S. Army post at Fort Greely, Alaska, last Sunday at 3 p.m. An Air Force helicopter from Ladd Air Force Base in Fairbanks searched for it. The object was seen by a number of witnesses.

The Defense Department in Washington disclosed that the Thor "landed short of the intended target area" though the launching was "successfully carried out." There was no information as to how far short the weapon fell. It is designed to be of 1,500-mile range.

The Thor was reported unofficially to be carrying for the first time a new-type guidance "brain."

ent questions regarding our local school system. The answers to these questions will ultimately affect our national survival as well as our pocketbook.

1. Is the curriculum of our school system too broad? Are we trying to teach too many children too many things? Are we scattering our efforts among objectives which are relatively unimportant?

2. Are our teachers really turning out a good product, or are they merely teaching teachers how to teach, but not the subjects they are supposed to teach?

3. Do we reward adequately a good teacher? Should the teachers' tenure law be made more flexible so that inadequate teachers may be more readily removed? Should a merit system, with salary incentive for superior teachers, be adopted?

4. Are we not ourselves partly to blame in that we do not take enough year-round interest in our schools and the daily school lives of our children? Is it not true that many parents today object if their children have home work to do and expect their children to be promoted each year regardless of effort?

5. Do we promote our students adequately for breadth and depth of their learning? Are we offering opportunity and challenge for the superior, the brilliant student?

6. Do we have too many non-academic burdens on our schools? Should we not make more efficient use of our school buildings by increasing the number of hours per week the classrooms and laboratories are in use, or perhaps by testing four quarters, 11-month school years as a means of achieving both economy and curriculum enrichment?

These are some of the questions which have been asked in recent months, particularly since the advent of Sputniks I and II. No matter what the Russians do or do not do, we need better schools and a better educational product than we are getting today.

The Journal does not pretend to know the answers to these questions, but is hopefully raising them for public discussion. Comments from readers and educators are invited.

where and "nobody knows anything about it," said one of the men who took the rocket off on American soil.

The fact that the rocket went into its fiery death plunge from space to the denser atmosphere of earth where it was burned by friction was reported last weekend by scientists at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass., and the Jodrell Bank Observatory of Manchester University in Britain.

But it was not until Khrushchev spoke Friday that the Soviets had confirmed the rocket had fallen. The rocket had launched the first Sputnik Oct. 4 and stayed in the atmosphere for 21 days, compared with the spherical Sputnik I, gave it less resistance to the laws of gravity and friction. The Sputnik still is aloft and going strong, as is the heavier Sputnik II.

most from individual attention in smaller classes.

After that, one alternative would be double shifts. Another would be to have one teacher for two classes.

A few districts have tried these emergency measures, according to Dr. Marinaccio. All have been within a short time, usually one or two years, he told the board.

"Meanwhile, the educational program is so disrupted that it takes five years to get it back to where it was to begin with," he said.

Dr. Marinaccio also said there is little or no saving in operating cost because of added expense for teaching services. The only material saving is in the cost of classroom construction and equipment, he pointed out.

In studying its financial situation, the Kankakee board has completed the tax rates of 14 districts with which Kankakee has been comparing itself for salary purposes.

"KANKAKEE'S TOTAL school tax rate ranks third when listed among five other dominant units (12 districts) in the group.

The total school tax rates per $100 valuation in these districts include:

Urbana—$1.92.

Decatur—$1.82.

Kankakee—$1.873.

Champaign—$1.792.

Bloomington—$1.715.

Danville—$1.61.

These communities, like Kankakee, have only one school district.

Urges Ministers To Heed Views Of Congregation

CHICAGO (JNS)—Ministers should spend less time preaching and more time listening to the wisdom of their congregations, a Protestant church leader said Saturday.

"The greatest undeveloped resource of the Protestant churches today is the unused power of the laity," Dr. Truman B. Douglas of New York City told a United Church of Christ meeting.

Douglas is secretary of the president of the Congregational Christian Churches' Board of Home Missions. He addressed the meeting of the Laymen's Fellowship of Congregational Christian Churches in Chicago.

"The Protestant denominations spend a large amount of thought, effort and money on the recruiting, training and effective use of the ministry," Douglas said. "This is a necessary task. But a far more urgent task at this juncture in the life of the world is the recruiting, training and effective use of genuinely responsible Christian laity."

Teenage Manners Better Than Adults

Jeff Chandler Asks A Little Courtesy From Movie Fans

HOLLYWOOD — Jeff Chandler, admittedly peeved, says some adult movie fans could learn good manners from the teenagers.

Back from a tour, Chandler reports some unpleasant experiences. "In all fairness," he says, "the offenders are only a minority but they can make it rough on a star—and on the movie patrons who have good manners."

Jeff found in Pittsburgh he couldn't finish a meal. "A friend of mine finally took me out to a little restaurant at 2 o'clock in the morning for some ham and eggs. He promised me that the place was so dark that no one would even recognize me, let alone bother me."

"I DIDN'T GET the first bite to my mouth until some woman dragged her boy friend over to my table and kept repeating: 'Hey, Jeff, doesn't this guy look like Ralph Bellamy? And I couldn't finish my ham and eggs.'"

In Cleveland in another restaurant, Chandler says, "I was sitting at a table with a friend of mine. A woman came over to my table and said: 'Hey, Jeff, say hello to my girl friend.'"

"I had to," he says. "I hope she doesn't tell her husband how she got to talk to Jeff Chandler."

At Milwaukee, where he attended the recent World Series, he was pestered by adult autograph hunters. "I know the public put me where I am today and I'm grateful for it," he says. "But it's an important thing, even to movie stars."

EDDIE FISHER, after becoming wealthy as a singer, is now taking his own medicine.

The reason: He's singing such longish stuff as "Tosca."

"For 'Dungras Doll' you don't need lessons, 'Tosca' you do," exclaims Fisher.

Join To Bring Back Tradition

Reminiscence about childhood Christmas dinners during the 1950s will be the theme of a meeting in downtown Chicago on a sweltering summer afternoon has given rebirth to one of America's oldest holiday traditions—a gift of meat under the Christmas tree.

This year, inspired by campaigns of the National Livestock and Meat Board and the Illinois Agricultural Association, many Americans will return to this gay Noel practice.

Meat packing firms have joined the revival by producing special Christmas wrappings for beef roasts, steaks, pork loins, fresh and smoked hams, Canadian-style and long-smoke bacon, salami, spicy Italian hams and other Christmas meats.

"We would make quite a dent in the farm surplus picture if three or four million farm families would fill their Christmas gift for their city friends with meat or some other farm product," said Charles B. Slemmon, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Reds Won't Quit Hungary Until U.S. Leaves Europe

BUDAPEST — A Hungarian government spokesman said Saturday the Russian army will not withdraw from Hungary until U.S. troops leave Europe.

The statement was made at a news conference by Robert Boros, deputy press chief of the Hungarian foreign ministry.

Boros refused to give any information about reports that Gen. Pal Maleter, hero of last year's anti-Russian revolution is on secret trial in Budapest or already has been condemned.

Nor would he say whether Imre Nagy, the moderate Communist who took over as premier during the revolt and was ousted by the Russians, will be tried. Nagy is reported in exile in Romania.

Stocks Steady Despite Week Of Bad News

NEW YORK (UP) — Stocks lost only 1.3 per cent in their general average during the past week in the face of many adverse news items, capped by failure of the U.S. satellite to get off the ground.

Statistics available generally were those of the Thanksgiving week and these made a very poor showing compared with a year ago, largely because the holiday was a week earlier.

However, car loadings had their poorest Thanksgiving week since 1934. Electricity output showed its first year-to-year decline since early 1949. Building dipped from the previous week and a very poor retail trade was well below a year ago, and the gains anticipated for the Christmas season were less than should be recorded on the basis of population increase.

ADDED TO THESE were predictions of manufacturers that profits would be pinched further in 1958 even though sales are expected to rise.

Was a move of the Federal Reserve to pump more credit into the economy through purchases of government notes. This might have been helpful Friday had it not been for the Vanguard failure.

Anticipation of hope the government would move to build more atomic ships to cope with the Russian threats led to good demand for shipbuilding issues. American Ship Building rose 7 1/2 points on the week and New York Shipbuilding gained 6 1/2. Bath Iron Works rose up 4 1/2 and Newport News Shipbuilding gained 3 1/2.

Oils were hurt by some price cuts. Domestic didn't fare too badly, however, and widest losses came into the international where Gulf and Royal Dutch each lost more than 3. Metals enjoyed a good market for a time on hopes European and African producers would cut production.

TIRES RESPONDED to predictions of a record 1957 and prospects for further gains in 1958. Their advances ranged to more than 5 points in the morning. Automobile production gained on the week but was under the level of a year ago. Tobacco ruled strong.

Utilities did fairly well with their average on Thursday setting a new high since Sept. 19. They would have done much better except for weakness late in the week in some of the pipeline issues where Panhandle lost nearly 4 points.

Of this week's 10 most active issues Lillard stood out with a rise of 2 1/2 points in sixth place and Boeing, in tenth position, was up 1. North American Aviation led with Jersey Standard second, Martin third, Sperry Rand fourth, and General Motors fifth. The top five lost fractions.

Mystery Limping Cow Center Of Accident Suit

CHICAGO — The case of the mysterious limping cow supposed to have caused an accident leading to a $10,000 damage suit centered Friday on testimony that the animal returned to the scene of its crime.

Jack R. Meyers, 38, a state policeman of Woodstock, Ill., testified he saw the cow limping away from the scene of a wrecked car to two hours after the accident on U.S. 20 near Mingo, Ill.

The suit was brought by Paul F. Belter, 36, Beloit, Wis., who claimed the cow, ambulating down the center of the road in August 1955, caused him to ditch his car. He named as defendants in the suit the operators of a farm adjacent to the scene of the accident. They are Charles Erb, 63, and Louis Franklin.

Belter claimed he later saw the cow limping about in their herd, but the defendants said they didn't own any such animal.

The suit was brought to a federal court in Chicago, since defendant and plaintiff live in different states.

26-Year-Old Fine Paid Off By Man

SPRINGFIELD — Frank Zito, who was rounded up last month in New York at what police described as a convention of hoodlums, paid off a 1931 bootlegging fine Friday.

Zito's attorney, Robert Heckenkamp, brought a $3,000 cashiers' check into U.S. District Court. The check was signed by Zito's wife.

The 64-year-old Zito was fined $10,000 and sentenced to two years in prison in 1931 for a prohibition violation. He paid off $950, but apparently never the remainder. Court officials were not available to explain why the fine was allowed to ride on the books so long.

Zito was one of 64 men rounded up by police at Apalachicola, N.Y. Electricity output showed its first year-to-year decline since early 1949. Building dipped from the previous week and a very poor retail trade was well below a year ago, and the gains anticipated for the Christmas season were less than should be recorded on the basis of population increase.

Tighter Allied Cooperation Sought

Meyer moved into the slot vacated by John E. King, Wheaton.

Here Are Knotty Problems NATO Conference Faces

(Editor's Note—Government chiefs of the Western Allies gather Dec. 16 against the ominous backdrop of growing Soviet missile power. Can they remove the obstacles in the path to strength and unity? A veteran foreign correspondent analyzes the prospects.)

By STANLEY JOHNSON

PARIS — Galvanized by Soviet Sputniks and massive missile advances, government chiefs of the NATO nations meet here next week determined to forge a dynamic new program to push the West ahead of the Russians.

But the great question is: Can they do it?

Can dissensions and rivalries within the Western Alliance be put aside? Can the question of whether the Vice President Nixon would come to Paris caused little anxiety here. The general feeling in NATO circles is that the vice president has developed into a top-ranking international diplomat and it would be worthwhile to see him.

Among other things, the American delegation—which will also include Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Defense Secretary Neil McElroy—is expected to determine to strengthen the Alliance so far as possible has by no means been unanimous on this particular issue. West Germany is reluctant to become a rocket base while France has already asked which strictly limits American sharing of atomic secrets.

Even before this legislative action is possible, the United States is expected to pledge a share-out of missiles—when it has any to share—even though keeping control of nuclear warheads in its own hands.

THIS LEADS directly to one of the thorniest problems the conference must face: Which other NATO powers are willing to face certain Russian wrath for possession of these instruments?

Determination to strengthen the Alliance so far as possible has by no means been unanimous on this particular issue. West Germany is reluctant to become a rocket base while France has already asked which strictly limits American sharing of atomic secrets.

Even before this legislative action is possible, the United States is expected to pledge a share-out of missiles—when it has any to share—even though keeping control of nuclear warheads in its own hands.

Since NATO's European military chief is an American—currently Gen. Lauris Norstad—this would ease U.S. congressional action. On the political front, chief efforts will be to set up some form of prior consultation before one member takes an important action which will affect others.

The United States, however, has made it plain it cannot tie its hands because its commitments worldwide and not just confined to the NATO area.

Hate Goes Underground

The Kohler Strike--It's Not Winning, But Who's Losing

SHEBOYGAN, Wis.—After 3½ years, the sound and fury of the country's longest major strike have subsided into a quiet war of minegraph machines.

Each side in the strike at the Kohler Co., makers of bathroom fixtures, continues to roll out opposing statements. But the violence—the shouting, the shoving, the smashing of windows and splintering of paint on private homes—has long since vanished.

What remains, among people directly affected, is hate—a deep, abiding, stone hate.

BUT EVEN HATE has gone underground. After so long a time it becomes pointless to call your neighbor names, to paint "scab" on his sidewalk, to spit as he goes by. You have not moved him, he has not moved you. So you just don't talk and you go on hating each other across 30 feet of lawn.

Even now, 40 months later, some marriages continue to break up in Sheboygan because of the strike and this is a loss.

is not taken lightly. Even now, brothers who split over the strike still don't talk, don't recognize each other on the street.

Few people now discuss the strike. Most try to forget it—with varying success. For obvious business reasons, merchants and town boosters shudder every time the national spotlight focuses on Sheboygan as a strike-torn town.

But the spotlight is swinging back. Early in January, the Senate Fact-Finding Committee is expected to take up the dispute, the early violence, the national boycott of Kohler products by the United Automobile Workers.

The company, the town's biggest single employer, continues to operate with men who never favored the strike, with strikers who weakened and went back, with outsiders who moved into town or commute from other communities.

Most of the other strikers now work elsewhere—in furniture or toy or enamelware plants in Sheboygan, in breweries or steel plants in Milwaukee, 60 miles away. Many have moved out of the state completely.

BUT THE STRIKE goes on and so does life in Sheboygan. To the visitor, it appears no different from many towns in the Midwest. It is 10 million dollars on the strike, continue to pour money into it?

"As far as we're concerned," said L. L. Smith, Kohler vice president, "we can go on this way forever. Our sales suffered in 1954, but we finished the year in the black. They have increased every year since then. Neither the strike nor the boycott is having an adverse effect on our business."

Being almost wholly family-owned, the company does not have to publish financial statements.

"Their business has dropped 30 to 50 per cent," says Robert Treuer, UAW international representative. "Eventually, our economic pressure will bring them around. We can go on a long time too. There are now only 250 men on our strike assistance rolls as compared to 2,000 at the peak. Our strike costs have dropped from $350,000 a month to $45,000 a month."

time the pickets leave their sign standing unattended at the gate and retire to a town to play a Teutonic card game, "schachkopf."

In town, the UAW maintains strike headquarters over Klein's clothing store, directs its national boycott, grinds out strike bulletins and tries to keep the issues alive with a 15-minute, five-day a week broadcast.

The strike began April 8, 1954, with the question of union security in the foreground and the issues of wage and pension increases and arbitration procedures in the background. But the original issues have long since been obscured by the very length of the strike, by the resultant complexities of charge and countercharge.

ALL EFFORTS to bring and keep both sides together across a table have failed. In October, a trial examiner of the National Labor Relations Board found the company guilty of unfair labor practices and recommended that it be ordered to bargain in good faith and to rehire most of the strikers. All this promises a long court fight while the strike continues.

How much longer can either side continue? Can the company stand up under the UAW boycott? Can many towns in the Midwest, its

For two years, the father refused to see Bill, but, according to other members of the family, the mother saw her son "on the sly." Bill brought over a shirt for Father's Day. His father scorned it. "I don't need your money," he said. "I can buy my own."

But time melted him—also the fact that he became eligible for Social Security and would never return to work. He now sees Bill. "I was mad for a long time," but who is to blame? People are losing. Individual human beings are

He was worried about losing his house. I still don't like it—that he's got to go to jail."

"AFTER ALL," says Mrs. Zale, a big, stolid woman, "you can't keep mad to the last minute."

But Joseph Zale Jr. is still mad at Bill. He intends to stay that way. He has seen Bill only once since the latter returned to Kohler, and that was accidental. Last summer he visited his parent's home and it had to be taken apart to make it stop.

The sight of the hardy little moon bouncing around on the ground after the explosion, instead of spinning around the earth as was intended, was the saddest sight to the heart-breaking failure of the Vanguard missile.

The 6-inch satellite never lost its beep-beep even on the ground and it had to be taken apart to make it stop.

It survived the explosion that ripped the guts out of the 11 tons of the mighty rocket. The blast tossed the four-pound moon a few feet into the air.

But as the baby moon wobbled crazily on its six long antennae, it transmitted its beep-beep merrily, according to J. Paul Walsh, deputy commander of the Navy Vanguard project.

THE SATELLITE was balanced gently on top of the third stage which was enclosed by the second stage of the Vanguard.

CHICAGO (UP)—A man was ambushed and killed on a Chicago street early Saturday under mysterious circumstances.

The victim, Michael J. Sabo, 36, year-old carpenter for the Illinois Central Railroad, was killed by a stranger who spotted him earlier in a tavern, police said.

A friend of the victim, Daniel Ketchik, 22, gave police this account.

When he and Sabo left a South Side tavern after a drink, two men at the other end of the bar pushed out hurriedly ahead of them.

Ketchik and Sabo walked on Cottage Grove Avenue in the 9300 block and spotted one of the men hiding at a passageway and the other standing on the sidewalk ahead of them.

A shot rang out. Sabo slumped to the ground with a fatal bullet wound in the heart and the two men sped off in a light colored 1947 model automobile.

Christmas Trees In Your Color Choice

How would you like a jet black Christmas tree this year? Don't laugh. For that's one of the new shades trees are being flocked. And it may prove to be a popular one.

Flocking is a process of spraying glue and finely ground colorful rayon on a tree. And the idea is growing more popular every year.

The most popular colors are white, pink and blue.

But the old traditional green tree hasn't lost its popularity and about 15,000 will find their way into Kankakee homes in the next few weeks.

MOM AND DAD will buy their tree from any one of a score of local outlets or may even drive out in the country and cut one down.

HE ALSO STATED that Christmas tree prices should be a little lower this year over last and that flocked trees will also be lower in price.

Although more and more trees are locally grown, the vast majority of them still come into the area from Wisconsin.

The Christmas tree series since Negroes have begun moving into the former all-white Fountain Heights section in West Birmingham.

Two other Negro families recently moved into the section without being harmed. Earlier a house bought by a Negro widow will have a total of 100 trees which will be sold for $1.00 each.

The section has become known as "dynamite hill."

While property owners have been an association designed to prevent sales of Fountain Heights homes to Negroes, although race isn't mentioned in a statement of policy announced by leaders of the organization.

Discard Moon Though It Survived Blast

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)—The design of the baby aluminum moon inside the Vanguard saved the little satellite from total destruction Friday when the rocket exploded.

How British, U. S. Unions Differ

LONDON (NEA)—There are no Dave Becks or Jimmy Hoffas in the British trade union movement. Racketeering practices such as have recently been uncovered in the Teamsters' Union in the United States are practically unknown in Britain.

The kick-back, the pay-off, the shakedown and various other forms of graft are unheard of. If a British union official dipped his hands into the till he would be brought speedily to justice, held up in public censure.

The reason for this is that a majority of British trade unions are registered under the 1924 Friendly Societies Registry Act, and their books are open to inspection by any member of the British public.

THE UNIQUE system which has the wholehearted endorsement of the Trades Union Congress, is now being closely studied by American racket busters with a view to its application to the United States. Originally set up to protect fraternal orders and sickness benefit societies, the registry now provides protection for 8,500,000 workers, representing 60 per cent of British trade union membership. Here's how it works:

Union registration is compulsory. It makes public its accounts, but by doing so the union automatically exempts its funds from taxation.

To be registered, a union must submit a copy of its rules and by-laws, together with the names of its officers, to the Registry of Friendly Societies, and agree to file an annual return of how its funds were spent.

The payment of a half-crown (about 30 cents) entitles any rank-and-file unionist—or any member of the British public—for that matter—to examine these union accounts, filed at the registry headquarters.

THERE, SET OUT in black and white for all to see, are the sums the union has paid out as salaries, benefits, expense accounts for union officials, legal fees, political contributions.

Not the least amazing feature of Britain's union registration system is that the unions themselves like it. At Trades Union Congress headquarters not one objection to registration is raised. In fact, it is regarded not only as good ethics, but as a sound union management principle.

There are only three unions of over 100,000 membership—those covering post office workers, local government officers and teachers—that have not registered. Officials of the Post Office Workers Union, with 160,000 members, are hazy as to why the union has failed to register.

One official said that it was an "historical hang-over" dating back to 1913, when an objection to post office workers registering had been raised at a union meeting.

Chiefly responsible for the smooth functioning of the union registration is the chief registrar, 65-year-old Sir Cecil Crabbe, the son of a Yorkshire clergyman. Crabbe, who graduated from Sandhurst, military college, and served with the Indian Army, acts as a sort of watchdog of union funds, respected by workers and employers alike.

ONE OF THE EVILS which registration has eliminated is the co-mingling between union bosses and corrupt politicians.

A British trade union may contribute directly to the British labor party or to individual candidates, but in order to do so it

File Manslaughter Charge Against Killer Of Husband

SPRINGFIELD (U.P.)—A manslaughter charge has been placed against Mrs. Helen Crozier, 31, in the shooting slaying of her husband Wednesday.

Mrs. Crozier told police she shot Freeman Crozier, also 31, accidentally while practicing to aim a shotgun he had handed her.

Earlier, she said, the couple had argued about his hunting trips and drinking.

Mrs. Crozier, mother of three children, waived preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Joseph Maddox Friday and was released on $2,500 bond.

Garbage Strike Hits New York

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Hotels, hospitals and restaurants in the metropolitan area were hit Friday night by a strike of 1,600 garbage collectors.

The walkout against 550 private carting firms halted all refuse removal at about 130,000 establishments in the city's five boroughs and parts of Westchester and Nassau counties.

Anticipating the walkout, New York City has prepared emergency stand-by procedures for removing garbage deemed a health or safety hazard by the health and fire departments.

Charge Legless Ex-Con Used Warden's Name On Bad Check

CHICAGO (U.P.)—A legless ex-convict faced charges Saturday that he forged the name of his former warden to a check shortly after his release from Minnesota State Prison.

FBI agents Friday arrested Kenneth Shields, 36, a native of Wauwatosa, Wis., on a fugitive warrant. He was seized at a hotel on the South Side.

RICHARD AUERBACH, agent in charge, said Shields was named in a warrant charging him with forging the name of D. A. Riga, prison warden at Stillwater, Minn., to a $111 check.

Shields was charged with cashing the check 10 days after his Nov. 7 release from prison, Auerbach said. He was released after serving two years for grand larceny.

Laymen Better Fitted To Spread Faith, Pastor Says

CHICAGO (U.P.)—A leader of the Congressional Christian Church has called laymen "better fitted" than the clergy to communicate the Christian faith.

The Rev. Truman B. Douglas, New York City, told a Congressional fellowship meeting Friday that laymen could outline ministers because they had not been trained in the "jargon" of theology.

"The unrealized power of Protestantism lies in its many millions of church members," Douglas said.

Nine 'Little Towns' Of Bethlehem In U. S. Living Up To Their Names

"O, Little Town of Bethlehem, How Still We See Thee Lie."

Nine "little towns of Bethlehem" and one not-so-small city proudly wearing that name borrow much of the spirit and atmosphere of the original Bethlehem for the United States during the Christmas season.

Although some of the Bethlehems consist of only a few houses, the citizens of each community give ample indication that they feel a special responsibility to carry on tradition which impelled the founders to choose that name, and for weeks some of their postmarks have been gracing the globe as a special embellishment for Yuletide cards and packages.

The thriving industrial city of Bethlehem, Pa., with a population of 70,000, is by far the most urban of the namesakes of the City of the Nativity, but none keeps brighter, a community tradition linked with its Old World name.

Founded in December, 1741, by religious exiles from Bohemia and Moravia, who came to America under the leadership of Bishop David Nitschmann, influenced by Count Zinzendorf, Bethlehem, Pa., again centers its Christmas celebration this year about the birth of the Christ.

Today it is a relatively prosperous city of less than 10,000 population with many good houses, and is five miles to the north, although it is across the line in Jordan.

The Grotto of the Nativity there is one of the great religious shrines of the earth, and the chief occupation is the manufacture and sale of mementoes made from mother-of-pearl, olive wood, and "dead sea stone."

The atmosphere of Bethlehem remains largely pastoral, and it has this Christmas Eve the most of the American communities which have taken its name.

AT BETHLEHEM, N. H., summer vacationers who swell the population to 6,000 are gone and on Christmas Eve the 1,000 year-round residents will listen to caroling groups of high school students making traditional tours along snowy roads in the White mountains. The small post office has been handling about a thousand extra pieces of mail each day, and William D. Laird, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Laird, RR 4, Kankakee, is at Red Canyon Range, N. M., taking part in annual practice firing of NIKE-AJAX guided missiles. He is a member of Battery A, 4th Missile Battalion, stationed at Homewood as part of the Chicago Garry air defense forces.

So light are the seeds of a tulip tree that about 14,000 are needed to make one pound.

Jay P. LaMore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orrel LaMore of Manteno and whose wife also lives in Manteno, has been honorably discharged from the Navy at Norfolk, Va.

Maurice G. Mietzner of Champaign is stationed at the Navy receiving station, Norfolk, Va.

Donald R. Rosendahl, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bowdler, 472 S. Broadway, has been promoted to specialist third class. He is serving with a signal battalion in Darmstadt, Germany.

It Could Happen To You—Here Are Tips On Avoiding A Crash

So you hope it won't happen to you! A serious accident on winter's icy, snow-packed roads. But what have you done to assure that it won't?

There is no real assurance against injury, death or damage to your car. The responsibility to take precautions is yours. No matter how good a driver you are, your car is still at stake if you are in poor repair. More than 40,000 persons died on United States highways last year, many of them because automobiles were in poor mechanical condition.

Community safety check lanes sponsored by Inter-Industry Highway Safety Committee, Washington, D. C., showed one out of every five cars checked was in need of repair for safe driving. ON KANKAKEE CITY streets in 1956 there were 238 accidents involving vehicles, with two persons killed and 65 injured. According to statistics compiled by Officer Robert Rogers the greatest incidence of accidents is during winter months when roads are hazardous.

Accidents are proportionally higher also on highways and country roads in winter. To drive safely on winter roads, you must know your car's condition. Check the top engine compartment, radiator, water pump, belts, tires, snow chains, lights, battery, steering mechanism, muffler and brakes. Over the condition of the engine and its component parts should be checked at the onset of winter to assure it won't break down and strand you along a highway.

YOU MIGHT THINK that the muffler's condition is relatively means watching out for the other fellow's mistakes. Have maximum control of foot pedals by adjusting the seat so your feet can rest fully on them. Proper acceleration or braking can often help avoid an accident. There are several things that can be done in this regard, but unless you're a cool-headed driver and know exactly what you are doing it is not advisable to attempt them. You might only make the situation worse.

For example, you see a car go out of control on ice and snow and it is sliding directly for your vehicle. If you stay in your present path you'll have a collision. Turning your front wheels either right or left and gunning the engine, or hitting the brakes hard to lock the wheels should make your auto skid out of the path of the oncoming car. However, you have to be cool-headed so you can quickly size up the situation and decide which way to make your car slide. It will not collide with other vehicles often helps.

IF YOU use snow tires you can start 25 per cent better on ice than if you have regular tires, according to the National Safety Council. Chains will increase traction rating to 231 per cent, and reinforced chains to 409 per cent. On loose snow, snow tires give 51 per cent better traction, and reinforced chains 313 per cent. Traveling 20 miles an hour on ice you need 155 feet to stop on regular tires. With snow tires, you need 117 feet. With reinforced chains, you need 77 feet. On packed snow, you need 60 feet to stop with regular tires, 52 with snow tires, 46 with chains and 38 with reinforced chains.

ONCE YOUR CAR IS in good condition and properly equipped for winter driving, the rest is up to you, driver. And that also

THIS COULD HAPPEN TO YOU! Any number of things could have caused this accident. In this case the driver applied the brakes too hard, the car spun and rolled. It happened a mile north of Maitland on Route 54, Jan. 13, 1957. Learn to drive safely on winter roads and you can avoid this kind of trouble. The driver of this car suffered critical spinal injuries, in addition to ruining the car. (Journal photo) don't try it! A good way to attack this problem is to make up hypothetical possibilities ahead of time, even your own skid out of the path of a car. Laid out-end in front of rear wheels they'll get you out of a lot of slippery spots. Bundle them up and stow in the trunk.

IF your car begins to skid, don't panic. Above all drive at reduced speed on ice and snow. And in a ticklish situation keep a cool head.

Communists Plan To Heckle NATO

PARIS (UP)—The French Communist party announced plans today for a nationwide campaign aimed at dissuading the forthcoming NATO summit conference from establishing American missile bases in Europe. The party's general committee said it would send delegations to agitate at the Paris meetings Dec. 10-13 and to poster President Eisenhower or Vice President Richard M. Nixon with "peace" petitions.

Momence Izaak Walton League To Hold Fox Drive

MOMENCE (JNS)—The December meeting of the Izaak Walton League was held Wednesday night in the American Legion Home. President J. W. Snow presided. The league decided to hold a fox drive, Ray Finley and Donald Goodell were appointed to the arrangements committee.

The making of bird feeders from a special arrangement of wire was discussed. Walter Platenka Jr. will make several for display at the next meeting. It is thought these will make possible the feeding of larger and more solid food such as bread, suet, etc. The annual Christmas dinner of money club was held at the home of Mrs. M. J. Harwood. The next meeting is planned for Jan. 8 when nominations will be made for officers.

Martinton Society Holds Christmas Party, Exchange

MARTINTON (JNS)—A Christmas "party" was held during the social hour at a meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the Martinton Church of Christ on Wednesday night in Mrs. Ephraim Morissette's home.

There was an exchange of gifts from under a lighted Christmas tree. Mrs. Donald Harwood, president, conducted the missionary and business sessions.

The Scripture lesson, taken from the second chapter of St. Luke, was read by Mrs. Lizzie Morrison. The Missionary lesson was on the work being done in Korea. The offering will be sent to Miss Flora Maye Guernsey, who is engaged in mission work in that country. Miss Guernsey spoke in the church here several years ago.

Mrs. Arnold Focken, secretary pro tem, read a number of letters from missionaries who had received offerings from the society.

At Mrs. Harwood's request, the names of some of the residents at the Orphan's and Old Peoples' Home, St. Louis, Mo., had been sent here. The members each took one or more of these names and Christmas gifts will be sent later than Saturday. The annual Christmas dinner of money club was held at the home of Mrs. M. J. Harwood. The next meeting is planned for Jan. 8 when nominations will be made for officers.

$1 Billion Mediterranean Of The New World

U. S. Side Of The Seaway To Be Ready Next July

MASSENA, N. Y. (UP)—Men are moving water and earth to form what may be known as the nation's new north coast. A broader sense — as men of imagination already have suggested — is an American Mediterranean.

What these men are talking about is the end result of the work on the St. Lawrence Seaway and related projects on the Great Lakes.

THE ON-THE-SCENE supervisor of the U. S. share of the seaway construction, Martin W. O'Sullivan, calls the over-all river-lake-improvement plan "the most ambitious integrated navigation program ever undertaken on this planet."

Its full eventual cost is reckoned at a billion dollars. The main purpose is to deepen the water route from the present 14 feet in the shallow sections to 27 feet so bigger ships can carry heavier cargoes through it.

The major work now is being done along both sides of the St. Lawrence. "We're ahead of schedule," O'Sullivan reported. "We've had a lot of work done in the last few months."

Chin and the O'Sullivan are constructing a total of seven locks in four new waterways to bypass rapids and to get around power structures being built in a hilly section of the river.

The locks also will provide a series of steps in the river-lake system that slopes up from sea level at the Atlantic end to 602 feet above sea level at the Lake Superior end.

MAKING THE OBLONG hole in the ground to contain it was quite a task in itself. Work crews had to dig up three million yards of glacial till and marine clay.

The Grasse River lock — it's also 800 feet long — the Eisenhower lock and the others on the Canadian side are eye-catching features of the work in progress at scattered points along a 185-mile stretch of the St. Lawrence between Lake Ontario and Montreal.

Now the society plans another launching, but with an electric service on the rocket to bring the rocket safely to the ground by parachute. Plans are to fire the rocket either Dec. 22 or Jan. 5.

The rocket society has 10 members, age 14 to 17 and is advised by a high school physical-chemistry teacher. The group has made 35 successful rocket launches in 110 attempts over a two-year period.

The Mouse-bearing rocket last week reached an altitude of about 1,000 feet.

STATION LINEUP
AKRON, Ohio — Portage Terrace in nearby Cuyahoga Falls is gaining the nickname "Gasoline Alley." In a 1.4-mile distance, there are 11 service stations. One has a sign: "Better fill up here—last station for 50 feet."

Man, Escaping Incinerator Death, Seized As Drunk

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP)—A man who sought refuge from the rain narrowly escaped death in a 1,000-degree incinerator Friday.

Police said the 37-year-old man crawled into a large trash container behind a public library to get out of the rain, taking a bottle of wine with him. A dump truck picked up the container and the man, Clarence H. Shackelford, was dropped into a 35-foot pit in front of the incinerator. A crane operator spotted the man's arm protruding from the debris and he was rescued moments before a power shovel came down for another

Buckley-Loda Mothers Plan Holiday Event

BUCKLEY (JNS)—The Buckley-Loda Mothers Club will hold its Christmas meeting Monday at 1:30 p.m. at the Loda Grade School gymnasium.

Pupils will present the program. An exchange of two dozen cookies or a pound of candy, with the enclosed recipe, will be featured. Each member with a pre-school child present will bring a 25-cent exchange gift.

Shackelford was arrested on a drunkenness charge.

Concrete Block Worth Fortune

Inspector John Kellner holds a hammer while Detective Sgt. Earl Leedle holds a chisel to a cement block that contained $300,000 worth of diamonds taken in a tear-gas robbery last month of a New York diamond merchant. The precious loot was recovered in Detroit Friday behind the home of Stanley Novak, 27, Novak is being held along with his brother, Thomas Novak, 22, and Philip D. DePalma, 28, for investigation of armed robbery. DePalma admitted planning the robbery, implicating the brothers after an argument as to how to dispose of the gems. (UPI)

B-47 Bomber
Crash Kills
4 Crewmen

SHREVEPORT, La. (UP) — A huge B-47 Stratojet bomber, its right wingtip dragging against the concrete runway, crashed and burned in a take-off attempt at nearby Barksdale Air Force Base Friday, killing all four crewmen aboard.

The plane slid off the concrete and into a muddy field seconds after its commander radioed he was canceling the flight.

Witnesses said a wheel broke loose from the craft as it gathered speed for the takeoff causing the wing to drag on the runway.

CAPT. JACK E. Tarquhar of Yorktown, Tex., radioed the operations tower he was "aborting" — Air Force talk for canceling — the flight as the plane began racing down the runway, base officials said.

The Air Force identified the other crewmen as Capt. John F. Dent, Jr., of Clinton, Md., pilot; Capt. Jack W. Duncan, age given as 30, of Toledo, Ohio; observer; and 1st Lt. Carlton A. Bostelle, 37, of the Barksdale Base.

Royal Neighbors
Of Martinton
To Elect Officers

MARTINTON (JNS) — The annual election of officers of Blazer Royal Neighbor Camp 143 will be held at a meeting Wednesday night in the Modern Woodman Hall.

Other features of the meeting will be the initiation of a class of candidates and a Christmas party and gift exchange.

Those having birthdays this month will be honored. Hostesses will be Mrs. Emory Baron, Mrs. Eldon Miles, Mrs. William Fleisher and Mrs. Virgil McCullough, with Mrs. James Davis as chairman.

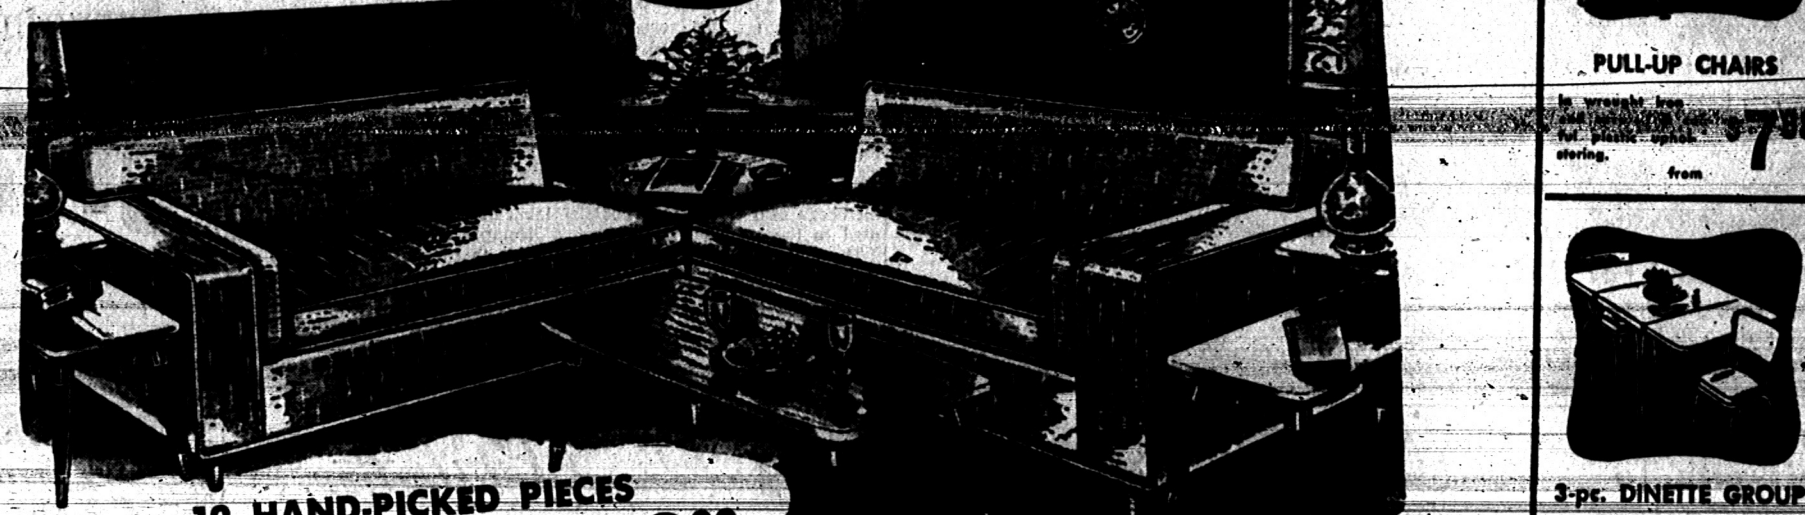

Seven members of the Martinton Home Bureau unit met Friday night in Mrs. Lawrence Corbin's home to work on the sashoon ribbon project. This is a fund raising project in which all of the units in the county are participating. Mrs. Walter Latoune was a guest.

A/C and Mrs. Richard LaSage returned Tuesday to Sweetwater, Texas, where he is stationed with the Air Force. They had been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin LaSage, and other relatives and friends while he was on furlough. LaSage is being transferred to an Air Force Base south of Sweetwater.

Scientists Say Failures To Be Expected

Some Legislators Fearful After U. S. Satellite Flop

WASHINGTON (U)—Some Congress members said Saturday the failure of America's first attempt to launch an earth satellite indicates it may take a long, hard pull to catch up with Russia in missile development. But other officials and some scientists, while voicing disquiet, cautioned against over-emphasizing its importance. Several of the scientists said that in tests of that sort, such failures must be expected. President Eisenhower, spending the weekend at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm, was pictured as disappointed at the explosion of the satellite's carrier rocket at Cape Canaveral, Fla. White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Eisenhower had asked the Defense Department for a full report. This was expected to take some time. In New York, Vice President Nixon said he, too, was disappointed. But Nixon said he had "every confidence" in the eventual success of the U. S. satellite program. He said the program was "one of those things which, given to this test, some Congress members said the buildup contributed to the subsequent letdown. The Russians, who launched the satellite, said the failure shows that "our lag in missile development is not something which can be made up in a few short weeks."

Top Defense Department officials indicated no great alarm at the satellite launching failure. As he left for Paris to attend a NATO meeting, Secretary of Defense McElroy said "Of course it was disappointing, but it was not too surprising because it was our first try." McElroy said the Navy's Vanguard satellite project is "a very good hands," adding: "We will proceed under plans previously made."

The Army has been ordered to prepare for a satellite launching, using its Jupiter-C Research rocket. McElroy said it is very unlikely the Army would launch a satellite before the Navy's Vanguard scientists mount another launching test. There were indications Army launching effort could not come for some weeks. Deputy Secretary of Defense Donald A. Quarles said "We of course regret the failure but regard it as an incident in the perfection of the Vanguard satellite system."

At the United Nations, several diplomats expressed regret at the U. S. satellite failure. One of them was Russian Delegate Arkady A. Sobolev. In Britain, some newspapers attacked the American failure. Others approached it solemnly. An Italian Communist newspaper proclaimed the launching failure "a very great defeat for the American technique and industry."

Non-Communist press in Rome was disappointed. One of those who professed to be disappointed in the satellite launchers, said the failure shows that "our lag in missile development is not something which can be made up in a few short weeks."

Continue To Seek Missing Girl

Ernest Herman (left) and Edward Sauber check the inside of an abandoned chest under a home in Sycamore, Ill., as they engage in a hunt for Marie Riddolph, 7, who has been missing from her home since Tuesday. ### Etna Eruption Violence Increases U. S. Missile Sites Approved By Britain

CATANIA, Sicily (U)—Black ash coated the snow-capped peak of Mt. Etna Saturday as the big volcano rumbled with new explosion and poured out a lava stream more than a half mile wide. The eruption, which began a month ago, appeared to be increasing in violence. Experienced observers said there was no danger yet to villages and hamlets miles down the mountain. Location on British soil of the 1,500-mile-range missiles, capable of carrying nuclear warheads, will put them within striking distance of Soviet targets. The missiles are American made; the base sites will be supplied by the British and the estimated $4 million dollar cost will be mainly borne by Britain. The arrangement which has been substantially agreed to between American and British negotiators and military experts calls for three of the missiles bases to be run by Britain and one by the U. S. Air Force.

WASHINGTON (U)—The United States and Britain have worked out plans for an early start on construction of launching sites for four squadrons of intermediate range ballistic missiles in the British Isles. The first of these squadrons is expected to be set up within the next year.

General, Church Leader Differ On How U. S. Should Deter War

ST. LOUIS (UP)—The newly elected president of the National Council of Churches and the United States Army chief of staff are sharply opposed on how billions of U. S. dollars should be used to deter war. The Rev. Dr. Edwin T. Dahlberg, St. Louis Baptist pastor, told 2,000 church leaders at the final session of the council's triennial general assembly Friday that the money should be spent partly for "loaves of bread for the world's hungry." Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor told the

Sees Earth Becoming Overheated

TULSA, Okla. (U)—One of the nation's most prominent physicists believes the earth will be overheated before the end of the 20th century unless nuclear energy is put to work at certain peaceful uses soon. The earth gradually is getting hotter from the increase of carbon-dioxide in the air, Dr. Edward Teller told a banquet audience of the American Chemical Society Friday night.

Teller said accurate measurement has shown an increase of 2 per cent more carbon-dioxide in the air since the beginning of the industrial revolution because of heavy uses of fuel energy such as coal, oil and its derivatives. "STUDIES SHOW that when the amount has increased 10 per cent," he said, "the ice caps on the poles will begin to melt and the amount of water on the earth will increase. Such places as New York and Holland would be inundated."

"While nuclear fuel still has its dangers and limitations, it must be put to use in certain 'large package' needs, such as the power of electrical plants, in order to reduce the use of conventional fuels that add to the carbon-dioxide content," Teller said. Associate director of the University of California's radiation laboratory, Teller has been described by some as "the father of the hydrogen bomb."

Taylor declared, "The sole justification for the existence of armed forces is not to win wars, but to prevent them from occurring."

"THE COST OF AN effective deterrent force is high," Taylor acknowledged, and he said the military budget, now running at $35 billion dollars yearly, "tends to rise" each year as the military machine becomes more complicated.

But Taylor asserted such sums are "an indispensable part of the price of peace."

The assembly ended its six-day session by:

and the general "resurgence of religious interest" in America; but said the "Christian Church" must be "more realistically" with human beings at the mercy of "competing joyrides" and the "threat of war."

Admitting to council membership the Polish National Catholic Church, the Free Magyar Reformed Church, the Serbian Eastern Orthodox Church and the Diocese of the Armenian Church in North America. Sending a telegram to President

Adopting a 1,000 word "message to the churches" which said Christians have "real cause for encouragement" about growing "unity" of long-severed denominations same group earlier that heavy military spending is absolutely essential to "prevent the disaster of World War III."

Dahlberg, in an inaugural address, declared that the concept of "massive retaliation" is "completely outmoded" in an age when rockets armed with nuclear warheads can reduce the world to a radioactive ash heap.

Dahlberg did not say the United States should bow out of defense spending but he maintained huge sums spent on military weapons are ultimately "futile" as a basis of security.

"It is not half so important that we send Sputniks circling around the globe as that we should send more loaves of bread around the world," Dahlberg said. "It is the hunger and misery of the vast population of the world—the hungry, the cold, the oppressed, the oppressed, that makes for war," he said.

Dahlberg said the threat of war would be greatly relieved if the United States concentrated on economic aid, arms reductions and "an honest exchange of news as well as the exchange of visiting delegations across all international lines, regardless of their Iron Curtain or Star-Spangled characteristics."

Are These 10 Most Exciting Movie Stars Of Last Half Century?

Valentino, Barrymore, Bow, Garbo, Gable, Harlow, Lombard, Flynn, Bogart, Monroe

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (U)—Which stars in Hollywood's 50 fabulous years have lighted up the sky with the most excitement? The golden jubilee provides the occasion for picking them out. No two persons will agree on a list, but to start the arguing, here are the selections by this observer of Hollywood's 10 most exciting—in order of their appearance—

1. Rudolph Valentino. The great lover of the movies, he has ever known, he carried his reputation into his personal life. His stormy romances were front page news. Ironically enough, Valentino's fame was even greater in death. After he died of acute appendicitis on Aug. 23, 1926, emotional female fans made his New York funeral a riot. Down through the years the anniversary of his death has been the signal for maudlin observances.

2. John Barrymore. He was the epitome of sex. His personal life was just as sensational. Her last great romance, with William Powell, was ended by her death of uremic poisoning on June 1, 1937. She was only 26.

3. Carole Lombard. She started in pie-throwing Mack Sennett comedies and progressed to become the screen's greatest light comedienne. Her life was as joyous as her screen roles. She died dramatically, killed in a 1937 plane crash in Nevada while returning from a war bond tour.

4. Errol Flynn. If you doubt Flynn's abilities to create excitement, just read the recent news. He has the capacity to make headlines without the slightest effort. It's hard to tell where Flynn the movie hero leaves off and Flynn the real-life adventurer takes over.

5. Mary Pickford. Her early life in the South Seas, his romantic entanglements in Hollywood, his scrapes with the law have all added to the legend. He claimed he never sought publicity, but it certainly followed him. Perhaps it was because he was one of the last of the great individualists. He believed in leading his life with dash and candor.

6. Marilyn Monroe. The last and latest of the "10 most exciting" she is by no means the least. She has all the magic that makes the greatest stars. Everything snowballed to make Marilyn a sensational star. She had the face and figure that were highly exploitable. What's more, almost everything she did proved to be noteworthy.

7. Greta Garbo. The Silent Swede drew more publicity by avoiding news than most stars did by chasing it. She is credited with saying "I want to be alone." (Actually it was a line in "Grand Hotel"), and it became a trademark.

8. Clark Gable. His right to be title of King of Hollywood has never been disputed, though he's too modest to claim it himself. For 25 years, he has been the symbol of the rugged, essentially masculine star.

9. John Ford. Gable's peak came in "Gone With the Wind." He was so much the Rhetoric Butler type that no other actor could be seriously considered for the role. He has maintained his reputation in recent years, though his films haven't matched his pre-war successes.

10. Jean Harlow. Born Harlean Carpenter in Kansas City, she brightened Hollywood at the explosive "platinum blonde." From the moment she slipped "into something more comfortable" in

Champaign Tips Kays In Overtime Play

CHAMPAIGN (JNS)—Kankakee's improving Kays gave a highly regarded Champaign Maroon five a rough battle here Saturday evening before dropping a 51-49 decision in an overtime period.

It was the second straight overtime battle for the Kays who now sport a 2-2 record. Friday evening, Kankakee won a 50-48 double overtime decision from Lockport.

Champaign's No. 5 rating in a recent United Press poll did not please the visitors who held a lead with 28 seconds to go in the game. With 28 seconds left, Champaign's Larry Cannon was fouled and hit the first of two free throws to knot the score at 45-45.

THE HOME TEAM drew first blood in the overtime period as Champaign's Larry Cannon was fouled and hit the first of two free throws to knot the score at 45-45. Sidney Johnston hit two free throws to increase the winners' margin to four points.

Kankakee's Carl Coleman and Pace both missed free throw attempts but the visitors' momentum carried them to a 51-49 victory over Northwestern for the Jayhawks.

Chamberlain, who dropped in 35 points against Northwestern last year, played with six-foot-three Willy Jones in front of him and six-foot-five Bill Warren behind him.

The seven-foot Chamberlain held away from the boards most of the time by the two defenders, still was able to go up for enough passes to bag 11 field goals and five free throws.

NORTHWESTERN was not out-clashed though. Center Joe Ruklick, who netted only 22 points against Chamberlain last season, duplicated the Kansas' feat of 27 points. Northwestern also managed to keep the match close.

Illinois Rallies To Top DePaul 75-70

CHAMPAIGN (JNS)—Illinois rallied in the final minutes Saturday night to defeat DePaul 75-70, in a non-conference basketball game behind the sharp shooting of Don Old and Johnny Paul.

Paul and Old each bagged 15 points to bring the Illini their second straight victory after trailing the Blue Demons, 38-36, at the end of the half.

THE FIRST half saw the score tied 10 times despite the fact that Illinois pushed to a 34-24 lead early in the game. Paul Ruddy scored DePaul's early attack, by scoring all of his 11 points in the first half.

DEPAUL STRETCHED its lead to 43-37 before the Illini began making headway and scored 10 straight points for a 47-42 lead. The Illini then went to a 60-51 advantage but DePaul, led by Mike Salinski, went in front 64-63 with less than five minutes to play.

Salinski didn't enter the game until the second half was well underway but topped all DePaul scorers with 15 points. With the Blue Demons ahead by one point, Illinois put on a final burst to win going away.

Bradley, St. Pat Easy W-R-K Winners

Spunky Gilman Bows To Bradleyans 74-56

BY GIL BRENNER
Bradley High School cagers have taken their first step toward a third consecutive Wil-R-Kee Conference championship. They did it Friday night when they won away Gilman 74-56 on the Bradley field in the conference opener for both outfits.

THE VICTORY was the 17th conference triumph in a row for the Bradleyans who were co-champs with St. Anne two years ago. The undefeated champions last year.

GILMAN, which couldn't match Bradley's height, was a mighty pesky foe for the Bradleyans. Thanks to a lot of scrap and a great deal of accuracy at both the free line and from the field, the Ovis kept within range of the Bradleyans for nearly three quarters.

Bradley opened up a bit in the final period, however, and the Ovis simply didn't have the manpower to keep pace.

IT'S HARD to believe but Gilman hit at a 46 per cent clip from the field and 67 per cent from the free throw line — and still lost by 18 points. The difference, of course, came from the fact the Ovis were 15 points behind at the start of the game.

EMME AND ROBARDS accounted for 17 points between them in the first quarter as Bradley gained a 19-16 lead after eight minutes. Gilman held a 12-9 lead and again a 14-13 advantage during the quarter.

From then on it was pretty much a matter of time. Dexter made a strong bid at the opening of the third quarter and pulled in 32-31 on four free throws in as many attempts. Then Bradley dropped off in its fouling and, with six Bradleyans.

THE IRISH had almost complete control of both backboards against their shorter opponents. Many of the backboards' fast break were lost to a defenseless Ovis.

Although the hosts had control of the backboards their fast break was sputtering and failing to move. The home-five connected on three fast break baskets during the game.

Top feature of the Irish attack was the outside firing over the Mommence defense. Guard Duane Kibben flicked in five baskets during the game, scoring the 6-0, 4-inch for yard had two tips as the Irish pulled to a 27-14 halftime margin.

GUARD DAVID Doud poured in 12 for Mommence while forwards John Bisher and Gayle Behrens scored in the first three minutes. Doud hit two baskets to narrow the count to 27-18.

Irish Trounce Mustangs 54-21

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—Notre Dame rode the luck of the Irish to a wild, penalty-ridden 54-21 victory over Southern Methodist Saturday night, turning four interceptions and two SMU fumbles into six of its touchdowns.

SMU's sophomore sensation Don Meredith had to share passing honors for the day with both Williams and his own teammate, Charlie Arnold, but still managed to set a new national passing accuracy record before he went out with an injury that ignited most of the rough play.

Purdue led the Tigers at halftime by a 31-23 margin in a first half see-saw battle that saw the visitors change hands three times and the game tied four times.

SONNY SIEBERT, 62 Tiger guard, poured in 17 points to grab scoring honors and pace Missouri through the fairly close-fought first half. But Greve, a sophomore, led the Bulldogs' second half run-away by bagging nine points in the first five minutes of the second half and Purdue was never again pressed.

THE TIGERS made good 17 out of 20 shots for a 28.6 average. Purdue substituted freely in the second half and Greve was taken out with nine minutes left in the game.

Curci Sparks Miami To Win Over Panthers

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—Phenomenal Fran Curci, the brains and guts of the Miami "drive series," closed out a great sophomore football year Saturday night by guiding the Hurricanes to a solid 25-13 victory over the favored Panthers from Pittsburgh.

Curci also scored one of Miami's touchdowns after touchdown by running the ball into the end zone. He finished this year with a 482 average.

ALTHOUGH HIS own team gives him virtually no protection for his souped-up passes, Curci fought his way free from a host of tacklers to hurl two touchdowns down the field. He finished this year with a 482 average.

Kays Win 'Sudder Death' 50-48

SPORTS & SPURTS

Happy 'Reunion' For Sammie

Although the two coaches on opposite benches in Friday night's harrowing and hectic hardwood scrap at Kankakee High are first year men in their present jobs, they weren't exactly strangers to each other. Sammie Miranda, who steered the Kays to a 50-48 double overtime victory, and Bill Conners, disappointed Lockport loser, coached last year in the same conference (Mid-State) at Vandalia and Hillsboro respectively.

Friday's victory was Miranda's first in five tries against Conners. "I didn't have the ballplayers at Vandalia that I've got here," Miranda said.

Despite the closeness of the game and the fact that the Kays took 14 shots before they made one against Lockport, Miranda was happy with his team's performance.

"We played good ball," he said, "probably better than we have so far. We made only seven half-court mistakes, the fewest yet, and to me that was a good thing."

After the game, Miranda met with the team and pointed out their mistakes, which is proof that we're improving."

Why An IHSA Rule? On 18 Cage Games

The recent adoption by the Illinois State High School Association of the rule reducing the number of regular season games to 18 per team in basketball has caused a high school basketball team to play 18 games in a season. This is a significant change from the previous rule which allowed for 20 games.

Bacevich's Team 'Surprises' Him

Those two defeats suffered by Bron Bacevich and his Roger Bacon (Cincinnati) High School basketball team were explained in a letter from the former Kankakee coach a couple of days ago.

"Considering that we had but 17 players back from our 1956-57 season, and that only five of them were on either of the first two teams," the veteran mentor reports, "we did much better than anyone expected. As coaches, we were shooting for a 50-50 season—figuring that we would be stronger in '57."

Bacon won seven, lost two and tied one.

Aggregating well for the future is the fact that his freshmen won seven out of eight and the sophs six out of seven.

There was an ironical note to Bron's season, though.

One of the things he prides himself on is that his players are so well conditioned that they can easily sustain disabling injuries. This season, for the first time in his last five years, not one boy suffered a fracture.

The boy? Bron's own son, Bernie, who was injured last year.

Shade Lockport In SS League Opener

By HERB JANNUSCH

Anybody who thinks cautious basketball can't be a nerve-strainer should have been in Kankakee High School's gymnasium Friday night when the 1,500 screaming fans who did show up.

The Kays got off to a shaky but victorious start in the South Suburban League race by nailing out-rangy Lockport 50-48 in a double overtime on Jim Windmiller's 15-foot basket after one minute and 45 seconds of the second extra period.

The second overtime, of course, was "sudden death" and Windy's jump shot automatically terminated the battle, but there was an upturn for the Kays when the Irish

Final 15 seconds, one by Travis and the other by Young but both missed and the scrap went into an extra period.

Lockport controlled the tip starting the overtime and played cautiously before Burke hit a 10-footer from the side after 4 seconds had elapsed. Twenty seconds later from the same distance with 55 seconds remaining to give Kankakee the lead for only the second time, 46-46.

IT ONLY TOOK Burke 10 seconds to get the tying basket for Lockport, from under the hoop.

That gave the Kays the ball of course, and they stalled around the last shot which Windmiller knocked one by from the side to lift the Kays to a 43-43 lead with 2:30 to go and Kankakee fans began to get under the skin.

To Those Who Died Aboard USS Arizona

Seek $500,000 For Pearl Harbor Memorial

(Editor's Note—In 1941 the Japanese struck Pearl Harbor in a sneak attack that catapulted the United States into World War II. Now, 18 years later, a movement is under way to erect a permanent memorial to the 1,102 men who died aboard the USS Arizona.)

By CHARLES H. TURNER
PEARL HARBOR—Eternal darkness descended upon 1,102 men aboard the USS Arizona at Pearl Harbor the morning of Dec. 7, 1941. And for the last 18 years their tomb has been the ship's rusting, rotting hull.

Today, however, a nationwide fund-raising drive was launched to rehabilitate the sunken battleship and make it into a fitting memorial to the men who lost their lives in the Japanese attack on this giant naval base. The goal is $500,000.

PLANS HAVE BEEN mapped by the Pacific War Memorial Commission to encase the ship in concrete and steel. The present crude wooden platform, which was erected as a temporary observation post on the Arizona's shattered superstructure, a 1950, will be replaced by a permanent viewing platform.

A commission spokesman says all the plans are preliminary and only the 14th Naval District Engineers, who will do the work, can decide whether to pump out water after the encasement is complete. "The whole idea is to stabilize the ship and make it safe from further deterioration." Visitors definitely will be able to go aboard when the encasement is completed and the permanent platform erected, he says.

Old Glory, which now waves from a temporary mast aboard the Arizona, will be lifted to a higher and prouder position above the bomb-torn hull.

This burial place for 1,102 men is a rusted mass of metal in contrast to magnificent battle monuments at other famous battle grounds. Rear Adm. C. E. Olson, 14th Naval District commandant, has said.

IT WAS IMPOSSIBLE to raise the Arizona from the mud and shell-wrecked rubble of Pearl Harbor. The ship's hull, broken in two, was hopelessly damaged. She lives where she took her mortal wounds at 7:58 a.m. on that infamous Sunday.

When the Japanese struck, the Arizona was moored opposite Ford Island, one of seven battle wagons in "Battleship Row." It was the first of three ships that were hit. The whole U.S. fleet was assembled at Pearl Harbor.

The Arizona was alongside the Oklahoma; the Tennessee alongside the West Virginia.

The repair ship Vestal was alongside the Arizona, with the USS Nevada astern of the Arizona. The USS California was at the other end of the row, closest to the narrow entrance channel.

The fleet was just back from maneuvers. Many of the crew were eating breakfast. Others were getting ready for liberty.

At 7:58 a.m. Japanese torpedoes came streaking out from the overcast skies directly down upon the Arizona and Arizona.

Aerial torpedoes struck the Arizona amidships. Seven bombs rained down upon her. One, presumably a 1,000-pounder, plunged down her smokestack.

AN ARMOR-PIERCING bomb hit her forecastle and penetrated to a powder magazine, which went off in a mighty blast.

A few of the Arizona's 1,543 officers and men managed to get topside before the hell erupted below decks. Rear Adm. Isaac C. Kidd, commander of Battleship Division 1, was seen trying to assist in manning an antiaircraft gun. Both Adm. Kidd and the Arizona's skipper, Capt. Franklin Van Valkenburgh, apparently were killed when the explosions wrecked the forward structure of the battleship.

Her 606 feet of shattered steel settled into the oily, muddy water. But the Arizona still flew her flag from the stern, inspiring other vessels and their crews to incredible efforts.

There were only 289 survivors among the Arizona's crew. She took by far the heaviest loss.

Kankakeeland 'Angels' Show Frocks For Holidays

A put-together angel receives final touches as Marsha and Pamela Badger coordinate dressed in two of the season's prettiest. They are daughters of Dr. and Mrs. M. G. Badger, 694 S. Chicago Ave. Marsha, 7, shows a pretty pink frock with full skirt of lace and nylon tulle. Her sister's dress is high fashion for young girls. It is cotton and silk creation of wrinkle resistant fabric. The dress worn by Pamela, who is 10, also features a flying back panel.

On The Social Side
Section III—Kankakee Sunday Journal, Sunday, December 8, 1957
Society • Building

Among the Christmas angels that roam the earth during the holiday season are little girls, that concoction of sugar and spice to which special frosting is added at this time of the year.

The frosting (party dresses, of course) comes in bright colors and as well as pretty pastels. They are first, pretty; and second, practical.

The dresses for little girls and early teens are feminine and fully, a pleasant sight for those head-shakers who view the fashion-right ladies' chemise with disdain.

Practical? Manufacturers have been extremely kind to overburdened mothers with their little girl dresses, many of which will dry into shape without the hours of ironing some mothers will recall.

Some of the holiday dresses are a bit more expensive than the school clothes shown last fall but they are fashioned to take one's mind off the price. Actually, the price does not seem too high for the wearability of the strong fabrics which withstand washing after washing, and come out looking good as new.

One cannot tell the price story without mention of the many party dresses that do not exceed the price of a plainer dress. Rows and rows of ruffles would seem quite a bargain at any price when a little girl dons a party dress and stands there beaming. But many of the holiday ruffles are no more expensive than the back-to-school braids.

Some high fashion features are noticeable in the miniature dresses, features like the flying panel in back. Actually it's not surprising that little girls are dressing so fashionably. They have to keep up with their well-dressed dolls. (Speaking of wardrobes, dolls are exceptionally well dressed these days.)

The new drip dry fabrics, flowing chiffons and color emphasis give new meaning to the descriptive phrase "like frosting on a cake" or the statement "she looks like an angel."

Eleven little girls and one young teen are pictured on this page. We think they look like angels!

A fairy princess is practically a necessity when you make believe. Just in case you see halos above the heads of our "band of angels" on this page, the wand in the hand of our fairy princess will explain it. She is Joan Tallman, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Tallman of RR 1, Bourbonnais. She wears a white silk chiffon gown of ballet length that features a red velvet cummerbund and floral pattern down one side of the full skirt. The dress has a suitable neckline for the very young teen.

ABOVE: A "band of angels" is formed here by, from left, Barbara Freborg, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Len Freborg of 1250 Justine Dr.; Peggy Stewart, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart of 1105 W. Station St.; Linda Wilson, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wilson of Manteno; Leslee Edelson, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Edelson of 746 W. South St.; and Linda Cahan, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Cahan Jr. of 1388 Ingles Ave. Barbara Freborg, with the clarinet, wears a nylon and dacron dress of brown tones and white with self halflap. Peggy Stewart, at the tiny organ, shows a light blue dress with interlaced blue ribbon and tiny pleats in the bodice. Linda Wilson, with the angel's harp, wears a high-waist jumper and dainty nylon blouse. Leslee Edelson, with the golden trumpet, wears a white "frosting-like" dress trimmed with lace and pastel appliqued flowers. Linda Cahan, the "angel" accordionist, wears a holiday pastel with separate yoke and lace-edged collar.

LEFT: Doris Buckman, who is 10, models a pretty holiday print-in glazed cotton with a fashionable neckline and velvet ribbon detail. A gay flower adds a festive look. Doris is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Buckman of 344 S. Alva Ave.

RIGHT: Three sisters, no less angelic looking, admire paper angels as they show three holiday dresses available in Kankakeeland. They are, from left, Cindy, 7, Brenda, 6, and Kris, 3. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd LeVelle of 1192 N. Fifth Ave. Cindy wears a blue nylon dress with orlon fur-trimmed sweater in matching shade of blue. Brenda's dress is a beige taffeta with a holiday look and Kris wears an Alpine-type dress of colorful cotton print.

Diane Dandurand Repeats Vows With Robert Alexander

Bouquets of blue and white pom-poms decorated the altar of St. Patrick's Church for the wedding at 10 a.m. Nov. 30 of Miss Diane Dandurand to Robert K. Alexander.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dandurand of 498 S. Chicago Ave., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander of 130 N. Alma Ave. and Gaylord Alexander of Mount Vernon.

The Rev. Joseph Meira officiated at the double ring ceremony. Traditional processional and recessional wedding marches were played by Mrs. A. J. Worby, organist. She also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Marilyn Clements, as she sang "Ave Maria" and "Paisi Angeli" during the ceremony and "Mother At Thy Feet I'm Kneeling" as the bride placed a bouquet at the altar of the Blessed Virgin.

ESCORTE TO THE altar by her father the bride was attired in a traditional gown of Chantilly lace with underskirts of soufflé pleated tulle tiers. The styling emphasized the long sleeves, terminating in points over the hands, a molded bodice and a very full skirt that swept into a chapel train.

Her fingertip veil of imported illusion cascaded from a beaded lace cap that featured a single tear drop pearl in the center of her forehead. She carried an arrangement of white roses interspersed with stephanotis and her pearl necklace and earring set was a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Roger Koerner, sister of the bride, attended as matron of honor wearing a sapphire blue tulle frock with a cowl neckline of ice blue material that terminated in a bow at the back. Flared panels in the skirt formed a bell effect at the hemline. A velvet cut-out cap secured her brief circular face veil and she carried pink carnations and stephanotis.

Bridesmaids were Miss Judy Konrath and Miss Peggy Sauberli and their frocks of ice blue with sapphire trim were similar in styling to the other attendants. All wore pearl jewelry, a gift of the bride.

Miss Cynthia Konrath was flower girl and wore a dress that was similar in style and color to the other attendants. She carried pink carnations. Her gold cross was a gift of the bride.

WILLIAM BETOURNE was ring bearer; Richard DeMars served as best man; William Bailester, Donald Marvel of Mt. Vernon and Ronald Betourne were groomsmen and David Jaffe, cousin of the bridegroom and Russell Benson were ushers.

Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Duane Larsen, Mrs. Vernon Down, Miss Sharon Guimond, Miss Colette McGinnis and Mrs. Charles Fred.

RUTH MILLETT Women Are Modest About Themselves

"American women are much more modest than men," know they say? The editors of "Who's Who" are sure of it.

In compiling biographies of outstanding American women for the first edition of "Who's Who of American Women," they have found the most noticeable thing about the women's replies is their brevity.

That's quite a contrast, say the editors, to the fulsome replies of many of the men asked to list their achievements for "Who's Who in America."

The fact that women have been found less inclined than men to brag about themselves may surprise men. But it won't surprise women.

Any woman knows that a woman loses her feminine attractiveness the minute she loses her feminine modesty and starts telling people how smart she is.

SO WOMEN HAVE found another outlet for the urge to do a little bragging. They brag about their husbands and children. And if they don't have husbands and children they brag about their ancestors.

Even the most modest and retiring woman doesn't hesitate a minute to tell you what an important man her husband is or what exceptional children she has.

Her modesty can be kicked off like a loose shoe when she starts to talk about her family.

So if the editors of "Who's Who of American Women" had given the women room on their questionnaires for telling about their husbands and children, those answers wouldn't have been so brief.

Keep In Trim

Stretch 3 Inches Off Your Waist

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Most of you are sold on diet and calorie counting but dieting is a slow process. Well, you don't know what you're missing.

When a friend in her fifties, who had lost 30 pounds, told me she had found the elixir of youth, I realized I do not promise you enough. I feel like a different person—and three inches have disappeared from my waistline."

She told me her secret was to ease through the routine at about the same time every day, for then it becomes a pleasant habit.

Stretching is a natural and it's such a free and easy way to exercise that practically no effort is required. This simple stretch-bend routine will bring unexpected rewards.

Position: Standing with feet slightly apart, arms stretched overhead.

Now elongate the stretch by adding a side-bend. Repeat exercises are supplied, but side-bending is the most stimulating for it increases the stretch and tones the muscles which bound the silhouette.

Position: Standing with feet well apart, left hand on waistline, right arm upstretched and arched overhead.

Movement: Bend toward the left with right leg, touching toes to mer Midriff. Address request to side as you reach sideways with floor. Now pull s-l-i-m through the Ida Jean Kain, care of Daily right fingers - bend and reach, middle. Pull up strongly with Journal. Post card requests can Return slowly, then bend and reach front muscles, but do not are small not be answered.

Reunion On 97th Birthday

again, about six times. Reverse of back. Repeat 4 to 8 times, toward right side.

At the finish, slip over at waist, Put the pull through the long knees sagging, and bob up and front muscles with this action - down loose and limber, rag doll Position: Standing, feet slightly apart, arms down at sides. Send long, stamped self-addressed envelope for illustrated exercise booklet entitled "For a Slimmer Figure" to Ida Jean Kain, care of Daily right fingers - bend and reach, middle. ## Serve Cranberry Salad With Chicken Or Turkey

Here's an interesting way to serve cranberries! Cranberry salad, as the University Dining Service in Iowa City, Iowa, serves it, is similar to a Waldorf Salad and served as such. In place of celery—oranges and cranberries are used. This salad can be kept in the refrigerator for several days without discoloring. It is naturally very good with fowl, and will serve 14 people:

Boil 1 cup of water with 2 cups sugar until syrupy. Put 1 quart of washed and picked cranberries in the syrup and cook until they burst. Remove from fire and let stand covered for 10 minutes. Remove cover and cook another 5 minutes. Chill. When the cranberries are cooled, add 2 cups cut marshmallows, 2 diced apples, 3 sliced bananas, 3 cups orange sections and ½ cup broken pecans to the mixture. Keep very cold until ready to serve.

Swedish Christmas Customs Told B&PW

Using song and story Mrs. Hilma Nordstrom, Larson presented a program on customs and observances of "Christmas in Sweden" at the Wednesday evening meeting of Business and Professional Women's Club.

The program singing a sacred Swedish song accompanied by Miss Yelma Shimmin.

Mrs. Larson told the group many of the early Swedish Christmas legends and traditions were brought from other countries. When the Vikings sailed to other lands they brought back stories and legends of foreign places.

From Rome, in the beginning of the 8th century, they brought the story of Lucia, the martyred maid, who was burned at the stake for adherence to her Christian belief. Sweden adopted Lucia as their own patron saint and today Lucia is seen in pageants and floats at Christmas time. She is the Swedish symbol of goodness, kindness and service.

THE SWEDISH Santa Claus is not the portly one we see here in America, she said. Instead, he is a small gnomish creature who is never seen but creeps into houses doing work of charity and kindness. But like ours he is pictured with high-top black shoes.

Because Sweden is located near the Arctic Circle and is the "land of the midnight sun" the people are familiar with the brilliant stars and the moon which are clearly visible during long winter months. The movements of the stars and constellations, especially the "Star of Bethlehem" are woven into their traditions about the birth of Christ, said Mrs. Larson.

Mrs. Larson displayed her collection of dolls in Swedish costumes, paper tea and coffee pots, tapestries, brass and pottery items, wood-carvings, hand woven articles and Swedish sligh bells.

She elaborated upon the preparation of Swedish breads, meats and spiced bakery goods, all of which are started many weeks prior to Christmas. The holiday celebration in Sweden begins Dec. 13 and ends Jan. 15.

Deborah Circle Has Christmas Program

Mrs. Wesley Ross presented the program entitled "Our Christmas Customs and Traditions" at the Tuesday meeting of Deborah Circle of Central Christian Church.

Mrs. Arnold Hogan was hostess in her home at 1147 Gertman Dr.

Mrs. Ross said it is known that Christmas has been celebrated in the churches since the fourth century, and possibly before that.

The day of the celebration and its form vary from country to country but the use of lights and lighted candles is a universal form of observance as lights have always been used as a symbol of the Christian religion.

Other methods of observance in our era are bells, music, the giving of gifts, and decorating evergreen trees.

Mrs. Ross cited the danger of Christmas becoming too commercial and said the extensive giving of gifts sometimes comes close to obscuring the real significance of the holiday.

Mrs. Bessie Kibbons was in charge of devotions which she based on "The Brotherhood of Repentance."

Mrs. James Bradley conducted the business session and called for volunteers to serve in the nursery Sunday morning.

Members of the Deborah Circle will be hostesses at a Christmas party at Kankakee State Hospital at 1 p.m. Dec. 12.

Mrs. R. C. Von Groningen poured. Mrs. Allen Rogers will be hostess for the January meeting in her home at 428 S. Lincoln Ave.

Members of the international relations committee were hostesses for the evening including Mrs. Lorraine Blaney, chairman, assisted by Madeline Elizabeth Coash, Clara Gohke, Florence Mabry, Evelyn Reuter, Hilary Rogers, Myles Stoner, Irene Zelluff, Joanne Hardesty and Abbie Dickman and the Misses Grace Nourie, Naomi Minor, Lillian Rehr, Alice Stone, Grace Wright, Verna Weprecht and Geneva Russell.

Fudge For Cowboys And Christmas

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

The sweetest and trickiest idea we've come upon this year is Animal Cracker Fudge. Small fry will be enchanted with it and grown-ups won't mind eating it either.

The fudge is a light milk-chocolate color with good flavor and small animal crackers atop each square tastes delicious with the sweet rich candy underneath.

If you try this recipe, we think you'll agree with us that it's a great one for youngsters' parties at holiday time and the whole year through. You can vary the garnish by choosing crackers or cookies to suit your party theme—st. Christmas time star-shaped cookies are perfect. For a Cowboy and Indian party, use cookies that picture these themes.

Ingredients: 4 squares (1 ounce each) unsweetened chocolate, 1/2 cup evaporated milk (undiluted), 4 cups sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 12 medium-sized (about 1 1/2 cups) marshmallows.

Method: Put chocolate and undiluted evaporated milk in a medium-sized saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until chocolate melts; beat with rotary beater until smooth. Add sugar and salt. Cook, stirring often, until stirring, to 238 degrees on a Space animal crackers evenly over

Stirring constantly, bring to a boil over moderate heat; reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes. (Mixture will be thick but it will pour.) ## Julianne Suprenant Says Vows With Corbett Langdon

St. Rose of Lima Church was the scene of the double ring ceremony which united in marriage Miss Julianne E. Suprenant and Corbett Langdon Saturday at 11:30 a.m.

The Rev. Ed Bergerson officiated at the ceremony.

—Is the case. Kids tend to forget that applying makeup is one thing and removing it is another—and a very important one, too.

—You can expect a complexion to be clear and radiant if it isn't washed (thoroughly) morning and even a bit of rouge.

But one thing hasn't changed. Some teens still have complexion problems which can make those budding beauty years a nightmare. What causes them? A number of things can contribute.

Poor diet is one of them. A teen who eats too many sweets is looking for trouble. They may have good food, but for beauty's sake a wise girl learns to pass them by.

Often cleanliness or lack of it is especially important. Makeup and the grime of the day has got to go. Let it stay, and blackheads and blemishes appear.

Mrs. Don Bruner sang "Holy Night," with Miss Diane Piercy as accompanist. Mrs. Oma McKinney read the Christmas story from Luke and gave the prayer.

Christmas carols were sung. A brief business session was conducted by the vice president, Mrs. C. L. Down. The society needs clothing for Good Will Industries. Items may be brought to the church.

The tea table was decorated in the Christmas motif. Christmas cookies and coffee were served by Mrs. J. C. Gooding, Mrs. Vilas Drew, Mrs. Russell Spies, Mrs. Charles Gardner and Mrs. John Osborn.

Life Measured Not By Years, But Accomplishment

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Harry S. Tr, was a handsome high schooler.

"Oh, Dr. Crane," his mother tearfully exclaimed, "I feel so terrible."

"For Harry died from a skull fracture in a football game. He never regained consciousness."

"And I keep thinking it was all my fault, for I signed the permit which the school sends to parents to get permission for our sons to engage in sports."

"If only I hadn't signed that slip! But Harry was so enthusiastic about athletics and he insisted nothing would happen to him, so he persuaded me to give my consent."

"What can I do to stop torturing myself, Dr. Crane?"

When our oldest son was killed in a plane crash last year, many thousands of you readers sent us letters and cards of sympathy. Dozens of beautiful poems were included, too, but the one which Mrs. Crane and I liked best was that lovely verse by Edgar Guest, entitled "To All Who Read This."

IT CONTAINS THE thought that

Keeping in Step

By Mary Jean Houde

A former Gilman resident is now a career girl in Brazil. Are her working and living conditions much different from those of career girls in America? Her explanation was given this past week during a three-month leave and a visit with relatives in Gilman.

Anetta Horst lived in Gilman 17 years ago with her family. Her dad was the Methodist Church minister there. Since then, she has planned and executed a career with enough glamour to satisfy the most adventurous soul.

The 25-year-old American is a bilingual legal secretary in Sao Paulo, Brazil. The background for such a job, in the case of Anetta Horst, was majoring in languages at Illinois Wesleyan University and studying at night school while working in the office of a large Peoria factory. She received her master's degree in economics and foreign trade at Bradley University in Peoria and then, through friends in Brazil, obtained a job which put her education to good use.

For the past two years Anetta has worked for a corporation lawyer in Sao Paulo and is one of only two girls in the large office who speak English. In fact, English is never spoken in the office. Anetta's background in Spanish and French and while working in Peoria, learned the Portuguese language well enough to read and write it. She was chosen by her office to learn the language because of her knowledge of Spanish. When Anetta went to Brazil, she could read and write the language but could not speak it. Now, after two years, she speaks it exclusively at work. Her job includes the translation of letters and business forms from English to Portuguese and vice versa. Clients of her employer include many American firms, including American-Marietta Co. in Kankakee, she explains. The law firm is associated with a firm in Chicago.

Lunch time for working girls in Brazil is two hours long. The average working day is from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 2 to 6:30 p.m. Meal procedure is usually coffee (what else, in Brazil?) and perhaps toast for breakfast and big meals at noon and in the evening. An abundance of rice and beans are eaten.

Fashion note: Anetta is one American who has been wearing the currently popular pointed-toe shoes for two years. They were wearing them when she went to Brazil, even though the fashion has just recently "caught on" in the United States. She explains that fashion in Brazil is a little more European than they are North American. One of the subjects of the pointed-toe shoes, Anetta gives hope to those women who are having trouble adjusting. She says that she suffered for a while until my toes sort of pointed out. (What a prospect!)

Life in Sao Paulo, says Anetta, is much like that in any other large city. The population is over three million and is reputed to be one of the fastest growing cities in the world. Anetta says they call it "the Chicago of South America."

Domestic help is very cheap in Sao Paulo and Anetta lives alone in an apartment in the city. Her life sometimes seems curious to the Brazilian girls who seldom leave home until they are married, but she says that her independence is often envied.

Anetta has found Brazilian life to be a foreigner, but a stranger. And that is the way they treat a person. She goes on to say that the people don't seem to take life as seriously as we in the United States do. They don't seem as concerned about world politics. They have quick tempers, but recover quickly.

A word about the bachelors. . . . Anetta says that Latin men probably be described as "more attentive to a girl." She explains that her own passage on the bus, or for a cup of coffee—often if the meeting were by chance. There are absolutely no "Dutch treats" in Brazil, she adds. "The men would be insulted." Anetta also says that the Latin men "flirt a lot" and "so do the girls." But she calls the flirtations "not serious" and "just their manner."

It is beginning to get hot in Brazil now and the residents will be swimming by Christmas, says Anetta. Temperatures go approximately as high as 85 degrees and in the coldest weather (around July) down to 35 degrees. She says that freezing weather has been experienced and "when coffee prices go up here, you know it's freezing in Brazil."

Sao Paulo is the coffee center of Brazil. Anetta's three-month leave will end in January and she will return to her unique position in Brazil. Not merely by chance, she will return in time for the pre-Lenten carnival in Sao Paulo, a particularly gay time.

Anetta is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Preston Horst, now residing in Quincy, in Gilman, she visited her grandmother, Mrs. Inez Swoveland, and her aunt, Miss Mildred Swoveland.

Catherine Wright, Charles O'Tool Wed

Miss Catherine Sherrill Wright and Pvt. Charles R. O'Tool were united in marriage Nov. 30 at 7 p.m. in College Church of the Nazarene, Bourbonnais.

The bride is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Wright of 150 W. Belmont St., Bourbonnais, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O'Tool of 223 S. Cleveland Ave., Bradley.

The Rev. Gilbert Mowers, cousin of the bride, and the Rev. Mr. Wright, father of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with candelabra and pedestal baskets of bronze mums and pompons.

Vocalists were Boyd Fees of Bradley and Miss Barb Scott of Bourbonnais. They were accompanied by Robert Brown of Bourbonnais, organist. Miss Scott sang "I Love Thee" and Fees sang "The Lord's Prayer." "I Love You Truly" was sung as a duet. Traditional wedding marches were used.

GIVEN IN MARRIAGE by her father the bride wore a floor length gown of white velvet cut on a princess-empire line. The styling featured a lace bodice, Sabrina neckline, long tapering sleeves terminating in points over the hands and a very full skirt of alternating panels of lace and velvet that swept into a chapel train.

Her silk illusion veil was secured by a sequin and pearl cap and she carried tallman roses and stephanotis on a white ribbon.

Miss Karen Wright, sister of the bride, was maid of honor wearing a cream velvet ballroom frock with a Sabrina neckline and a golden brown cummerbund of peau de soie.

fastening in a large bow with long streamers. She carried an arm crescent of bronze and rust mums and pompons.

Miss Betty Wilson, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Dorothy Boggs of Bradley were bridesmaids.

Ed Wynn, the noted comedian who recently became a successful actor in serious roles, has turned aside all stage, screen, television and literary offers to tell his life story. "I haven't lived it yet," he replies.

and more ensembles identical to those of the bride and groom. Her dress was also similar to the other attendants.

MARK WRIGHT, brother of the bride, was ring bearer. Lawrence Moody of Bourbonnais was best man; John A. Wright, brother of the bride and Don Sadeck of Chicago, were groomsmen and ushers were Howard Bell of Frankfort, uncle of the bridegroom, James Reigner, and Roy Street of Bourbonnais.

A reception followed in the church parlors. Assisting were Miss Jackie Monroe, guest book; Miss Fran Drake, Miss Donna Meyer, gifts; Mrs. Barbara Barber and Miss Earlene Kelly, serving and Mrs. Nash and Mrs. Mowers, aunt of the bride, serving punch and cake.

When the couple left on a wedding trip the new Mrs. O'Tool was wearing a two-piece black and white wool tweed ensemble with red and black accessories. They will reside at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Both are graduates of Bradley-Bourbonnais Community High School and the bride has been employed at Armour Laboratories. O'Tool is serving with the United States Marine Corps.

4 Seniors Die In Arkansas Collision

HAMBURG, Ark. (U)—A high school football team and three other teenage girls were killed Friday night when an automobile crashed into a trailer truck on a rain-soaked highway.

Dead were Kay Carver, 17-year-old football player of Hamburg High School; Myrtle Bunn and her cousin Jimmie Neil Ruff, both 17, and Fay Henderson, 18.

All were seniors. They were in a car apparently driven by Miss Henderson and were on their way to a banquet at nearby Crossett, Ark.

The banquet was in honor of the Hamburg school's football team. The car was carrying 16 people, including the coach and several parents.

Emmanuel Zaczinski, who has been the "human cannon ball" in many circuses where he was shot out of a cannon to land in a net, says that the career of a human projectile is about seven years. "After that, you get aches and pains," he explains.

HAS THAT YULE SPIRIT!

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UP)—When Judge James Cassidy ordered David Hicks Jr. to pay Frank J. Martin $68.31 for damages to Martin's car, Martin protested. "It's too near Christmas for that," Martin said. "Ten dollars will be enough." Handled the ten, Martin gave it to the Franklin Order of Police. "Christmas spirit," he explained.

20 Years Ago 40 Years Ago

Chief of Police John Rogers was to receive a reward of $500 for the capture of E. E. Snedeker, Illinois, Central telegraph operator charged with burglary. Volunteer women workers met Thursday at the Masonic Hall to devote their energies to work for the war sufferers of Europe, hospital and Red Cross work and work for the associated charities and poor of the city. They repaired and made clothing, sheets, dresses and similar items.

Approximately 1,500 persons were killed when two ships collided in the Halifax, N.S. harbor detonating approximately 4,000 tons of high explosives. Between 3,000 and 4,000 dwellings in the poorer section of the city were believed destroyed. One firm ordered 4,000 coffins.

Aug. 1924 was set as the date of the Kankakee Interstate Fair at the annual meeting of the American Association of Fairs.

Declaration of war with Austria-Hungary was recommended by President Woodrow Wilson at the opening of the second session of the 56th Congress.

Holiday Candlemaking Project For Grownups

BY MR. FIX
Distributed by NEA Service
Making decorative candles can be a rewarding project if you keep two things in mind: NEVER let children participate. NEVER heat wax.

SANTA candle is a project for the handy man who waxes skillful in his use of color and design.

2. NEVER pour melted wax down the drain. Remelt and pour in a container you can throw away. Grease thoroughly with vegetable shortening any mold you plan to use. Clean, dry, chilled molds give best results. They can be wiped free of any bits of wax with a paper towel, after use. Follow wiping with thorough hot, soap-and-water washing.

4. Allow melted wax to cool slightly before pouring into molds. 5. Best result in forming wicks is obtained by using commercial candles of various sizes for wicks. Pour a small quantity of wax into mold. Set candle in place. Let harden. Continue pouring of wax.

6. Leave newly-molded candles in refrigerator or out-of-doors in a sheltered place, overnight, to permit them to harden completely. 7. Molds made of cardboard should be sealed with masking or adhesive tape. Wrap in newspaper to catch leaks. Tie paper tightly to support the mold.

8. Wax can be colored by adding bits of shaved crayons to wax as it melts in double boiler. 9. Froth that serves for Santa's beard, froth on trees, and what have you, is made by whisking with a fork a small amount of melted wax in an old coffee tin. DON'T USE AN ELECTRIC BEATER. 10. There's no substitute for your own ingenuity in fashioning unique candle creations.

COSTLY TIP: Dallas, Tex. —Paul Johns, Jr., 43, has five years to think about what he claimed was a meaty wax, and turn heat off before melting wax, and turn heat off before melting wax, and turn heat off before melting wax.
