4-Foot Snow Paralyzes Michigan City, Ind.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. — Dozens of snowplows and bulldozers bored slowly today through the foot of snow that paralyzed Michigan City in a renewal of subzero cold spreading over all Indiana.

The Weather Bureau couldn't see any sign of relief from the cold, and forecasters said it would stay below zero for Monday night for Indiana.

Schools and industries were closed in the almost complete standstill.

Michigan City has a population of 30,000.

The weekend snowstorm, extending only 25 miles along the southeast shore of Lake Michigan, dumped three feet of new snow on Michigan City on top of a foot of accumulation.

The snow drifted in winds of 25 to 30 miles an hour.

THE HEAVY SNOW belt extended from Chesterton, 10 miles southwest of Michigan City, in the Jones county, to Rolling Prairie, 15 miles to the east.

South Ben's new 12-inch snow made a total of 20 inches over the weekend. Drifting of fresh snow caused the closing of 13 St. Joseph county rural schools.

Hundreds of persons were marooned in the business section when they found their autos snowed under after movie houses closed Saturday night. Hotels were jammed.

State Highway Department crews fought a losing battle to clear drifts, some 12 feet deep, from two major transcontinental highways near Michigan City—U.S. 20 and U.S. 12. The Northern Indiana Toll Road and No. 20 were reported opened this morning. Only one lane was open on most of the roads.

Conant Suggests Grouping For High School Students

INDIANAPOLIS — Dr. James B. Conant recommended today that the nation's high schools group their students by ability, wherever possible, so that they may proceed at a pace in keeping with their talents.

This, the former president of Harvard said, would apply to 15 or 20 per cent of the student body that is particularly gifted, as well as to the 10 to 15 per cent who just aren't capable of keeping up with the rest.

Dr. Conant, in a speech at the annual convention of the National Association of Secondary School Principals, said the slower students, who usually have trouble with reading and handwriting, should be taken out of the required courses such as English, history, and general mathematics.

They should, he said, be given "a different type of instruction by teachers specially qualified for this work and anxious to understand their needs."

Asks Session To Deal With Illinois Jobless

CHICAGO — Gov. Stratton has asked by Illinois labor leaders to call a special session of the State Legislature to act on proposals dealing with unemployment.

A meeting of some 1,200 labor representatives Saturday requested the special call in a resolution passed by a 30-vote margin.

The resolution calls for a moratorium, or legal right to delay payment, on debts and mortgages for unemployed workers.

Extending the present 26-week payment period for unemployment compensation to 39 weeks.

A STATE PUBLIC works program to provide jobs for the unemployed.

Joseph Gorman, council president, said, "We have been alarmed by daily reports of our labor unions of increased unemployment throughout the state."

Local leaders report that community resources to meet the problem are inadequate.

State law restricts a special session to consideration of measures listed in the governor's call.

At its Saturday session, the conference heard an address by Samuel Bernstein, state unemployment compensation commissioner.

Bernstein estimated that between 225,000 and 230,000 workers are presently jobless in Illinois.

Raymond Hilliard, director of the Cook County Welfare Department, told the gathering that general assistance rolls in the county increased from 39,442 in October to 50,590 in January.

In World War II falling bombs destroyed more than 67,000 homes in the city of Coventry, England. Also, its historic 15th Century Cathedral of St. Michael was destroyed.

The raiders, believed to be members of the illegal Irish Republican Army, raided the Midway town constabulary station. They were driven off and escaped across the border.

There were no police casualties. It was not known here whether any of the raiders were hit.

Throughout the Northeast, trains, planes, subways and buses stopped to maintain schedules but almost every piece of transportation equipment was delayed or disabled.

AIRLINES CANCELED hundreds of flights. Trains ran up to 12 hours behind schedule on runs to and from Chicago, New York and Washington. Some trains and buses never left their terminals.

Many unheated cars and school buses added to passengers' woes. Schools and factories closed. Businesses suffered. All public places, industries and schools were ordered to close in Delaware as drifting snow caused an emergency. Central Maryland was cut off. A state of emergency was declared in Huntsville, Ala., site of the Army missile center, when gas supplies dwindled.

In Middleboro, Ky., 11,000 of the town's 15,000 residents were without heating gas. Appeals were made to state and federal governments for emergency aid.

Labor Offers 7-Point Plan To Fight Dip

The labor organization's plans are outlined by Nat Goldfinger, an AFL-CIO economist, and Hyman Bookbinder, AFL-CIO legislative representative.

Speaking on the AFL-CIO radio program "As We See It," Bookbinder and Goldfinger proposed:

1. A program of public works including the construction of public housing, hospitals, libraries, schools and flood control projects.

2. An increase in personal income tax exemptions from $600 to $700.

3. Increasing the rate and duration of unemployment compensation payments.

Where traffic moved around snow banks and over icy roads, accidents were common.

With temperatures near zero in snowbound Washington, federal workers have another holiday today. All schools were closed in the District Monday and tens of thousands of workers were absent from their jobs.

Bradley Adopts Law Providing 3 Policemen

But Board Fails To Agree On Who Will Be Named Chief

The Bradley village board unanimously adopted an ordinance Monday night establishing the number of policemen for the village at three. One of the three shall be appointed chief, the ordinance says.

The board did not come to any agreement on who should be named chief of police. John Carney has been acting chief, and board members wanted to see the village have a permanent chief.

However, William Barwegen, board president, said that the motion to have Carney made chief permanently had been vetoed at a special meeting of the board, and the board thought it was unconstitutional and improper to bring it up for discussion at Monday night's meeting.

FCC Examiner Raps TV Channel Award

Top Applicant Was Passed Up

WASHINGTON (UP)—A Federal Communications Commission examiner said today that the FCC picked the "least qualified" of four applicants when it awarded a Miami television channel to a subsidiary of National Airlines.

The examiner, Herbert Sharfman, testified before a House investigating subcommittee which has heard charges that FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack received money from a Miami attorney for the successful applicant, Public Service Television Inc.

Mack, who has denied any wrongdoing, has been promised an early hearing. The subcommittee also heard allegations that Col. George Gordon Moore, Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower's brother-in-law, was a "key influence" in the FCC decision. Subcommittees Chairman Owen Harris (D-Ark.) said Moore "ought to come forward" if he can shed any light on the subject.

SHARFMAN CONDUCTED 32 days of hearings in 1954 to determine who should get the Miami Channel 18 at Miami. He recommended in a 96-page report that the channel be awarded to Col. A. Frank Katzenline, former Miami Beach mayor and owner of radio stations in Miami.

But the commission overruled him last February

Gas Storage Co. Honors 9 Employees

Nine Hersey men employed by the Gas Storage Co. of Illinois at its Hersey station were honored at a banquet held Monday night in Kankakee.

The occasion was the firm's annual service award and safety banquet. An award for 229,847 hours of work without a lost time accident at the compressor station was received by D. A. ## Gasoline Cut May Not Extend To Retail Price Here

Although three major gasoline companies have announced wholesale price cuts, the customer may not get by as cheap as at the gas pump in Kankakee, Bradley and Bourbonnais.

One Kankakee distributor pointed out that gasoline has been selling here for 31.1 cents per gallon for regular gasoline, while the retail price in Chicago metropolitan area has been 32.9 to 33.5 cents.

Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), Shell Oil Co. and Sinclair Oil Co. have announced a cent a gallon cut in the wholesale price of the gasoline. This is expected to also cut the retail price to the customer by a corresponding amount in the Chicago area.

Another local distributor said that although his company has not yet announced a wholesale price cut, he expects that they will follow the lead of the other three. This distributor also thought that the retail price might go down here.

So the driver in the Kankakee area will just have to wait and see.

The word, Easter, comes from Eostre, the Anglo-Saxon goddess of spring.

Fire Check In Manteno, Peotone Set

A fire inspection will be conducted in both Manteno and Peotone in August, according to plans announced by Jack Jones, special agent for a fire inspection company, at the Manteno Rotary Club's meeting.

The inspection, which will be made on the same day in both towns, is being sponsored by the Manteno and Peotone Rotary Clubs.

Jones, who also represents the S-t-e Fire Inspection Bureau, which operates throughout the state, working with civic groups in each town or city where an inspection is to be made, said there will be a follow-up on the recommendations submitted.

Each mayor, he said, will receive a copy of the report in code so he can also check on what has and has not been corrected. There will be a percentage report on corrections made and on the basis of this report state authorities can almost pin point where the next serious fire will be.

JONES POINTED out that the fire loss throughout the country last year amounted to over one billion dollars due to two main factors, defective wiring and cigarettes. He said that property owners set their own insurance rates. If they are careless about their property, not looking for and removing fire hazards, they put the rates up.

The rates now, he said, are the same as they were in 1939. There has been some adjustment in the classification which has made a change in the amount paid, but not in the rate.

Cost of insurance can be lowered by improving property. Jones said, adding that buildings which were wired 25 or more years ago can be fire traps now.

Braidwood School Board Hopes To Resolve Dispute

BRAIDWOOD (JNS)—A dispute involving the time the local grade school should open this year is expected to be resolved at 8 p.m. Wednesday when the board of education meets.

The community is divided on whether the doors should be opened at 8 or 8:30 a.m.

On one side are the school principal, faculty members and parents who believe the opening at 8:30 a.m. is adequate.

On the other side are a few members of the board and parents who feel the doors should be opened so that children dropped off at the school prior to 8 a.m. would have a place to stay.

Classes currently start at 8:55 a.m. At a special meeting Friday, the board decided to keep the starting time at 8:30 a.m. but to have everyone on the board and in the community have continued the controversy, which will come up again Wednesday night.

Fire Check In Manteno, Peotone Set

A fire inspection will be conducted in both Manteno and Peotone in August, according to plans announced by Jack Jones, special agent for a fire inspection company, at the Manteno Rotary Club's meeting.

The inspection, which will be made on the same day in both towns, is being sponsored by the Manteno and Peotone Rotary Clubs.

Jones, who also represents the S-t-e Fire Inspection Bureau, which operates throughout the state, working with civic groups in each town or city where an inspection is to be made, said there will be a follow-up on the recommendations submitted.

Each mayor, he said, will receive a copy of the report in code so he can also check on what has and has not been corrected. There will be a percentage report on corrections made and on the basis of this report state authorities can almost pin point where the next serious fire will be.

Temperate Zone A Bit Frigid

Just about the only thing that we can be thankful for in this cold enough for you? weather is that we really haven't had it so rough.

The three to four foot snow that blanketed Michigan City, Ind., missed us. One town in New Hampshire measured 58 inches of snow on the ground. A near-blizzard snarled traffic up and down the East Coast and Washington, D. C. was paralyzed by a 14-inch snow-fall.

Nonetheless, every year at about this time we begin to question the sagacity of our elders who once extolled the advantages of living in the northern reaches of the temperate zone. Those folks who resided in the Deep South were pictured as rather indolent persons with little desire and with less ambition.

Possibly the shifts in climate have changed all that because the Southland is now a busy industrial and economic area.

Even so, there are those that say the cold, snappy weather of the north keeps us on our toes. The changes in the seasons supposedly add to our mental alertness and increase the old drive and initiative.

We're moving about at a faster pace these days if for no other reason than to keep warm. Even as he scrapes the frost off the windshield, a man can't be content if he thinks wistfully of the beaches and balmy breezes of the Land of Sunshine.

Women's Place Is Changing

If any American males still are hanging onto that old one which reads "women's place is in the home," they'd better let go.

Today, with a total U.S. labor force close to 68 million, women hold almost a third of the jobs—22 million. Indeed, the Department of Commerce forecasts that by 1975 the number may reach 33 million, matching the country's total labor force in 1905.

The present total of working men is eight times that found in 1880, when women still were mostly in the home. Today's figures are even more astonishing when it is realized that of all American women aged 45 to 64, some 42 per cent are in the labor force. And this figure is rising, too.

Let's stop kidding ourselves, men. The days of home-baked bread, home-laundered shirts, etc., are almost gone forever. We'd better just be thankful we can still get an occasional home-cooked meal.

Can America Rely On Missile Bases?

If Russia should bring a surprise attack on America or Western Europe, could we rely on our guided missile bases in Britain?

WILL THE BRITISH cabinet be able to come together in a matter of minutes and make a decision to promptly launch a counterattack? This is the question which has been worrying many Americans ever since the recent announcement that the British government will make a similar decision to prepare in Britain under American command will soon be turned over to British commanders.

Both American and British top government leaders will have a separate veto over the launching of guided missiles from these bases. In the case of Britain, the British Cabinet must first give its approval, while, in the case of America, the President personally must first OK such launchings.

The question arises: If the British suddenly send missiles over Britain, wiping out or crippling most of our bases there and then announcing they will give up their next in a matter of minutes unless apace have we that a Conservative government would win power when the Reds attack?

Recent by-elections in England showed a minority government lagging far behind and Labor and the Liberals registering big gains. The latest public opinion polls in Britain show that if a general election were held today the Labor party would win.

It will be remembered that Labor party leaders are strong in their feelings that a negotiation settlement should be made with the Soviet Union and hydrogen missiles at guided missiles should not be used. Many are opposed even to the establishment of American guided missile bases on British soil.

After America spends many millions on establishing guided missile bases in Britain, a Labor government could come into power and immediately neutralize all these bases, rendering them ineffective.

This is no imaginary fear. From a reliable, confidential source, I have learned that at the time of the Soviet War in late 1956, the American government alerted the wives and children of all armed service personnel to be prepared for immediate evacuation to Britain.

At this same time, our atom bombers were readied for immediate take off for Russia, should Russia carry out its threat to send missiles over London.

At this crucial point, a group of British Parliamentarians, together with other Britishers opposed to American bases, formed a conspiracy to attack our atom bomber base in central England and destroy our bombers there. To prevent this, American troops were quickly rushed from our other bases in Britain to increase the defenses of our atom bomber base. It will be noted that the real threat to the effective operations of our ... came not from the Russians but from the British themselves.

The security of America, in my opinion, will be greatly increased if our atomic bombers and guided missiles are launched from bases 100 per cent controlled by Americans and not from foreign bases where our NATO partners have the right to veto our use of them.

A Study Of Regulatory Agencies

WASHINGTON — The cloud of scandal-involving here and there an isolated case of impropriety—has blown across the so-called independent commissions and may unfortunately tend to obscure a fundamental problem in government that has long called for attention.

The Federal Reserve Board, the National Labor Relations Board, the Federal Communications Commission, the Federal Reserve Board, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Civil Aeronautics Board and the U.S. Tariff Commission.

Basically the trend arose because of a peculiar defect in the American governmental system—an unwillingness to let the executive branch of the government do the regulating of business or financial or industrial practices or employment relationships.

It will be remembered that Labor party leaders are strong in their feelings that a negotiation settlement should be made with the Soviet Union and hydrogen missiles at guided missiles should not be used. Many are opposed even to the establishment of American guided missile bases on British soil.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd

It will be a loss to the United States when Sen. Harry F. Byrd leaves the United States Senate, as he has now announced that he will do. He is the third member of that body, within one year, to state that he will not stand for reelection despite the assurance that he would be returned if he wished to be.

Sen. William Knowland is leaving not only the Senate but the Republican leadership of it to run for governor of California. Should Sen. Knowland be defeated in the gubernatorial campaign, he would undoubtedly retire from politics. Should he be elected governor of California, his name would undoubtedly be put before the Republican nomination in 1960 for the presidency. Sen. Knowland is a wise legislator, evenly balanced, not as brilliant as Bob Taft but also not so shallow. His retirement from public life would be a loss to those who have recognized his leadership.

Sen. William Jenner, who is also retiring, represents the hard core of Republican conservatism. The element which, under the leadership of Robert A. Taft, kept the Republican party together as a political unit during the apparently hopeless days of Democratic President Truman.

AND NOW SEN. HARRY BYRD, watchdog of the nation's Treasury, announces that he will retire from the Senate. Harry Byrd has given much of his political life to battling against those who disliked American economic and social traditions and who wanted to use taxes to bring about a change in the economic and social structure of the country. He came to be regarded as the best informed senator on fiscal conditions, a successor in the Senate to Carter Glass of Virginia. In a particular field, he is acknowledged to be without peer in the Senate.

Sen. Byrd has often been unpopular with members of his own party, particularly as he put the preservation of the United States against the spenders, but it cannot be said that the impediments he put in their way did not slow up the process of waste.

When Robert A. Taft was alive, Sen. Byrd joined forces to keep the United States functioning legislatively. Had it not been for the Republican-southern Democratic coalition, several legislative sessions would have resulted in little more than the wreckage of the Congressional Record. Some of the most conservative legislation was a product of this coalition which held strong until destroyed by the politics of Sherman Adams, the President's chief-of-staff, who seems to be devoted to reducing Congress to a mere rubber stamp.

It is largely because of this interference by the executive in the affairs of Congress that the Republican party is split into factional camps and Democrats grow stronger at each Congressional election.

WHILE THE LEADERSHIP OF THE Democratic party remains southern, it is Texas leadership rather than Virginia which is a remarkable development in American history. Also, the intellectual leadership of the party has moved northward, to such men as Sen. Mike Mansfield, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Paul Douglas, men grounded not in the universities but in the old-fashioned ways of everyday politics or in active business enterprise.

One might readily say that with the departure of Sen. Harry F. Byrd from the Senate, January, an era shall have passed, an era of fierce contention between those who would change the American way of life and those who would preserve the American form of the capitalist system. What has probably happened historically is that great depression of 1929 have to a large measure jelled; and that those of both parties who opposed the changes have either disappeared from politics or are retreating from the fray. The new era is no longer revolutionary and surprising.

The future seems to be with younger men, with those who came into youth and early manhood in the 1930's and who have had no experience with an earlier and more genteel America, where equality of opportunity was an ideal and security not mentioned as a goal.

Annual Cancer Check-Up

Every year, some 230,000 Americans die of cancer. It is estimated that at least 75,000 of these victims can be saved if only they are taken care of early.

Many, many cases of early cancer, if not caught early, can be cured if they are discovered and treated early.

The best way to know if you have a complete physical check-up at least once a year. An annual health check-up, if not more so, than an annual bank audit.

Any examination should include special care to detect signs of cancer. Cancer can attack any part of the body, so a thorough examination of every possible area is essential for early detection.

Here, then, is a list of 22 important steps which should be included in your head-to-toe physical examination you go for your next physical check-up.

1. A careful comprehensive case history.

2. Examination of the skin.

3. Examination of the eyes.

4. Examination of the nasal cavity.

5. Examination of the lips and mouth.

6. Examination of the throat and larynx.

7. A careful check by the physician's trained fingers of the neck, including the thyroid gland.

8. Examination of the heart and lungs.

9. Examination of the abdomen.

10. Examination of the back, including the kidney area.

11. In the male, inspection of the external genitalia.

12. In the female, inspection of the external genitalia.

13. Direct visualization of the cervix by the speculum examination.
