Thousands Of Farm Folk Gather For Rockford Picnic

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 27.—The annual Rockford picnic, described by its sponsors as the greatest show of its kind on earth, today welcomed thousands from Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa for a day of recreation, sports-making and inspection of exhibits of the midwest's best farm produce.

Farm folk began arriving early and thousands of automobiles clogged roads to nearby country. Among those who arrived were Walter officer, veteran picnic generalissimo and his aide, Burritt Grange, the picnic sponsor, provided the crowd would exceed the 50,000 attendance of other years.

Farmers are prosperous this year, Walter said, the harvest is over and they were eager for a day of fun. It was back in 1910 that Burritt Grange decided to run a modest picnic and selected Potter for the job. Shopping in town, the friends and acquaintances about it to his surprise, several hundred turned out that first year and each year the picnic has grown.

Today's outing, the 31st, had more the aspect of a picnic than a farmers' picnic. It had a mainstay of agricultural exhibits, hot dogs, concessionaires and other standard equipment for state and county fairs.

The profit which Burritt Grange reaped from sales of tickets and refreshments is spent in community work.

International affairs were the subjects chosen by those assigned to the speaking program. Senator C. Wayland Brooks (R-Ill.) previewed an address on his activities in Washington in behalf of keeping the nation out of war.

Frank Shubert, Chicago Daily News foreign correspondent, came to describe his adventures while accompanying a United States military patrol to Iceland.

TOWN CAUTIOUSLY SOLVES FIRE WHISTLE DILEMMA

Carlsbad, N. M., U.P.—The Carlsbad fire whistle is back on schedule—blowing at noon each day just as it did before the floods, the whistle was blown at noon daily—to keep it in order.

However, when the floods came, someone started the report that "if you hear the fire whistle, head for high ground or you'll be drowned."

The mud from the flood turned to dust and still officials wouldn't blow the whistle for fear of starting a back-to-the-hills movement.

RIFLE FIRED ON YONCE, SAYS SPORTSMEN'S GUIDE

Wellington, Conn.—U.P.—Sporting guide Bill Early has fired a rifle only once to save a life.

A deer became a frequent visitor at Early's home, making it a garden near the river. One day Early saw a hunter working in his yard.

He saw that as the deer stood in the yard.

During the winter, the deer would come to the yard. Early would shoot at the deer and a bullet would hit the animal's head. The deer would die.
