Why Congress Should OK Bond Interest Boost

By SAM DAVSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Forty million of us still have a chance of getting better paid for being thrifty.

Congress hasn't yet slammed the door on the proposal of the Treasury that the return on savings bonds — 4½ percent — be raised to 5 percent.

The Treasury says the cost of living is up with its proposal, as well as giving the 40 million a better deal.

In each of the last four months the Treasury has had to pay out more cash in redeeming series E and H bonds than it got from the sale of new ones.

IT GOT THE cash-for this and other pressing needs — by borrowing from other investors in the short-term market. The last such borrowing cost 3½ percent.

The Treasury calls these short-term issues inflationary — thus adding to the pressure for further hikes in the cost of living — because holders that the Treasury bills should like cash, due to their being paid off in such a short time.

The Treasury would like to see the Treasury's short-term borrowing has. The Treasury wishes you would buy more savings bonds and stop redeeming so many before they mature.

The reason you're not redeeming them and slacking up on your purchases is simple. You can get a bigger return than 3½ percent in many bank savings accounts and loan associations — and still higher than that in some other forms of investment.

In his plea to Congress this week to lift the ceiling on savings bond interest rates, and also on market Treasury bonds of one year or more maturity, President Eisenhower took note of another reason many persons have gone sour on savings bonds.

MANY ARE painfully aware that the $75 they put into the bond eight or more years ago could buy as much or more than the $100 they will get now as it matures.

And the President says that the Treasury can't sell long-term bonds today's money market, where demand for funds has pushed yields well above the 4½ percent legal interest limit.

It will have to do all its financing in the short-term market with all the inflation that implies.

In addition to its needs for new cash, the Treasury must refund many loans coming due. Although it will have to go into the money market for the next 12 months for some $5 billion dollars, it will have to pay the going rate of interest. And if all the borrowing is done in the short-term market, interest rates will rise even more — and more government paper looked upon as the next thing to cash could erode the dollars purchasing power still further.

The President says this isn't fair to the holders of savings bonds or to the thrifty American putting his money into other forms of savings.

Urges Churches Give Up Some Tax Exemptions

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Should U.S. churches voluntarily give up some of the tax exemptions they enjoy? The very idea may sound like a heresy to hardpressed church boards struggling with red ink budgets. But the question has been raised by a man who can hardly be called irrelevant or unimportant.

He is the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carl Blake, stated clerk of the United Presbyterian Church and past president of the National Council of Churches.

Writing in the Protestant Journal Christianity Friday, Dr. Blake urges that American churches should voluntarily give up some of the tax exemptions they enjoy.

He does not argue — as some people do — that any special tax treatment of churches is a violation of the constitutional principle which forbids an establishment of religion. On the contrary, he points out that the courts have upheld the government's legal right to encourage "socially desirable undertakings" through tax policies favorable to such institutions as hospitals, schools and churches.

It is the degree of tax exemption now accorded to churches that bothers Dr. Blake.

He says that churches are exempt from all property and income taxes. A recent act of Congress exempted them from paying federal excise taxes on purchases.

Moreover, and this is of particular concern to Dr. Blake — churches may own and operate profit-making businesses without having to pay the 2 percent corporate income tax levied on private firms.

Dr. Blake says, "It is not unreasonable to propose that a large portion of the nation's wealth could come under ecclesiastical control with the next century."

Last year churchmen felt somewhat about this prospect, Dr. Blake says the clear lesson of history is that churches have a right to encourage "socially desirable undertakings" through tax policies favorable to such institutions as hospitals, schools and churches.

Special Dimes March Lags Far Behind

The emergency March of Dimes in Kankakee County has raised only one-eighth the amount of money needed by the local chapter of the National Foundation, the appeal began Aug. 10.

The emergency drive goal was set at $5,000, but thus far only $1,000 has been contributed, and that by 289 persons. Remainder of the 20,000 mailers sent to county residents have gone unanswered, according to Charles Wheeler, chairman of the county chapter.

Outstanding hospital and medical bills for two 1958 cases total $5,000. Patient aid for polio victims is also needed.

Coroner's Jury Rules Double Fatality Accidental

WATSEKA — A coroner's jury Friday night ruled accidental death in the deaths of two persons involved in a head-on car crash Aug. 16 and a half mile west of Crescent City.

Edward Charles Dettman, 70, of Lafayette, Ind., was dead on arrival at Iroquois Hospital here and his wife, Georgia, died two days later at the same hospital.

The Dettmans were driving a 1957 Chevrolet, driven by Mr. Dettman, which crashed head-on into a car driven by Douglas Shonta, 24, of 234 E. Cherry St., Watseka.

Andrew Mayotte, chief deputy coroner for Iroquois County, reported testimony showed that the crash was caused by a truck and was about half way past the truck when the collision occurred. The truck was in the car. He received minor injuries.

Testimony was received from Shonta and State Trooper Harry Nieman. Members of the coroner's jury were Wendell Fleiter, Harold A. Stephens, Kay L. Keiter, Robert A. Lahey, Gerd Wilms and Alvin Luthers. Fleiter was foreman of the Edward Dettman jury and Stephens of the Mrs. Georgia Dettman jury.

Fire Destroys Cabery Farm Home CABERY (INS) — The Cabery Fire Department answered a call Tuesday afternoon to the farm home tenanted by the Walter Davis family, 1½ miles west of town. The home and contents were an entire loss. Also lost was the clothing of a married daughter and her family who had been visiting the Davises.

The fire was discovered by Gerald Nelson of Cabery, who was passing by. There was no one at home when the fire broke out. Nelson's car stalled after he discovered the blaze and he had to walk ½ mile to the John Koerner home to turn in the alarm.

Richard Smith, son of Bradley High Principal, S. A. Smith and Mrs. Smith, is off to a good start in the service.

Dick, who went in from Kansas City, is in guided missile work. He just completed eight weeks at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., where the platoon he headed was ranked No. 1 in camp and where he was rated No. 1 in his company.

The Bradleyman will spend the next two or three months at the guided missile base at Glabe, Kan., and then go to school for six months at Ft. Bliss, Tex.

When the Pan American torch passed by this way (near Dwight) the other day the Kankakees who didn't have to rush over to Rte. 66 to see it was Alvin LaVelle, 118 W. Station St.

Alvin was en route to Ft. Hood, Tex., back on Aug. 11 to meet his sons, Leon and Larry, who were being graduated from basic training.

At McKinney, Tex., Alvin was halted by a traffic light. In fact officers halted the traffic flow from all directions. Alvin was first in line and had a front row seat for watching the ceremony attached to the exchange of the friendship torch between two boy scouts.

A two-hour visitor in Kankakee the other day was former resident Darrell Holland.

Something like 10 years ago Darrell was a ministerial student at Oliver College. As a part-time job he held in the sports department of the Journal.

Among other things he saw Darrell exploded a myth about him that was carried by news services a few years back. A few days before he was to be married he was critically injured in an automobile accident. According to wire stories at that time, Darrell and bride were to be married in the hospital—injuries or not.

During his visit here Darrell explained that some enterprising newspaper editor or less manufactured the story. It was as well believed that when the reported time of the wedding arrived—television crews and a variety of newspaper photographers showed up at the hospital to record the proceeding!

Actually the former Kankakean didn't get married until he was out of the hospital and able to get around on crutches.

Today Darrell is minister of a Congregational Church at Lawrence, Mass. He doesn't have too many financial worries in his congregation of 120 members—since a millionaire built the church and gave it to the congregation!

The ex-Kankakean is completing work toward a master's degree at Harvard University. This fall he plans to start work toward his doctoral degree at Boston University.

A column from McAllen, Tex., reports that Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hendrix of Kankakee are new residents of that community.

It says that Hendrix, whose hobby is wood working, plans to use some of the 13 different varieties of woods growing in the lower Rio Grande valley in making ornamental and useful household articles.

The release says Mr. and Mrs. Hendrix plan to spend part of their time fishing at Padre Island on Gulf of Mexico and Padre Lake or taking sight-seeing trips into Mexico, only seven miles from McAllen.

Anyone who knows Kankakean Whitney Ferris will appreciate this yarn.

As was reported previously in the Journal, Whitney was vacationing in the earthquake area in Montana when the quakes struck. They were asleep in a motel about 15 miles downstream from the point where the mountain impulse hit Madison River.

The first tremor awoke Whitney and he got up to see what was happening. The room bounced around and he learned from the other residents who had fled outdoors that an earthquake was occurring.

After the tremors halted, Whitney went back to bed, asked sleepily, "What's the matter?" His wife, who had not got out of bed, asked sleepily, "Oh, it's just an earthquake." Whitney replied—and the two went back to sleep.

That is—they slept until the next tremor came and sent them both out of the building!

Save a photo and read a story in a Chicago newspaper the other day about the oddity of a city street growing a row of popcorn at its home.

As a city fellow who has been growing popcorn for more years than care to remember, we found this not a bit unusual.

Not nearly so unusual, in fact, as the crop of corn being grown in the second floor eaves of the rectory of St. Rose Church. Indiana nature has told it—corn the crop has been picked—a stock of corn now to the height of about 18 inches can be seen high in the eaves on the west side of the building.

Now to our way of thinking—that's really an unusual place for a "field" of corn!

12-Year-Old Boy Starts Blaze

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. (UPI) — Fire Chief R. George Woods said today that a 12-year-old boy started a fire at a lumber block to ignite them. The boy shot the match heads at a lumber block to ignite them. Woods said. One of them bounced under the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McElroy, and started a fire which took two hours to extinguish.

More than half of Crecheola's natural resources are now naturalized.

Girl Released After Hearing

WATSEKA—An 18-year-old Cahery girl picked up earlier in the week on a charge of petty larceny, has been released on her recognizance, following a hearing before Police Magistrate Leslie V. Strickler, the Waukegan County sheriff's office reported Saturday.

Sharon L. Miller was brought to Waukegan Thursday for questioning in connection with the theft of several purses from the Ashburn Coliseum a week ago Saturday (Aug. 22). She was charged with petty larceny after a complaint was signed against her.

State's Attorney Robert Dannehl reported two other girls were also questioned in connection with the theft, and complaints signed against them but no charges filed as yet.

Singer Haymes' Wife Sued After Attack On Woman

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The wife of singer Dick Haymes faces a possible suit in connection with the alleged attack of a Wilkesburg, Pa., woman who called Haymes a "has been."

Margaret Kelly filed an intention to sue Friday after Mrs. Haymes was served a summons which charged she attacked the woman Thursday night at the Holiday House, a night club.

Attorneys for Mrs. Kelly said the assault was precipitated after their client called Haymes a "has been."

Haymes said the action "sounds like a shakedown."

The singer said his wife, Frances, heard the woman direct "degrading remarks about me to her," while in the ladies' lounge.

Later, according to Haymes, when his wife returned to their table, she asked the woman if she had anything to say.

"Mrs. Haymes then pointed at her and accidentally the woman turned into her fingernail," the singer said.

The number of cattle in the United States increased from 93 million to 97 million during 1958.

LONDON (AP)—In Britain's welfare state, these days may be the height of the Guards.

The Guards are the super-elite units of the British army. Critics call them a private army. They say their influence and a fat bank account plus character, courage, and all the qualifications of a first-class soldier—determine whether a young man can become a Guards officer.

Guardsmen unquestionably occupy unique positions. They guard the kings and queens of England, the kings and queens of England, and the kings and queens of England.

The Irish Guards, The Welsh Guards, The Grenadiers and the Coldstream consist of three battalions each. The Scots have two. The Irish and the Welsh one each.

The super-elite of the super-elite are the life Guards, in their scarlet tunics with blue collars and cuffs, and the Royal Horse Guards with their blue tunics and scarlet collars and cuffs.

Money is essential in the guards. "Chaps in the Household Cavalry buy their own horses, old boys," explains a Grenadier. "And they usually have polo ponies too."

Guardsmen have to entertain. "YOU'RE CONSIDERED rather odd if you don't," says a Welsh Guardsman.

Selection boards choose the officer material in Britain. The Central Manpower Board at the War Office sends the young men to the regiments of their choice. But not so with the Guards. "In the case of the Brigade of Guards," says a War Office spokesman, "all applications for commissions must be made to the regiment concerned. It's just one of those things."

Paris Council To Celebrate Ike's Arrival

PARIS (AP)—The Paris Municipal Council in a rare gesture has called on Parisians to celebrate the arrival of President Eisenhower Sept. 3.

This courtesy gesture was made only once before when the council called on the citizens to turn out to cheer Queen Elizabeth II when she arrived for a state visit in 1956.

134 Lives Lost A Quarter Of A Century Ago

Morro Castle Fire Most Shameful Ocean Tragedy

ASBURY PARK, N. J. (AP)—The fast and luxurious Ward Line passenger ship Morro Castle burned eight miles off the New Jersey shore during the early morning hours of Sept. 8, 1934, with the loss of 134 lives.

Now, a quarter of a century of the strangest, saddest and most shameful in maritime history. It left a record of incredible indifference of officers and men, of tragic hysteria and heart-rending helplessness of passengers, of occasional heroism and prevailing cowardice.

TO THIS DAY there is no good answer to the questions as to where the fire started or how. And while stupidity explains the enormity of the death toll, suspicions of arson and other sinister implications have not been dispelled—and probably never will be.

With the master of the ship dead—the body of Capt. Robert R. Wilmont had been found in his dry bathtub a few hours earlier—and with a nervous first mate, Capt. William F. Warren, now in command, the Morro Castle was sent out to complete another Havana-Venice pleasure cruise. At day it was to have reached quarantine and sail up New York Harbor to its pier.

But it didn't. Neither did the 588 passengers and crew members aboard. One of every four of these was incinerated in the floating crematorium or drowned. The rest came ashore in many ways and in many places.

A ship of smoke was met by a fireman at 2:30 a.m. It became a small blaze that was seen in the flower room by stay-up passengers and fought by three stewards.

half-way down to the smoke-filled engine room, thought better of it and returned to the deck where he, 38 other crew members and only three passengers got into the No. 1 life boat and shoved off to shore—steering through struggling swimmers but not stopping to pick them up.

Many of the crew knew nothing about their emergency duties. Fire doors which might have contained the blaze remained wide open. Warmers steered the ship over an erratic course, with the wind at the bow and the whine of the wind rose the screams of pain, women and children.

PASSENGERS AND crew were not aroused until after the ship was doomed. Some of the passengers were trapped in their smoke-filled or "lazing" rooms. Several had passed out at private parties.

Even longer was the delay in sending out an SOS. Time after time second radio operator George L. Alagna made the 56-foot trip from the radio shack to the bridge for instruction for his chief, George Rogers, to lay out a distress call.

Each time, he later testified, he was ignored by the stunned Capt. Warren, who paced and mumbled, "Am I dreaming, or is it true?" A nearby ship and Coast Guard stations saw and reported the fire before 3:23 a.m., when Capt. Warren finally gave permission to send out an SOS.

heaving ocean. And there were no small boats from New Jersey fishing villages headed through the acid and the squalls to pick up some of the survivors.

On their narrow decks they crowded together the exhausted living, and stacked the dead like cordwood. Lifeboat from three nearby steamers picked up others there was no room then for the dead. A few people swam ashore, sometimes sharing a life preserver. The dead were still floating on the breakers almost a week after the tragedy.

The Morro Castle—abandoned by all except Warren and a small group of sailors huddled on the bow—broke from its low belled puny Coast Guard vessel and, still smoking, its gutted skeleton was washed up and dragged up on the beach behind Convention Hall here in Asbury Park.

A QUARTER-CENTURY a human generation has passed. The Ward Line, fined $10,000 for negligence, is now the Ward-Garcia Line and operates chartered ships under a foreign flag.

The chief radio operator, George Rogers, who remained patiently at his key and sent out the SOS as his shack burned about him and he passed into unconsciousness, died in prison. The disaster's great heat or hero, he turned out to be a homicidal maniac and now, in some quarters, is suspected of setting the fatal fire.

Phenomena Season Is Here Again

It's that time of the year. Garden phenomena "boom" in abundance around the Kankakee area.

Sunflowers grow tall and others grow taller. One man has a melon that weighs in at an outlandish figure while carrots and parsnips are found fashioned in grotesque shapes. In fact, the number of these summertime occurrences have reached a point where newspaper coverage is difficult.

For instance John Casino, 171 S. Michigan Ave., Bradley, is picking Italian squash from a cherry tree. Casino's Italian squash vine, like Jack's beanstalk, is growing high toward the sky by climbing the cherry tree. The vine has about 15 outstretched squashes.

JOHN HAS NOTHING on his brother, Frank, who lives across the street at 172 S. Michigan Ave., and has a sextuplet tomato—six tomatoes which have grown together and are 15 inches across.

And there's Alvin Schelger, a mile south of the Wyandotte, whose garden has produced a strange muckmold. The twin melons are about six inches in diameter and their joining link is about two inches across.

Young Bradlyan Carol Halliday, 146 N. Clinton Ave., says her friend, Kay Ann Coy, of N. Clinton Ave., planted a sunflower seed in her yard and that they've watched it grow, becoming as tall as they are and now standing 14½ feet. Its flower measures 13 inches across, Carol says.

ATTRACTING A LOT of attention at Alhauri has been a passion flower of the Rev. Ralph Dean. The flower recently bloomed.

The plant world is not alone in its fascination to people. A quiet, interested audience is watching the progress of heavers who've been busy gnawing and sawing at a big tree near the Morris Wasser cottage, six miles northwest on Route 113N.

GRETCHEN SCHAEFER, age 2½, at that time said to be the youngest child in the United States to fly in an airplane, with her mother (the late Eleanor Myers Schaefer) and pilot Harold C. Gilbert. The lower wing of the plane had several patches where repairs were made to cover holes punched in the fragile fabric by cows grazing on the make-shift airport.

Up 'til Now

A Scrapbook History, Old And New, Compiled By The Kankakee County Historical Society

Kankakee History "PETE" SCHAEFER WAS HIGHER THAN A KITE By HAROLD W. SIMMONS

Long before the airplane was an accepted method of transportation it was considered quite daring to go up in the air in one of the contraptions. Very few civilians were willing to take a chance and risk their neck even for a thrill. In case one did go up "in the wild blue yonder" the event was given considerable space in the public press.

The issue of the KANKAKEE DAILY REPUBLICAN forty years ago records just such an event.

"Aug. 14, 1918, PETE SCHAEFER UP IN THE AIR. Manager of the Majestic and wife and daughter ascend heavenward. Two year old daughter has as much fun as anybody. Joyful 'Pete' Schaefer, manager of the Majestic theatre, imagined himself just a little above the common people of Kankakee and vicinity Wednesday evening, and keeping his nose high in the air, refused to converse with 'passersby'."

"The fact of the matter is that 'Pete' was up in the air in an airplane. Although he will not admit it, it is needless to say that he was just a bit nervous as the great motor began to send the propeller revolving at a terrific pace and the heavier than air machine ascended toward the planets."

"PETE HAS A SISTER WHO is an aviatrix, and it has long been his desire to take a trip heavenward, as she had written him, 'there is absolutely nothing to it, nothing to be feared.' The genial theatre manager's opportunity came Wednesday night when with his wife and daughter, he drove to the flying field near the state hospital and after a few preliminary skirmishes with his nerves, bundled himself into the machine with pilot Gilbert and off they ascended. 'Pete' did not forget to make the flight an 'advertising one' and took advantage by carrying with them thousands of heralds announcing four shows coming to his playhouse."

"Pete says that people cannot appreciate the wondrous beauty of the earth until they have been up in the air and look down upon it. 'Everything looks so pretty and beautiful and with so much regularity. The river has the appearance of a silver ribbon, winding in and about in graceful curves. Mrs. Schaefer was equally enthusiastic as was her husband and was also little Gretchen, who went up with her mother and enjoyed fully fifteen minutes in the air.'

"Owners of the airplane declared that Gretchen might possibly be the youngest person in the country to have gone up in an airplane. They were somewhat reluctant at first to take the child but on the father expressing a willingness, they accepted the passengers."

"That the event was a most unusual one is evidenced by the fact that on Sept. 3, 1918 the story of the flight was carried in the Chicago Herald Examiner with a picture of the plane with pilot Gilbert and his two passengers, the latter in the observer's cockpit."

However, the article in the Republican did not relate all of the facts concerning the flight. From information recently obtained from the pilot of the plane, Harold C. (Chak) Gilbert, the flight almost came to an untimely end. It seems that "Pete" had been standing up in the tiny observer's cockpit in order to throw out the advertising material he had taken up with him."

He apparently had forgotten that one didn't stand up while the plane was in flight. As they were coming in for the landing his weight caused the plane to become tail heavy and the ship almost collided with the clock in the tower at Kankakee State Hospital. The plane just skimmed over the tree tops and was finally brought under control and a landing made at the so-called airport. This was really a cow pasture on the hospital grounds."

The plane, according to Gilbert, was an ONS, a surplus training ship of the Canadian Air Force. A group of local men had purchased it in Chicago from an automobile dealer for about $2,000 and Lt. Gilbert was engaged to do the flying. It was strictly a business venture and the fee for a flight was five dollars for a two minute trip. Power was furnished by one motor and the speed obtained was about eighty-five miles per hour.

During World War I Lt. Gilbert served first with the French army and then transferred to the United States Air Force. His unit was the 7th Aero Squadron, of the 1st Pursuit Group. In the group were such famous flyers as Luke the "Bullock Buster," Eddie Cackebacker, James Hall, Reed Chambers and later Charles Lindbergh.

Burrell Will 'Listen' To Pro Bids

Football practice starts Monday at the University of Illinois and for Captain Bill Burrell it's the beginning of a period that may determine his entire future.

The 20-pound guard, whose home is at nearby Olathe, showed last season that he has the makings of an All-American, but whether or not he receives such recognition depends a great deal on how successful he is in the question mark Illinois is this campaign. They're lightly regarded in the Big 10 forecasts but some observers rate him as a pretty good darkhorse.

Unfortunately, it's difficult for a player on a losing team to gain the stamp of approval of the All-American selectors, no matter how brilliant a performer he is. Burrell, who began his brilliant football career at Kankakee, is a senior at the University of Illinois.

First name's Bob and he played last year at Sigourney, Iowa, which is quite a mouthful, too. In Germany, where the name originated and is quite common, "Schimmel" means white horse and "pennig" means penny.

Preps Start Grid Drills Monday

Ineligibilities, Transfers Hurt Bradley

By GIL BRENNER

Ten month ago Bradley-Bourbonnais grid coach Jerry Lennon predicted better things in 1959 for the team's football fortunes. Today, on the eve of opening practice for the '59 season, Lennon is still maintaining his optimism, although it has been tempered slightly by the fact the Bradleys already have lost 16 squelchers through ineligibility and transfers.

The Bradley varsity will have its opening practice at 7 a.m. Monday. If the weather is favorable there is a possibility the coaching staff will put the boys through a second workout during the afternoon.

With the Bradley school opening on Tuesday the squad will move to 4 p.m. practices beginning on Thursday.

Although the bulk of the losses to the squad are among younger players there are some serious blows to the Bradley cause. Most damaging is the transfer of all-around athlete Jack Chido to California. Chido, a co-captain of the team, was figured to be a star in the line, at forward in basketball and almost anything you can name in track.

GRADE FAILURES The last semester took two other regulars out of the team. Bill Sullivan, center Murray Carboneau, as well as three others who were in the line, failed in their first semester. Sullivan, a halfback, was starting positions—halfback Dick Gurney and Bill Neff.

A search for backs and ends to go with a more than adequate corps of linemen started at Kankakee High School Monday when Coach Bill O'Connell and his aide launch practice for the 1959 football season.

O'Connell, assisted by newcomers Frank Duchen and Len Bujowski, will hold practices twice daily all week, starting at 8 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. If the heat wave lets up, O'Connell said, these starting times may be changed. He plans 90-minute drills for each session.

A total of 33 varsity candidates have been named for the team. O'Connell is looking for a total of 33 varsity candidates. O'Connell is looking for a total of 33 varsity candidates.

SSAC Plays Bauer Buick Here Today

Either Ken Palmer or Denny Rasmussen will take the hill this afternoon for Kankakee State Athletic Club when the South Sideers battle Bauer Buick of Blue Island at Beckman Park for third place honors in the John Sullivan baseball league.

Game time is 1:30 p.m. and the winner will earn a berth in the post-season John Sullivan circuit tournament to be played next week. The three top teams from each of the north and south divisions of the JS league will be involved in the tourney.

This is the fourth time Kankakee and Blue Island have met. SSAC has won two of the previous three meetings. Last year, Ken Palmer, behind Palmer, beat BB in the final game of regular season play.

21 Lettermen Make St. Pat's Outlook Bright

By JOHN BOWMAN

Frank Chido, the coach who has guided St. Patrick Central football teams to 21 victories in 24 games over the past three seasons, has the problem of finding at least two ends and two backfield men as he prepares to start his fourth campaign at the helm of the Fighting Irish.

The successful St. Patrick grid mentor will have 21 lettermen returning to the team. Chido expects several more players to be added to the roster this week.

Carp, Catfish Biting Nice Catches Reported Despite Hot Weather

By JOHN BOWMAN

Not many people are enthusiastic about staying outside for any length of time these hot 80 degree days, let alone going fishing.

Three Kankakee anglers, however, reported two fine catches of fish last week, including a dozen nice-sized carp and 38 catfish.

Bob Bertrand, 241 North 9th Ave., and his 12-year-old companion Dee LaPine, 341 North 7th Ave., landed 38 catfish between Tuesday and Thursday. The fish weighed between two and seven pounds. 14. The best catch being a 7 1/2 pound, 14 ounce fish, which fell in a local sporting goods shop's summer fishing contest.

The two anglers, fishing in the evening, used clam bait on spinning rods and six to eight-pound test lines.

Louis Homa, 403 S. Rosewood Ave., caught 12 carp totaling nearly 60 pounds on the Kankakee river near the Kankakee Valley Elks Golf Club.

Four of them were 20 inches or longer and weighed up to 10 pounds each. The best catch was a 10 1/2 pound, 14 ounce fish, which fell in a local sporting goods shop's summer fishing contest.

There are some catches, however, which will probably stand out in the contest, which ends Nov. 1.

Arnet Dressler's 3-year-old, 4 ounce fish is one. Dennis Homa's 8 pound, 5 ounce bass is another prize-winner as is Glen Bradshaw's 25-pound bass.

Orme Cops Sprint Car Feature

Steve Orme of Sherman made his sprint car debut a successful one at the Kankakee Fairgrounds Speedway Friday evening by securing his first place in the 20-lap feature.

Orme was also first in one eighth heat event and salvaged a place in the 10-lap trophy race.

Seasoned veteran Bill Guegley accounted for seven of the 10 laps in the feature race and the determined youngster took the rest of the race.

Guegley was an early leader and was breezing along unchallenged when Orme came on the scene. Orme had come in five laps from last to second place.

Guegley fought him off for two laps but Orme finally powered his way to the lead for good with less than half the race gone.

This was the final big car show of the season here. The racing season closes at the fairgrounds next Friday evening with a big 250-lap stock car race with a $500 guarantee for the winner.

Fullmer Ready To Give Basilio Return Match

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Gene Fullmer wants Carmen Basilio to get another crack at the NBA midweight title which Fullmer won Friday night by stopping the New York onlin farmer in the 14th round.

The nationally televised fight was a bruiser, but the underdog Fullmer led all the way. When it was over the Mormon Sunday school teacher from West Jordan, Utah said Basilio had swelled a rematch with his opponent effort. Gene's eyes were swollen and nearly closed, Basilio looked even worse.

BASILIO, HIS HANDS DIPPED IN ICE

Basilio, who was too tired to talk anything, let alone another fight.

It was my toughest fight," said the 25-year-old Fullmer, who previously had won and lost in title fights with Ray Robinson, who was the Kankakee Valley Elks Golf Club champion.

Fullmer, heavier by 35 pounds at 159½, went after Basilio from the start, scoring with stinging left jabs followed by stiff rights.

CHICAGO (U)—The Redwheats' coming back, but where'll the Braves put him?

Is Baseball Dying? Check The Figures

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Baseball dying? Not so anyone can notice it. The largest crowd to witness a regular major league game this season—70,150—turned out at Cleveland Friday night to watch the first-place White Sox defeat the second-place Indians, 7-2.

Another 66,000 flocked to the Los Angeles Coliseum to see the Los Angeles Dodgers defeat the St. Louis Cardinals, 5-4.

HANEY HINTED he may alternate the 36-year-old Schoendienst and Avila for a while.

Even if Red's sitting on the bench, a guy with his effectiveness has got to help the ball club," spoke Hayney.

Home Of The Week

KANKAKEE SUNDAY JOURNAL
18 Sunday, Aug. 30, 1959

A braided rug, brass gleaming near the fireplace and traditional influences create a country living at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Meyer Jr. The residence is located on Walden road and was the original home in the Oakwoods subdivision.

The Meyers have made a considerable change in the interior of the brick and stone home, emphasizing an Early American decor. This is clearly carried out throughout the home but is particularly evident in the family room. A 9 x 12 foot braided rug dominates the room which is paneled in pine with a cedar finish. Appointments like a pine cabinet's bench help to add atmosphere. Walnut ceiling beams in the room came from a barn on family property of former owners, the Byers Leutolds. Blue stone in the room's fireplace was also from that barn.

Even though the home is now one of many in the subdivision, it retains a "country living" atmosphere because it stands on a 10 x 200 foot lot.

The Meyers have three children, Mike, 4, Martha, 4, and Chris, 1½. They moved to Kankakee five years ago and have been in their present location for three and a half years. Prior to that time, they lived in Denver, Colo. for two years. Mrs. Meyer is originally from Galesburg and her husband from Champaign.

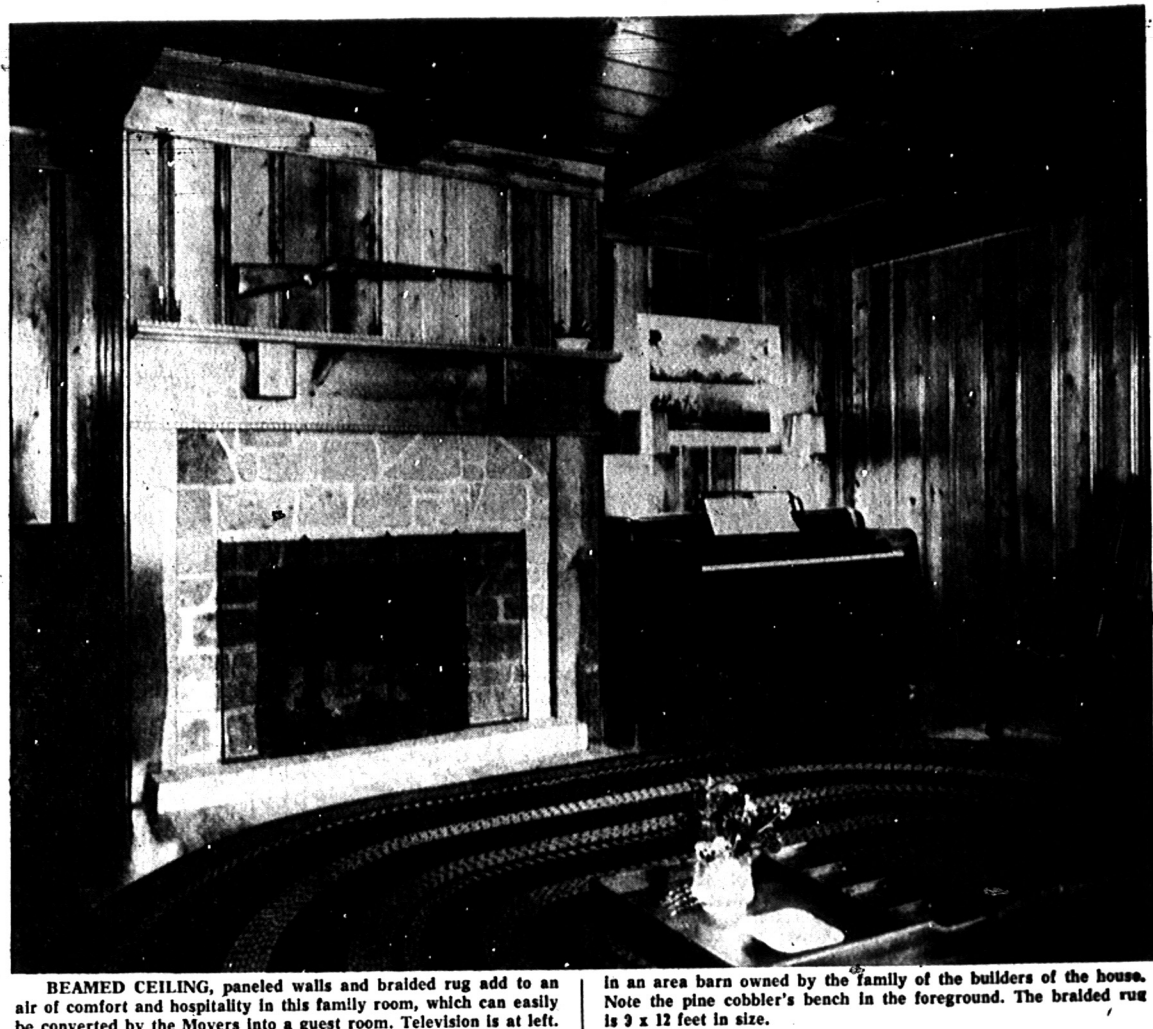

The paneled family room was added by the original owners, but the Meyers changed the location of the kitchen from one side of the home to the other. They have paneled it in pine, with a maple finish and have given it a strong Early American flavor.

In addition to the living room, dining area, kitchen and family room, the Meyer home includes three bedrooms, bath, port basement and attached garage. Hot water heating is used.

There are two fireplaces, in the living and family rooms. That fact, coupled with the attractiveness of the trees surrounding the house, influenced the Meyers in their search for a home away from the city. They feel that their home is especially geared to the children.

Furnishings, many in maple, suit the overall theme. Some pieces are family treasures, like the child's Victorian dresser which was made in Freeport, Va. and belonged to Martha Meyer's great-grandmother. It is a prominent living room piece now.

The total result of the careful remodeling and furnishing in the Meyer residence is a homey atmosphere, both attractive and comfortable.

BEAMED CEILING, paneled walls and braided rug add to an air of comfort and hospitality in this family room, which can easily be converted by the Meyers into a guest room. Television is at left. Some of the wood and the fireplace stones were originally located in an area barn owned by the family of the builders of the house. Note the pine cabinet's bench in the foreground. The braided rug is 9 x 12 feet in size.

ON THE HOUSE

BY ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

We never thought we'd see the day when we'd be writing about the painting of swimming pools.

In the first place, there weren't enough persons owning swimming pools a few years ago to make it worthwhile.

In the second place, anybody who owned a swimming pool in those days was hardly the type who would do his own painting.

But today swimming pools are owned by the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker, all anxious to enjoy the advantages of backyard recreation. There are pools made of concrete, masonry blocks, steel, of aluminum, of fiber glass and of vinyl, with a host of other materials.

One of the latest uses especially treated wooden siding, which is covered with a plastic lining.

Obviously, some of these materials require less maintenance than others. But painting makes most pools more attractive, keeps concrete from chipping and metal from corroding and gives a smooth surface that is easier to keep clean and sanitary.

Paints for concrete must be resistant to the alkali that attacks ordinary paints and must be able to resist the chemicals used to purify the water. There is a special type of paint formulated to meet these problems and is known quite naturally, as swimming pool paint. It covers about 200 square feet per gallon. Since this paint dries rapidly, it is important to follow the directions on the label very carefully.

Portland cement water paint also are used for pools but have a tendency to chalk as they age. And it is difficult to repaint unless the chalk is removed. A combination latex-cement-water paint has been developed to meet this objection. There is also a vinyl solution paint that gives excellent service but it must be applied by experts to give a completely satisfactory result.

Steel swimming pools must be given a first coat of marine anti-corrosive primer. This is followed by a topcoat designed for marine use.

PROPER PREPARATION OF THE SURFACE is, of course, essential for a good result. A concrete pool that has been painted should be scrubbed to remove oil, dirt, algae and other foreign materials. Use a stiff bristled brush and a good household detergent. Then hose the pool thoroughly. If what appears to be dirt does not wash off, it may be that a mold is present. Destroy it with a household bleach and again hose down completely.

Another recommended operation is previously unpainted pools is to scrobble, but where the old paint is in poor condition, chalking and peeling, it should be removed by sand blasting, usually a professional job. In the case of a steel pool, all rust should be removed when the sand blasting is done. The pool should be primed immediately with the marine anti-corrosive primer previously mentioned.

The methods of applying the paint depends on the smoothness of the surface. For a concrete pool that is not extremely smooth, a spray or brush will do a better job than a roller, but a roller will lay down a heavier coat of paint faster. A good idea is to use a skid-resistant paint on walkways and holes in the surface.

It's a good idea to use a skid-resistant paint on walkways and holes in the surface.

Handy Paint Mitt Is Good For Odd Corners

BY MR. FIX
Distributed by NEA Service

Finger painting moves into the big time with a handy paint mitt now in the market.

Designed to ease painting jobs in hard-to-reach places, the mitt comes in two styles, with or without thumb. Material is of lamb skin, similar to professional paint roller covers.

The mitt is used by dipping the painting side lightly into the paint container, then applying the paint to the surface with only slight pressure.

The mitt is shaped by the hand inside to conform to contours of the object.

The finished product will have the same texture as roller-applied paint, and runs and streaks will be held to a minimum.

Of course, the mitt may also be used for applying varnish and stain to furniture, or coats of paint to the paint.

Yachting buffs will find that the mitt makes short work of masts, outriggers, seats, ribbing, deck furniture and ventilators. Some of the hitherto troublesome paint jobs that will be simplified are on such items as basement pipes, gutters and downspouts, yard light poles, wrought iron railings, ducts and ventilating connections, and radiators.

IRREGULAR shaped machinery in the home workshop will also be a duck soup to the paint mitt.

Farmers will have no trouble finding candidates for the mitt's feather touch.

ITEMS SUCH AS barn stanchions, windmills, weather vanes, dairy and poultry equipment, farm machinery and garden tool handles lend themselves easily to this form of painting.

While we're listing things, here are a few more possibilities that you might have given up on around your own home: Oil tanks, pipes, the book also suggests using large leaves, pieces of bark, and even plant blossoms to give some attractive textile designs.

A person who is artistic may do fine freehand motifs, providing the pigments are thinned out for proper handling. Ordinary artist blue color thinned with equal proportions of turpentine and strong vinegar paint, varnish and enamel include turpentine, benzene, white lacquer will not be subjected to frequent laundering.

Can Design Textiles With Potato Masher

Design your own textiles—a window curtain, drapery of upholstery material—for a genuine thrill. All you need are gizmos like a potato masher, bottle caps, erasers, rubber bands and bits of wood.

Types of fabric printing vary with the design you may wish to apply, says Francis J. Kafka in "The Hand Decoration of Fabrics" (McKnight & McKnight).

The book treats in detail the various areas of textile decoration.

Stenciling is described as a technique of applying dyes or pigments through a cut-out design or pattern.

Batik is a resist dyeing process in which the design is applied to the fabric with material that resists the action of a dye.

Block printing employs carved blocks of wood and other substances which are charged with paints or dyes and impressed onto the fabric.

The dying is another resist method of dyeing achieved by tying or cord being tied tightly around fabric prior to immersion in dye bath.

Freehand painting is a technique in which paint is applied freehand with a brush.

Silk screen painting is a stencil-type technique.

Block printing is perhaps the easiest method for the amateur. A regular commercial block printing you might have given up on around your own home: Oil tanks, pipes, the book also suggests using large leaves, pieces of bark, and even plant blossoms to give some attractive textile designs.

Your Family Guests Can Provide An Education For Children

By DR. PAUL POPENOE
Parents are expected to provide an education for their children and many of them find it hard to do so. Let me suggest that you don't have to do the job alone! Make somebody else do some of your work for you. To be more specific, make your guests educate your children. I think many of us fail to realize how important that is, although, as we look back at our own childhood, some of our most prominent memories center on visitors in the home and their conversations. There are always wide differences in family practice.

Mrs. S. has brought up this question by writing: "I grew up in England where, at least in our circle, the children ate by themselves when parents had guests. That seems the natural procedure for me. My husband thinks we ought to have the children at the table always. We have a boy and girl who are as well behaved as the average, and we are both proud of it. I would be glad to show them off, too, but it does complicate things."

In the first place, Mrs. S., get away from the idea that the children are there to be shown off. That's an easy way to ruin them for life. A baby is, of course, better off to take his supper alone before the guests arrive, so he can be put to bed in peace. But, if your son and daughter are old enough to understand ordinary conversation, by all means give them the advantage of being with visitors. Sociologist James S. Boarder has called attention to the value of "company" in the education of your offspring. Whether at the dinner table, in the living room, or out-of-doors, children should be exposed to visitors as much as possible. Among the advantages are:

1. Guests expose the children to new customs and beliefs, new ideas and new language, thereby broadening them.

2. Guests help the children to understand the place of their own family in the world.

3. Guests may stimulate the children, intellectually. Of course, there may be undesirable results, too. It depends on the guest. But Dr. Boarder and his collaborator, Eleanor S. Bull, who studied 200 autobiographies, decided that guests were an important factor in the maturing of children. Give your children every chance in this way. When they're old enough, encourage them to take part in conversations. Let them learn gradually and by experience what the outside world is like, and let them find out that they are capable of taking a creditable part in that world.

Q. My high school daughter resents it when I sit up for her. Shouldn't she be a conscientious mother do that? She says she won't and I say maybe that's where delinquency starts!

A. Sitting up won't necessarily prevent delinquency. Write me in care of the Journal, with a stamped, self-addressed envelope, for my free reading list No. 32 for the parents and teachers of teenagers. I think you'll do better to have a definite understanding in advance as to when she will return, with agreement that she will not be delayed. As long as she lives up to this agreement you needn't sit up for her.

I think you'll do better to have a definite understanding in advance as to when she will return, with agreement that she will not be delayed. As long as she lives up to this agreement you needn't sit up for her.

Q. My high school daughter resents it when I sit up for her. Shouldn't she be a conscientious mother do that? She says she won't and I say maybe that's where delinquency starts!

A. Sitting up won't necessarily prevent delinquency. Write me in care of the Journal, with a stamped, self-addressed envelope, for my free reading list No. 32 for the parents and teachers of teenagers. I think you'll do better to have a definite understanding in advance as to when she will return, with agreement that she will not be delayed. Under 21...by Dan Halligan

DEAR DAN: I'm going away to college next month and my folks and I still haven't settled our big problem. I want to live in a regular dorm with other fellows my age and my parents want me to stay with my father's cousin. I'd be paying rent in the private home so it wouldn't be a matter of saving money. We've talked about this a half-dozen times but still haven't decided. What do you think I should do?

—Will T.

DEAR WILL: The dorm and the relative's house have equal merit so it boils down to your personal choice. I wouldn't want to influence you either way but I'm sure your choice will be the best.

DEAR DAN: I read your column every day and really like it. I've noticed that several of the kids have said they love their girl friends or boy friends. Do you really think they know what love is? I'm going steady and have been going steady for the last year and a half. My boy friend and I say we love each other and I think he means it but I often wonder if I do. I even wonder if I know what love is. If you have room in your column, please publish this, my boy friend and I are teenagers.

—My Very Good Friend

DEAR FRIEND: Your letter was certainly a refreshing piece of information and speculation. Rather than attempt to answer your question, I'll lay them out for teenagers all over the country and in Canada to see and study. Some of the unsolicited answers should be interesting.

DEAR DAN: My sister and I are engaged to soldiers who are going next May. We need work badly but have been unable to find any at home. We are both nurses and have had offers for good jobs about 35 miles away. Our boy friends object but we need the money. Are we being unreasonable or are they? Please let us know—Soon.

DEAR SONIA: You've got to be practical and if a job won't come to you, you've got to go to the job. If your boy friends have a better answer, now's the time to come up with it.

DEAR DAN: I am 17 and recently met a boy of 19. He is really nice and I'm beginning to care a lot about him. My parents seem to like him too but I'm not sure how they would feel if they knew he had been married. He made his mistake about a year ago and only stayed married about six months. I'm afraid if I tell my parents about this, they'll stop me from seeing him. Even if my parents don't stop me, do you think this could put a black mark on my reputation? I am depending on my answer so please help me—Confused.

DEAR DAN: Divorces are never nice and while some may be justified, some aren't. Therefore, I'm in no position to put a blanket approval or disapproval on this situation. You must certainly should tell your parents and tell them the circumstances. The circumstances of the divorce would determine how it would affect your reputation. However, your first job is to tell your parents and let them decide. At least your conscience will then be clear.

DEAR DAN: I am 11 years old and most of my friends have nice steady boy friends. The boys even give them rings. I told them we were too young for that. This year something funny happened. Every year our neighbor's nephew visits and we've always been good friends. Once we wrote to each other. Then this year he gave me a ring. I thought it was a joke but when I took it off, I found it was real. I was the advice I gave my friends wrong? Should I stick to my advice? I'd just like to know even though I may be wrong—Marie.

DEAR MARIE: Your advice was 100 per cent correct and don't let anyone change your mind, Frankie, why parents permit this type of situation to continue when girls of 11 are concerned is too deep for me to figure out. I think a lot of families turn off their television sets for one evening, get serving on "civic building groups" for awhile and get better acquainted within the four walls of their own homes. An evening spent informally by a family could bring a lot of surprises.

Meet Canadian PM, Discuss Fishing Lore

The Walter Franklins, 1245 S. Washington Ave., thought they were "getting away from it all" when they flew to a remote northern Saskatchewan village for a week's vacation.

But it proved to be one of the most exciting trips for the family who has flown to such distant points as the Isle of Pines in the Caribbean Sea, Nova Scotia and the West Coast.

With the nearest telephone 100 miles away, the Franklins expected to spend a quiet week of fishing and relaxing.

Then John Diefenbaker, Prime Minister of Canada, arrived to spend a two-day vacation at the same village. The Franklins had an opportunity to become acquainted with the man who is the most important personage they ever expect to meet.

IN THIS isolated territory, there are just two forms of transportation—air and water. Diefenbaker flew into the hamlet on the regular flight of the Saskatchewan government operated airline, "just like any ordinary passenger," Franklin said.

Cat Brings PARAKEET BACK ALIVE

A Bradley woman, who already has 11 parakeets of her own, made it an even dozen Friday afternoon, when her Angus cat, Mac, caught one flying around the neighborhood and brought it home.

Mrs. Martin Bruggert, 755 Jonette Ave., said her daughter, Lola, 11, and another child first saw the bird about 2:30 p.m. They tried to catch it, but only succeeded in chasing it into a neighbor's yard.

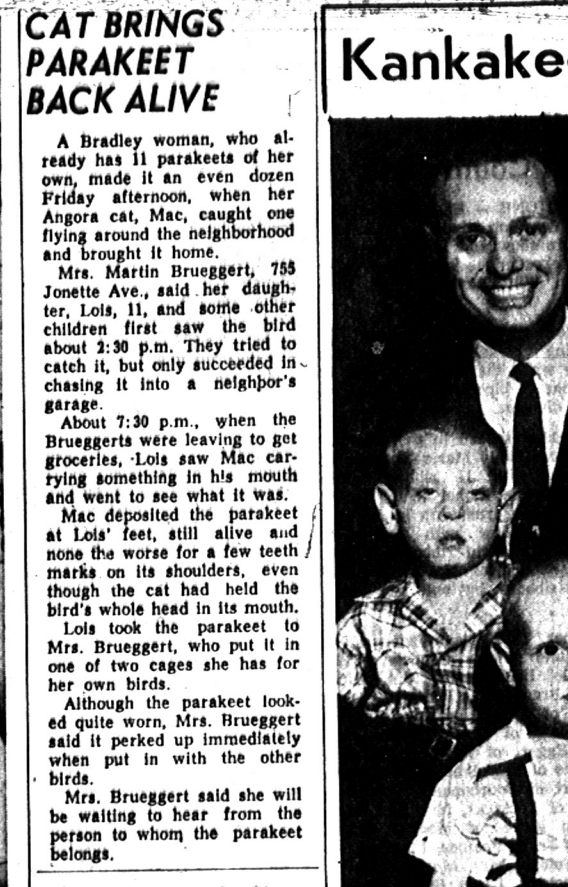

About 7:30 p.m., when the Bruggerts were leaving to get groceries, Lola saw Mac carrying something in his mouth and went to see what it was.

Mac deposited the parakeet at Lola's feet, still alive and none the worse for a few teeth marks on its shoulder, even though the cat had held the bird's whole head in its mouth.

Lola took the parakeet to Mrs. Bruggert, who put it in one of two cages she has for her own birds.

Although the parakeet looked quite worn, Mrs. Bruggert said it perked up immediately when put in with the other birds.

Mrs. Bruggert said she will be waiting to hear from the person to whom the parakeet belongs.

Wilmington Police Urge Care Near School Children

WILMINGTON (JNS)—Chief of Police Paul Riley, has asked motorists to be watchful for children going to and from school.

Riley urged that drivers be watchful not only near the schools but along the route taken by children. Children frequently dart out in the street and some youngsters, he said, are careless.

School administrators instructed pupils about traffic rules and regulations, but during the first days of school parents must accept the responsibility for teaching their children the rules of safe walking and bicycle safety until safety courses in the school can be completed.

OKACE LUTHERAN Church will hold a voter's assembly at noon today. Activities for the fall election will be discussed. The bulletin will be sent after the voter's meeting.

Miss Baker went with a group of 35 sponsored by Greenville College under "Study Abroad" to New York City, and talked on the T.S.S. New York. The group studied Humanities, art, music, sculpture and European culture.

They landed in Lattave, France and spent several days in Paris. From there they travelled to Switzerland where they spent two days in the Alps and visited the point of interest in Lucerne.

Italy was the next country on their itinerary where they spent a week. Points of interest which they viewed and studied were old ruins, the Colosseum, the Leaning Tower of Pisa. They attended an opera under the stars at the Roman Baths. Venice's high point was the gondola rides. They visited many cathedrals, such as St. Peter's, St. Paul's, St. Francis of Assisi.

They found Italy to be quite historical and artistic. Austria proved to be very much like Switzerland.

At Rottenberg, Germany, they saw one of the most famous old bulwark fortresses. The famous castles were interesting and they took a cruise down the Rhine river.

Miss Baker purchased a handkerchief trimmed with the famous Belgium lace while in Belgium. They toured several of the famous World's Fair Buildings, including the "Atomium" which may become as famous as the Eiffel tower.

In Holland they toured the Delft Pottery factory at Delft, then sailed on an all night ship to cross the channel to England where they landed at Southampton.

Miss Baker especially liked London because there was no language barrier. She said it made her appreciate English and the art of communication. In London they toured Madame Tussaud's wax works which is famous for its historical figures in wax, among whom are Queen Elizabeth, President Eisenhower, Harry Truman, Abe Lincoln and many outstanding people of the world.

They witnessed the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace then visited Windsor Castle. They attended a ballet and also a

Burrell, Illini Captain, Talks At Clifton

CLIFTON (JNS) — Bill Burrell, former Central High School football star and 1958 captain of the University of Illinois football team, was a guest speaker at a meeting of the Lions Club held Thursday evening.

Burrell, who graduated from Central in 1956 and is now a senior at the University of Illinois, outlined the personnel of the 1959 Illinois team. Letters are available for every position with the exception of the left end position he said with a line which can be fielded that will average 222 pounds per man and have good speed, agility and experience.

Sophomores played a major role in last year's backfield play and they will be augmented by a new crop of sophomores who are capable of supplying the outside speed, Burrell reported. The team as a unit is expected to be strong defensively, he added.

Burrell said his future plans might take him to any one of three fields: professional football, an army career or additional education to prepare him for work in physical therapy. He is married to the former Delores Adams of Kankakee and they are expecting their first child in October.

Following his talk Burrell narrated a showing of the film of the 1959 Northwestern Illinois Football game.

Thirteen members and two dance demonstrations by Penny Weber, Evelyn Bertrand, Cheryl Weber, Sandy Jensen, David Seville, Kathy Gebhardt, Vicki Windmiller, Donna Easterling, Nancy Kelly, Laura Smith, Janice Harenski, Andrea and Roberta Noris, Paul Byrns, Marilyn Loving, Kathy Vadeboncoeur, Janet Fredlund, Patty Wood, Cheryl Swain, Christine Michaels, Kay East, Pam Swanson, Cheryl Balk, Marcia Horn, Carol, Joan and Kathy Vadeboncoeur, Carolyn Gates.

Following the program, the group ended the evening with a swim.
