Egypt-Bound Liner Sinks In Atlantic

Hundreds Of Lives Believed Lost Including
Scores Of Americans

New York, May 19.—(UP)—The loss of 324 lives, including those of 120 Americans, was feared today when word that the Egyptian-bound liner Zamzam, had been sunk, due to enemy action, in the South Atlantic.

The 8,299-ton steamer carried 39 passengers and a crew of 120. It was bound for Alexandria, Egypt, by way of Recife, Brazil, and Capetown, South Africa.

Of the 24 were young Americans, 12 of prominent families, who had volunteered as members of the British-American ambulance corps to serve as ambulance drivers with the British forces in the middle east and 36 were American passengers of the Roman Catholic and Seventh Day Adventist faiths, according to a dispatch from London that was understood there had been 45 other Americans aboard, though this could not be definitely ascertained because no passenger list was available.

The British-American ambulance corps reported that it had no hope of saving the ship.

This is a terrible blow," said William W. C. Ruxton, president of the corps.

Fragmentary reports seemed to leave no doubt that the ship had been lost. There was no word of the fate of her passengers and crew, which comprised 110 Egyptians and 10 British officers, including Captain William Gray Smith, her master.

A brief dispatch came through the censorship from London that "some members, at least," of the British-American ambulance drivers had been lost, and that the ship was being "by enemy action" in the South Atlantic.

The British-American ambulance corps reported that the ship had been sunk "by enemy action" in the South Atlantic.

We believed we had taken every possible safeguard for the protection of the ship.

Gray, United Air Lines pilot in Chicago, who has more than 1,600,000 flying miles to his credit.

W. A. Kraus, "chief of staff," has gifts division of the membership group of officers for the larger derby, including Armand Hanshaw, Jack Wheeler, Ray Bjorklund, Louis E. Beckman, Charles Mueller, Frank Schneider, Romy Hammes, Martin O'Brien, W. F. Cooper and James J. Mullen.

During the speaker's absence to-night, tomorrow and possibly Wednesday, Rep. Calistus A. Bruer, Pontiac Republican and chairman of the house committee on contingent expenses, will preside over the house.

He was designated by Schnackenberg to do so.

Smooth house sailing is expected for the substitute cigarette tax measure although some "I told you so" criticism of the GOP leaders is anticipated from the Democrats for rejecting amendments they desired to add to the first proposal.

At one point during debate on the previous bill, Rep. T. J. Sullivan, Springfield Democrat, asked the house to accept 17 amendments which would correct what he termed "unconstitutional" features of the bill.

When majority leaders refused, he filibustered for more than two hours, demanding roll call rejection of each amendment.

7 Soldiers In Car Which Hits 2 Trees; 2 Badly Hurt

Seven enlisted men from Chanute field, Rantoul, sustained injuries at 4 o'clock this morning when the car in which they were riding failed to make the curve on highway 45 in Bourbonnais.

Two of the seven suffered possibly serious injuries and remained in St. Mary hospital today. They are Robert Baker, 20, who was still unconscious this morning, and Elmer Johnson, 22, who has head wounds and is suffering from shock.

The others left the hospital after receiving first aid treatment for lacerations and contusions. They are Walter W. Barrett, 22, driver of the car, Thomas H. Smith, 20, the owner, Frank Desher, 21; Warren David, 13, and Neil Gergan, 19.

The car, a 1935 Ford, was traveling through an iron railing, struck two trees and picked up the lawn of the Rev. W. J. Suppan, pastor of St. Mary's church, in front of whose home the accident occurred. The lawn was littered with shrapnel.

Indiana Police Seek Shotgun Slayer Of Five

Rural Family Believed
Attacked By Missing
Dinner Guest

Aurora, Ind., May 19.—(UP)—Police sought a missing dinner guest today in their search for a shotgun slayer who killed five of a southern Indiana rural family and left their bodies strewn over the farmstead.

Authorities said they were uncertain of the motive but indicated it may have been a quarrel. They found a truck crushed with an ax in the attic.

Relative In Custody
Sheriff William Wiegand said a relative of the family was being held in the county jail at Lawrenceburg for questioning.

The dead were Johnson Ague, 60, found lying in a pathway to his house; his wife, Nina, 60, who was slumped over the kitchen stove; their sons, William 33, and Leo 22, whose bodies were discovered in the fields, and the Agues' granddaughter, Mary Elizabeth Bredon, 12, who was found near the barn.

The victims were discovered Saturday during a seven-hour search of the farm after neighbors became alarmed by a gunshot. A team was hatched in a field all night. They apparently had been slain Friday night.

Police found the table in the dining room set for six, although only five lived at the farm. The identity of the expected guest was unknown.

Arrived During Questioning
The ax found beside the trunk failed to yield any fingerprints, Wiegand said.

Quality Cows

Colorado Experiment Station reports that one cow in their herd produced 545 lbs. of butterfat in 12 months—and this one cow showed more profit over cost of her feed than was returned by 13 average dairy cows in that state.

Curing Meat

Minnesota Experiment Station reports that in that state fully as much pork is lost from being frozen as from not being sufficiently chilled before freezing. All animal meat must be out of the meat before it goes into the freezer.

Tiling Silty Soil

Experiment Station found that best crops were secured when tile was placed from 3 to 3½ ft. under the surface—and poorest crops came from a 2 to 3 ft. depth. The experiment also demonstrated that tile should have a grade of at least 4 in. per 100 ft.

Better Clover Catches

If you sow a sufficient sweet for clover—and you inoculate your seedlings, you still find it difficult to get a good catch—Iowa Experiment Station recommends spreading about 4 loads of manure to the acre on top of the clover seed during the winter. Ohio Experiment Station also had excellent results from this method over a long period of years.

Corn Smut and Dairy Cows

North Dakota Experiment Station reports that corn smut appears to be harmless to dairy cows. At the extreme case, two pregnant cows were fed a large quantity of corn smut daily by the end of 40 days the cows were healthy and the milk was good.

Cold Water for Chicks

A while back the USDA raised a bunch of chicks to 10 weeks of age without hot water. They drank—and compared them with another group that had their water heated to between 90° and 99° degrees. This one test showed that (1) ice water did not interfere with the normal yolk absorption, (2) did not interfere with digestion, and (3) did not retard the growth of the chicks.

Protein for Hogs

In recent hog-feeding tests at Minnesota Experiment Station it was found that a mixture of half meat and bone scraps and half soybean meal gave better results than straight meat and bone scrap—and replacing the meat with half alfalfa meal did not improve the mixture. Meat and bone scraps as the sole protein supplement did not give satisfactory results, either in dry lot or on rape pasture.

Tax Program And Farm Benefits Appear As Knottiest Problems

Washington, May 19.—(AP)—Congressional majority leaders, out to preserve their clean record of legislative victories this session, concentrated today on hurrying along half a dozen major measures backed by the administration.

They said it might be possible to recess for a month or two during the summer if all pending administration objectives were achieved promptly and if the foreign situation did not require a continuous session.

Congress already has approved the policy of giving Great Britain all aid short of manpower and has appropriated $7,000,000,000 to back the program. It has voted record army and navy appropriations and is well on the way toward topping all previous congressional spending.

Major proposals still pending, however, are these major proposals:

1.—To raise approximately $3,500,000,000 in new taxes. This is under consideration by the house way and means committee.

2.—To grant the reconstruction finance corporation virtually unlimited power, to expedite the national defense program. This has been passed by the senate.

3.—To give the office of production management authority to say which defense and British aid orders should be filled first. The bill has passed both chambers and the house is expected to accept the senate version soon.

4.—To permit the government to take over foreign ships lying idle in American waters. Both houses have passed this bill but a joint conference committee must adjust differences between their versions.

5.—To extend the President's power to devalue the dollar further and maintain the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund. Neither house nor senate has passed the bill.

6.—To make changes in the selective service act. The army would like to alter the age limit (21 to 38) in order to obtain younger recruits, but opposition has developed in the house military committee.

7.—A bill to appropriate $100,000,000 for a joint senate-house committee. St. Lawrence Seaway President Roosevelt has suggested legislation to permit development of the St. Lawrence seaway, but no such bill has been introduced and because of bi-partisan opposition there has been some talk that none would be offered at this session.

Congress has sent to the White House legislation providing crop loans at 85 per cent of parity prices (the 1909-14 average). Although President Roosevelt said last week he would consider this bill carefully before deciding whether to sign it.

Better Rule Child Late Than Never

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Perhaps you have been led astray by the doctrine that the little child never should be restrained—never spanked—but always should be reasoned with and diverted from wrongdoing by distraction and persuasion. Suppose in consequence you have a child six, eight or ten, who rarely recognizes your authority. What are you going to do about it?

The chances are that emergencies have arisen when you were so distraught that your feelings got the better of you, in a fit of anger you spanked the child. Almost surely you have discovered that he has grown more unmanageable all the while.

What remorse you suffer from your loss of self-control! For two very good reasons: your final attempt at physical punishment was ineffectual. It was not chosen for administered at moments when you were wholly reasonable and self-controlled. It was begun and has been practiced very late.

A Definite Plan

The problem can be corrected, however, even though the child is ten years old. Make a definite plan and stick to it. Needless to say, the task grows increasingly difficult to you and the child, the longer effectual training in the meaning of NO has been delayed.

In order to succeed, both parents should sit down together when the child concerned is not around and decide on a definite program that they are sure will work. They will center their attention on one or two important misdeeds, agreeing to ignore all others less important for the time.

Providing they agree that some physical force will be necessary, they also must agree to limit it solely to inhibitions, and not to making the child do things. They will aim first to establish NO as final, without doubt or argument. Their success will depend chiefly on how rarely they use this monosyllable.

Forbidden Conduct

The specific item of forbidden conduct will calmly be announced to the child and the parents will name the penalty if the act is repeated. Denial of some cherished privilege.

If the child deliberately leaves before the allotted time is ended, a spanking is sometimes justified, provided all the while the parents had acted wholly unemotionally.

Once the child knows, without doubt, that back of every form of milder punishment there is in reserve a physical finality, he won't face the risk of his father's few effectual spankings to make NO final will never need a spanking.

If we want to abolish this punishment and wish to train children for good citizenship, we will teach them basic inhibitions about soon as they can toddle. Then when they are six, eight or ten, they will seldom need punishment of any sort, perhaps none. And when they are in their teens they may rarely have to hear a rebuke.

I still have on hand some reprints of a magazine article of mine entitled, "Do you spank your child?" to be had by writing me in care of
