SPILLWAY TAKES FLOOD WATERS, CAIRO CHEERED

Earthen Bulwark Is Constructed Atop the Seawall.

ESTABLISH CAIRO

Cairo, Ill., Jan. 28.—This historic river city, caught as it is in the grip of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, held a five-foot high wall of water today while the spillway took the brunt of the flood waters for just a few hours.

"Thanks to the work of a thousand men, a three foot earthen bulwark topped the city 60-foot wall, while the Ohio's floodwaters, which rose to a level of 58.6 feet two days ago, had gone down to a fraction less than 58.

But the worst is yet to be expected, for river experts have predicted a new rise will reach a crest of 62 feet by Sunday.

Two of Cairo's neighbor cities were completely under water and more than 8,000 persons in this area evacuated, but those who remained inside the wall expressed confidence the city would win its battle.

"Just tell the world we're here and will be for a long time," declared Mayor August Bode.

Emergency camps were set up below the confluence of the two mighty rivers 20,000 refugees were sheltered in southeastern Missouri emergency camps. Many of them watched the rising water spread over their farmland in a vast spillway flooded by government engineers to relieve the pressure at Cairo.

Below here in the "hottel" of southeastern Missouri, apprehension sprang from the thing that comforted Cairo, blasting the great river into the sprawling floodway for his first trial.

High water that passed Cairo, at the southern tip of Illinois, rose steadily in the 121,000-acre flood basin.

Expecting the basin to fill today, hundreds who were driven from their homes huddled in concentration camps and repeated one question: Will the setback leave?

All but 110 of the 8,000 who lived in the spillway were out safely, and some brought exciting tales of rescue.

River Towns Anxious

A 30-year-old farmer, Welton Richardson, was swept off his feet when gaps were dynamited out of the Riverside levee. He found haven on a barn roof and there a plane pilot spotted him three days later. A chicken, a cat and a dog were his company.

Half the population was gone from New Madrid, at the lower tip of the floodway. Most of the stores were closed, some boarded up. Workers and swimmers clustered atop the levee day and night. A break would

FIVE DAYS OF
AT LOUISVILLEManiacal Ohio Near End of Rampage, is Belief.

RAIN CONTINUES

By Edward J. Nell
Louisville, Ky., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Wounded just short of the heart but no longer frightened, Louisville knew the worst today and faced a long day of rain. A light drizzle was falling and rising temperatures were forecast.

There were hundreds dead, perhaps hundreds more in a great plain of dwelling completely covered by water, but that maniacal Ohio was going down, and the moment that was all that mattered.

The greatest flood in the history of the Ohio valley now turns its force toward the mighty Mississippi, long behind record of 97 feet, over two hundred known dead, thousands gravely ill of disease, and the possibility that it will reach a point where the full death toll is known, if it is ever to be known.

Damage
Property damage is all probability will amount to $100,000,000. Now great, the loss of life could be indicated last night in a resume of the situation given the nation by Mayor Neville Miller over a radio network. He said there were 200 deaths in the city, and that 120 had been taken from homes along the fringe of the west end section, from homes that were not submerged entirely.

He said, were victims of heart failure, pneumonia and exposure, suffered who died just as the water rose. The water, beyond the helping hands of a tremendous relief drive in which all parts of the nation joined hands with funds and supplies. Cities from as far south as Houston, Texas, have provided by air hundreds of position officers to join the relief forces along the front lines.

He said that the flood started to subside, and, despite predictions of light rain, promised to keep going down. He said of a foot or so a day for the next week, every power at the city command was thrown into the fight to prevent more suffering.

Swears Falsely to Secure License

Watseka, Jan. 28.—(RN Special)—Authorities from Danville called County Clerk J. M. Janssen on Saturday concerning the issuance of a marriage license last week to a Hoegston man giving his name as John Longfellow for marriage to Nadine Bertha Dilley of the same city.

In the juvenile court in Danville it was found that during a hearing by the young bride of 18, the license was obtained fraudulently with a 28 year old man, named John Longfellow, who was married for the 18 year old groom.

Whether the license was obtained by the young bride or by the groom, the license was obtained fraudulently with a 28 year old man, named John Longfellow, who was married for the 18 year old groom.

Siege of Madrid is Continued by Insurgent Force

Madrid, Jan. 28.—(UP)—Loyalist troops advanced on a wide front today, occupying the entire west park area and some of the most bitter fighting of the siege of Madrid has taken place, it was announced officially.

The advance took place without government troops firing a shot, officials said.

In the absence of an immediate explanation, observers concluded that the sudden rising of the Guadarrama river in the rear of the insurgent forces, forced the rebels to withdraw when their trenches were flooded.

The area occupied includes the model prison, asylum, Montana barracks, and Pazo de Rosales. The advance brings the Loyalist troops up to the edge of the city.

Insurgent trenches were reported to be filled with water to a depth of three feet.

Kentucky Metropolis Hardest Hit As Waters Slowly Recede

By MARTIN KANE
United Press Staff Correspondent
Louisville, Ky., Jan. 28—(UP)—This city of 200 dead and 250,000 homeless emerged slowly from its yellow flood today.

The Ohio river dropped one tenth of an inch in 27 hours. At 5 a. m. (est.) it stood at 97 feet.

"We are over the hump," said Dr. Myatt of the weather bureau. He predicted the recession would speed up shortly to a foot a day.

It was too soon to think of rehabilitation. The river's drop was so slow as to be almost imperceptible. There were dead to be buried, bodies to be found in the mud-caked debris. There were sick to be cured, healthy persons to be protected from epidemic disease which became more threatening as the water dropped.

Hospitals Crowded
Hospitals were crowded with sick and dead. Sanitation, from modern standards, did not exist. More than 125,000 persons have been inoculated against typhoid fever, and hundreds of others waited their turns at medical depots.

Only when the river returns to its channel does Louisville expect to know the real horror of its inundation. Already some have been found dead in buildings where they were thought to be marooned. It was hardly conceivable that others will not be found trapped in rooms still under water, that some have not been swept down river.

Louisville's principal undertakers said they knew of 120 deaths. There is no way to determine how many more have died in the outlying sections where the flood was worst, they said.

Dr. Hugh Rodman Leavell, health commissioner, said early today that 130 persons had died from exposure, heart disease or other illnesses caused directly by the flood.

Bodies are being found in homes constantly, Leavell said, and a number have been discovered floating in the flood water.

Mayor Neville Miller said last night there have been 200 deaths in Louisville since the flood began. His figure, he added, includes the normal death rate. It was estimated unofficially that 30 persons died in Louisville daily under normal conditions.

Rodman said the identified dead have been embalmed. The unidentified have been buried in cemeteries above reach of the water. He said there are 33 bodies in one hospital, 27 in another. Hospitals and emergency relief stations scattered throughout the flood zone hold others.

Typhoid, one of the most dreaded of epidemic diseases, will deliver its real threat after the water has receded and when over-anxious people return too soon to homes not yet fit to live in.

Dr. George M. Lawson of the city health department said communicable disease was prevalent in some of the refugee stations. The number already infected may not be known for several days, because most such diseases require several days to incubate.

Many Pneumonia Cases
Pneumonia was the most common. There were isolated cases of scarlet fever and influenza. There were no definitely diagnosed instances.

ces of smallpox or typhoid, but sanitation conditions were conducive to both.

The homeless were crowded together in empty buildings, with few if any sanitary facilities. Physically exhausted, their resistance to disease was at a low ebb.

Vila water covered great sections of the city. Drinking water was rationed. Some were afraid even to wash in the water that trickled from their faucets two hours each day. Many restaurants used water sparingly to wash dishes, and customers took their chances.

The policemen, soldiers, and firemen and hundreds of volunteers struggled with feeble transportation facilities to get as many of the homeless out of the city as possible. Groups of 50 to 5,000 were being organized for removal.

Property Loss Heavy
The business section of the city will be evacuated, too, until property owners can estimate their losses. They will run into millions of dollars.

The four miles of yellow water sweeping over the city carried roofs of houses, automobile tops, and house furnishings. Motorboats cruising the flooded area collided with submerged automobiles. What devastation lay beneath the water will not be known for days—perhaps weeks.

Aroma High School Again Accredited

Aroma Park, Jan. 28—(RN Special)—Dr. Paul Belting, state high school inspector, visited the high school recently. Dr. Belting stated that the Aroma school is to continue on the accredited list.

Tim Sinker, a former student, has returned to the Aroma high school.

The "Aroma Hi-Lite" appears this month much improved in appearance. Mrs. Cecelia Blanchette is editor.

A Valentine party for students will be held Feb. 12 at the school house.

The funeral of Mrs. Katherine Grace was held Wednesday at the Methodist church, the Rev. H. S. Grede officiating. Burial was in Aroma cemetery. At the church service several vocal trios were sung by Mrs. Harvey Swan, Mrs. Fred Miller and Mrs. W. E. Kellogg. The pallbearers were Bert Fowler, Will Eobe, Owen Day, Grant Riggs, Herman Peet and Harvey Swan. Mrs. Grace is survived by one son, Edward of Aroma Park, and one brother, George Quartermann of California.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Stansbury of Hammond, Leslie Crawley, Edna Tegge and Birdie McHoen of Marseilles, Ill., were guests of Ralph Danforth on Monday. The last three are nieces and nephew of Mr. Danforth; the first two, daughter and son-in-law. They had attended the funeral of Bert Evans, a brother-in-law of Mr. Danforth, in Milford.

Several Aroma Park families have relatives in the Ohio river flood district. Mrs. Harvey Swan has a half brother and family; Elmer Kellogg, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Kellogg, is in Louisville; D. W. Daily has relatives in Missouri; Paul Fowler, is at Kentucky university. Word has been received from Elmer Kellogg and Paul Fowler that they are safe.

Mrs. E. N. Taylor of Bonfield was a visitor at the P. E. Boucher home recently.

Mrs. E. S. Lutes were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wagner of Kankakee.

John Sossoman Sr. and his son John were each ditched in their autos Monday afternoon as their cars skidded on the ice. John Jr.'s car was overturned with no damage, while the other car remained right side up but had to be pulled out.

WPA workers from Kankakee will visit Aroma Park on Thursday to give instructions to women in cooking, care of furniture and sewing. Ice breaking up above the dam, is going down stream in the Kankakee and piling up below the wagon bridge and it is reported that the Iroquois is also storing up a large quantity at the mouth of the river. Both rivers are higher than usual.

W. E. Daily of Kankakee was a business caller in the village Wednesday.

Contributions of clothing, food and money for Red Cross use in the flooded areas will be received at the Aroma Park postoffice and forwarded to county headquarters. William Staub spent the weekend in Kankakee.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church will give a social party at the church the afternoon of Feb. 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kleinert of St. Anne and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Scott of South Aroma were callers at the Case home Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Turner of Gary were guests of Mrs. Lydia Ingalls on Sunday.

Agbert Meents of Kankakee was a caller in the village Sunday.

Max Baer's Home is Destroyed by Fire

Sacramento, Calif., Jan. 28—(AP)—Authorities today sought the cause of a $40,000 fire which destroyed the country home of ex-heavyweight champion Max Baer and his manager, Ancil Hoffman.

Hoffman said he believed the blaze was set by a firebug. The former champion, his manager, his wives and friends were playing cards when a dog's barking warned them of danger. They were able to take only a few of their possessions before escaping from the blazing house.

Hoffman said flames broke out in numerous parts of the house at once.

NAME HIS SIGNIFICANCE

Parma, N. Y., Jan. 28—(UP)—Wells Hunn, farmer, didn't see much significance in his first name until he accidentally discovered a century-old well on his property. He was driving a team through an old orchard unused for years when one of the horses fell through a foot of sod into the ancient shaft. The well contained 10 feet of clear pure water.
