PRO-GERMAN IRAQ THREATENING

Attitude Of British Army Is Resented

Premier Issues Appeal To Nation To Arm As Struggle Seems Near

BULLETIN

Vichy, France, May 2—(AP)—British women and children being removed from Iraq are passing through Damascus, Beirut and Aleppo enroute to Palestine, according to a dispatch today from Beirut, Lebanon, to the French information office here.

BULLETIN

Istanbul, Turkey, May 2—(AP)—The Syrian radio today reported that Iraq native forces are advancing on British airbases and that reserves are being called up.

New York, May 2—(AP)—Hostilities between the British and the pro-German government of Rashid Ali Al Gailani of Iraq broke out in that oil-rich middle east kingdom today with Iraq troops opening artillery fire on British forces, a British broadcast heard in New York said today.

The report, heard both by NBC and CBS, said the Iraqis began shelling Habbaniyah airport, 60 miles west of Baghdau, at dawn and that the British were fighting back.

British women and children were said to have been taken to the airport for protection before the action began.

The outbreak occurred on the sixth birthday of Iraq's boy king, Feisal II.

Demonstrations of Loyalty

The Berlin radio previously had reported Iraqi troop movements and the calling up of reserves, and said "demonstrations of loyalty by youth organizations in Iraq have taken place outside the residence of the Premier."

"The one important center in the country not yet occupied by the Iraq army" is the airport, the German radio said, "and the British units which were landed have been surrounded by the Iraq troops."

British forces at the post are taking "counter actions" the broadcast said.

The radio said that "It is now known" that after Rashid Ali Al Gailani "violently and illegally" seized power in Iraq early in April he appealed to Germany for armed help to oppose the British.

The broadcast indicated the shelling began early this morning.

"It is learned in London that a tense situation has arisen in Iraq at dawn today" the broadcaster said. He then went on to say the Iraqis were using their artillery.

The report said British women and children, under safe conduct given by the Iraq premier, had all been

Want To Forecast Weather? Join Army

The army air corps is in need of additional qualified enlisted men for special tarining as weather observers and forecasters, it was announced today by Corp. Meldrum E. Anklam, recruiting officer stationed at the postoffice.

Anklam, formerly a sergeant in the 40th pursuit squadron at Selfridge field, Mich., assigned to temporary duty as a recruiting officer, has now been transferred to the regular recruiting service. A change has therefore been made in his rank, although the pay remains the same.

He states that men who are well grounded in mathematics and physics are especially desired to fill numerous vacancies as weather observers. To be eligible, a man must be serving a three-year enlistment, must have a high school education or its equivalent and show special aptitude for this type of training as indicated by grades made in the army Alpha and mathematics exams.

Upon completion of forecaster or observer training, an enlisted man becomes eligible for insreased pay as a non-comissioned officer or specialist.

Pours Gasoline Near Blazing Torch--Boom!

Firemen made a run at 7:22 o'clock Thursday evening to the Sunnyside Greenhouses on Aroma Park road, where a gasoline explosion caused slight damage in the engine room of the establishment.

An acetylene torch was being used in the room and 10 feet away someone started drawing a container of gasoline from a 50-gallon drum. Sparks from the torch touched off the container which threw fire about the room. The flames were quickly subdued. Since this call was outside the city limits, the owners will be sent a bill for $50 for fire services.

While two trucks of the department were at this blaze, firemen received another call in the 100 block on West Chestnut street and a third truck was dispatched to extinguish a fire in the auto of Gilbert Spies, caused from a wiring short. Damage was estimated at $2.

This morning, firemen spent several hours at the Hobbie avenue dump.

Speed Ordered In Defense Production

F.F.R. Asserts America Is Confronted By A "Critical Situation"

Washington, May 2—(UP)—President Roosevelt, asserting that America is confronted by a "critical situation," ordered the office of production management today to put operations of defense machines and machine tools on a 24-hour day, 7-day week.

In a letter to William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman, directors of OPM, Mr. Roosevelt requested a triple program:

1. Pool every useful or potentially useful machine tool and machine in the country for use in the defense program.

2. Utilize these machines and tools where they are, or transport them to a point where they can be useful.

3. Re-canvass the entire nation, including the armed forces, for skilled workers to operate the machines on an all-out basis.

Continuous Operation

Mr. Roosevelt expressed confidence that sufficient workers could be found to man the machines for continuous operation without individual men working longer hours to the detriment of federal hour standards.

"The ever increasing demands for munitions, planes and ships caused by the critical situation which confronts our nation requires that they be produced in even larger quantities and ahead of the schedules assigned to them," Mr. Roosevelt wrote Knudsen and Hillman.

"Our problem is to see to it that there is no idle critical machine in the United States. The goal should be to work these machines 24 hours a day and 7 days a week, relieving the machines only for such time as is required for overhauling and repair.

"The country should be further combed for men who have had experience on these machines. We

Railroads' Role In Defense Is Told Pensioners

Head Of Illinois Central Employes' Group Speaks Here

Thirty pensioned employes of the Illinois Central railway and an equal number of wives and widows of pensioners were guests of honor at last night's fourth annual pensioners' banquet given by the I. C. Service club in the gold room of the Hotel Kankakee. The dinner was followed by a speaking program and entertainment.

H. C. Marmaduke, Chicago, manager of the railway's employes' suggestion system, defined the purpose of the occasion:

"It is fitting for the Kankakee employes to pause once a year to do honor to those who have given lifetimes of service and are now having a well-deserved rest."

He said "the Illinois Central family spirit is not something of which we only speak, it is a living thing."

Railroads' Defense Role

Of the importance of a railway in national emergency, he said that the personnel of a railway is as vital to national defense as any uniformed force. He asked for an even greater devotion to duty on the part of railway employes, ingenuity and carefulness in the conservation materials and equipment, while also asking help on the part of shippers and other users of railway service in order to obtain maximum use of railroad equipment.

Fay Jenkins, president of the Service club, was toastmaster and there was an address of welcome by Mayor Albert P. Hatteuburg.

The entertainment was by Ed Reno, veteran Kankakee magician, and by Hawaiian guitarists, Doughlas Trudeau, Connie Jepson and Warren VanKuren.

Pensioners, wives and widows who were guests of honor are:

Fine Horn-Honking Driver At Momence

L. Peckelsma, youth residing near Momence, was fined $1 and costs Thursday by Police Magistrate Edward Gilbert for disturbing the peace.

He was arrested Monday by Officer Earl Harris after ignoring previous warnings to stop driving up and down the Dixie highway in Momence, honking the horn and otherwise making unnecessary noise.

Momence officials, determined to break up this practice, announced that other arrests will follow as often as infractions occur.

Eleven Three-Year Olds Entered In Kentucky Derby

Louisville, Ky., May 2—(AP)—The eleven three-year olds expected to run in the 67th Kentucky Derby tomorrow were entered today an hour before the entry box closed at Churchill Downs.

Entry Clerk Larry Bogen[illegible]2, however, kept the box open with the chance that some owner might make up his mind at the last minute to go after the $75,000 run for the roses.

After an early morning threat of rain, a hot sun oroke through the clouds as the trainers or their agents trailed into the secretary's office.

Almost without exception, the conditioners of the three-year olds picked Our Boots, Porter's Cap and Whirlaway as the horses to beat with the early speed a strong factor.

Here is the lineup by post positions:

1 Swain; 2 Staretor; 3 Blue Pair; 4 Whirlaway; 5 Little Beans; 6 Valdina Paul; 7 Market Wise; 8 Robert Morris; 9 Porter's Cap; 10 Our Boots, and 11 Dispose.

High School Band To Present Novel Number At Concert

According to Director George E. Piersol, a number which should prove of special interest to the audience at the Kankakee high school band concert next Thursday is "In a Persian Market" by the English composer, Albert W. Ketelbey.

Opening with the soft strains of music which typifies a camel caravan as it approaches the city, the composition then brings out the cries of the beggars in the market. At this moment a beautiful princess arrives and the din recedes to silence. She is represented by a theme played first on the bassoon, clarinet, saxophone and later by the whole band.

The mixed chorus of 70 members will sing "Memories" and "The Rosary" unaccompanied and "Marching Along Together" with the band. Two other high school groups, the Swiss flag and baton twirlers, will perform to "Josephine" and the "Drum Major Man," respectively.

Former King Carol Enroute New York

New York, May 2—(UP)—Private advices received by the United Press said that former King Carol of Rumania today boarded the American export liner, Excambion, at Lisbon bound for New York.

Carol is enroute to Chile where he will take up residence and is coming to New York only in transit to South America.

According to United Press advices, the ex-king was accompanied by two friends when he boarded the Excambion. Presumably they were his companion, Mme. Magda Lupescu, and his former court chamberlain, Ernest Urdreanu.

According to advices received by the United Press last week-end, Carol speeded his departure from Portugal because of his growing fear of German entry into that country from Spain.

Much of luggage already is said to have been shipped in advance by freighter.

Opposition To Sending Seized Shipping Abroad

Compromise Would Place Them In Coastal Trade; "Act Of War"

BULLETIN

Berlin, May 2—(AP)—The American flag in the European war zone would "directly disturb the interests of greater Germany" in the opinion of semi-official Nazi sources.

Dienst Aus Deutschland, commentary close to the Wilhelmstrassee, in summarizing German contentions, placed this point first.

"Never has the reich pursued any other policy in the western hemisphere than that of legitimate commercial objectives," Dienst added. "There are no grounds for trouble between two peoples unless one intentionally seeks them."

Second, the commentary recalled official German statements on the results which prosecution of American plan for convoys or patrols in the war zone would have on the three-power axis pact.

Third, Dienst said:

"Clear reminders have been made in Berlin that Roosevelt's policy for Germany is primarily a military problem. Germany has described areas which it considers operations of war zones and the world has been advised thereof. So it makes no difference whether President Roosevelt recognizes the zones or not.

"In any event, under valid usages of war, it makes no difference to Germany whether merchantmen or warships are in these zones."

Washington, May 2—(AP)—An unexpectedly strong move developed in the senate today for curbing the proposed authority of the president to turn over seized axis shipping to Great Britain.

Projected as an integral part of legislation which would permit the president to requisition and pay for a[illegible]out 80 foreign flag vessels lying idle in United States ports, this provision was said to have aroused a storm of protest within the senate commerce committee.

Some committee members asserted that the transfer of one belligerent's ships to another belligerent could only be regarded as "an act of war."

Chairman Emory S. Land of the maritime commission disagreed with this view, although Senators Clark (D-Mo), Johnson (R-Calif) and others took the stand that such a transfer would be a warlike gesture.

May Restrict Use

Despite reported administration pressure to keep the provision in the bill, Chairman Bailey (D-NC) said he would not be surprised if a majority voted to restrict to American use the German and Italian ships recently taken into "protective custody" by the coast guard.

Rotarians Hear About Navy Life

The size and scope of a two-ocean navy now being constructed by the United States for defense of the Americas were related by Julien Kiep, a civilian representative of the Navy Council of Illinois, at the Rotary club meeting Thursday noon in the Hotel Kankakee.

His talk, similar to that given at other local clubs, detailed the problems involved in constructing such a fleet, the various classes of combatant ships, and a description of other branches of the naval service, including marine corps, air corps, shore services and coast guard. The latter branch is under jurisdiction of the navy in war time.

The 200,000 men in the U. S. navy are all volunteers, conscription never having been resorted to. Only one out of 12 applicants is accepted for duty. The enlistment period is six years because it takes almost as long to make a sailor as it does a battleship. Promotion is strictly on a merit basis, rather than by seniority.

The talk was illustrated with colored slides. Kiep was introduced by Gerald Mark and the club's appreciation was expressed by President Roy Wilcox. Guests yesterday included Ben Gower, George Wagner and Glen Magill, and two high school youths, Don Neveau of St. Patrick high and Risdon Weston of Kankakee high.

Lynn Minor, president-elect, announced appointment of the following committee chairmen: Arthur Mann, club service; Ray Isaacs, program chairman; Harry Spielberger, vocational service; Arthur Wunderlich, community service; the Rev. Dore Ester, international service. Maurice Cooper is sergeant-at-arms.

Man Trapped In Blazing Car Near Momence

The extent of burns accidentally received near Momence early this morning by a Chicago Heights man remains a mystery.

Deputy Sheriff Gene LaFontaine, called to the scene of the accident at 2 o'clock, was told that the injured man, Louis Papuzzo, 1500 Otto boulevard, Chicago Heights, had been removed to Schneider, Ind., for first aid.

Driving on highway 114 a mile east of Momence, Papuzzo apparently went to sleep. His car went off on the shoulder for several hundred feet and, after leaping a five-foot ditch, burst into flame when the gas tank exploded. It was destroyed.

Two Billions A Month May Be Spent By U. S.

Congress Studies Suggestions As To How To Raise Revenue

Washington, May 2—(AP)—American defense production is increasing so swiftly that officials predicted today federal expenditures would reach $2,000,000,000 a month in the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

In comparison, the government spent approximately $1,300,000,000 last month — about $750,000,000 for defense and $550,000,000 for other purposes.

The estimate of spending at the rate of $24,000,000,000 a year was reported authoritatively to have been prepared by Stacy May, statistician of the office of production management, for presentation to the senate committee investigating the defense program.

Far Above Estimates

Over the year, this figure is $5,000,000,000 above the estimate made by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau in testifying on tax increases before congressional committees last week, and is $6,500,000,000 larger than the budget President Roosevelt submitted to congress in January.

Under Morgenthau's theory that two-thirds of the government's over-all spending during the defense emergency should be covered by tax revenue, the new figure would require doubling of the treasury's plan to add $3,500,000,000 of new taxes to the $9,223,000,000 revenue expected from existing levies.

No such revision of the tax program was anticipated by officials, however, both because the new taxes already advocated are so steep and because May's estimate does not bear budget bureau approval.

Harold D. Smith, budget director, was understood to be calculating expenditures somewhere between Morgenthau's $19,000,000,000 and May's $24,000,000,000.

Most Costly in History

Either of these figures would make the next fiscal year the most costly in American history. At the peak of world war spending, the most expensive year was $18,522,000,000.

Oil Kingdom Is Mobilizing All Classes Of Men

Fear Crisis Might Precipitate A Flaming "Holy War" In East

BULLETIN

New York, May 2—(AP)—The German radio broadcast today a report that Iraq has mobilized "all classes of special units and the 1916 classes of the regular army" and that the foreign-exploited Mosul oil fields are "under the control of special troops of the Iraq armed forces."

The Berlin broadcaster quoted Stefani, official Italian news agency, for the reports, in part. The German broadcast was heard here by CBS.

"The Stefani agency reports from the Iraq capital that Iraq troops began the occupation of strategic points throughout the country on Wednesday," the German broadcast said.

"British troops, landed at Basra, have been encircled by Iraq units. Serious incidents, however, have not occurred yet.

"According to the Stefani report, a number of the recently landed British troops have gone over to the Iraq army. They are said to be Indian regiments."

By the Associated Press

The London radio said Iraq artillery began shelling the British airdrome today at Habbaniyah, 60 miles west of Baghdad soon after the Berlin radio broadcast hints that a flaming "holy war" in the near east was brewing.

The broadcast said British forces at the post were taking "counter actions," and it declared it was known that Iraq's pro-Nazi premier, who seized power in early April, had appealed to Germany for armed help to combat the British.

This new phase in Britain's life-or-death fight for her empire appeared to be the first stage in a violent struggle for possession of Iraq's rich oil fields.

The Syrian radio reported that Iraq native forces were advancing on British air bases and that reserves were being called up.

Mobilizes All Classes

Simultaneously, the Berlin radio broadcast a report that Iraq had mobilized "all classes of special units and the 1916 class of the regular army."

Berlin asserted that Iraq's "foreign-exploited" Mosul oil fields were now "under the control of special troops of the Iraq armed forces."

Britain has invested more than a billion dollars in developing the country and its fabulous oil fields, and it was Kaiser Wilhelm's dream of a Baghdad-Berlin railroad to tap the wells that helped precipitate the 1914-18 world war.

The new British peril, briskly fanned by Nazi propaganda, arose from the landing of British troops in Iraq to protect the east flank of the Suez canal.

Conceivably, the near east's millions of Moslems and Arabs might sweep into action at the call of a

Australia Appeals To U. S. For War Help "On A Great Scale"

London, May 2—(AP)—Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies of Australia appealed to the United States today for war help "on a great scale" and said "we cannot approach this war in an amateur manner."

Menzies told a press conference that "American help, if it is to shorten the war effectively, must be on a great scale."

"We are looking hopefully and confidently to the material help we need from the United States," he added, "not help to be given a weak people but help to be given to a strong people who need extra strength if the war is not to last too long."

"Everyone must become professional and treat the war as a whole-time business," Menzies declared.

He had no comment on the battle of Greece.

Menzies said definitely he would go to the United States and indicated he would make some speeches, stressing that "in the mechanical sense we must all work like beavers in all parts of the English-speaking world."

TOWN DECIDES AGAINST INOCULATION FOR TYPHOID

Englevile, Colo.—(UP)—When the Colorado health department ordered the 100 residents of Englevile to be inoculated for typhoid fever the citizens took the first injection and then refused the second.

At a mass meeting the townfolk voted against the second treatment.

GENTLE PUNISHMENT

West Palm Beach, Fla.—(INS)—Police of West Palm Beach have a unique method of punishing motorists who commit parking meter violations. When first offenders are hailed into court they are "fined" five cents. They don't come back, believing that it is easier to drop the nickel in the meter.

An average motorist's gasoline taxes in 1940 were $35.16.

BOMBS INCREASE TRUANCY IN BIRMINGHAM SCHOOLS

Birmingham, Eng.—(UP)—Almost 40 per cent of the school children of Birmingham are playing truant, and many boys of 12 to 14 are earning as much as $8 a week in factories.

This work is mostly part-time. The rest of the time the boys roam the streets, and as a result there has been an increase in the number of cases in the juvenile court.

The trouble began when attendance was made voluntary because of inadequate air-raid shelters at the schools.

Now the children refuse to return to school, and ignore parents and school attendance officers alike.

BEAVER PELTS LARGER

Old Forge, N. Y., May 2—(UP)—Beaver pelts were large and plentiful this year during the infrequent 15-day open season. Trappers took 1,200 pelts worth $5,000. One of the largest animals caught in the central Adirondack region weighed 63 pounds and had a pelt 77 inches wide.

SUMMER KITCHEN TIP

Washington—(INS)—Keeping cool while doing the summer cooking is a real problem admits the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Chemistry and Engineering which says the main thing is to have the kitchen in the corner of the house, preferably on the shady side, with enough windows and doors for good cross ventilation.

CAT ADOPTS COYOTE PUPS

Redmond, Ore.—(INS)—There's a mama-cat in Redmon who will soon get the surprise of her life when her "kittens" begin to grow up. Filled with a thwarted maternal instinct after her kittens were drowned, the cat recently adopted three coyote pups brought in from the range by a group of boys. The pups are thriving on their Grade A rations.

Loaned Out For $10,000 A Year, He Wants Half

Los Angeles, May 2—(AP)—Samuel Brummel, 56-year-old furniture salesman who contends his wife rented him to another woman for a year, demands half of the $10,000 Mrs. Brummel said she received.

Seeking a divorce from Mrs. Lillian Pelton Brummel, whom he married in San Francisco in 1911, Brummel alleges that although he returned to her at the end of the year, she deserted him without splitting the fee as promised. He is suing for half as community property.

Mrs. Norma Peppin, middle-aged county employe, tearfully acknowledged in court that she paid the sum to Mrs. Brummel, but declined to say when it was for. Mrs. Brummel testified it was "to compensate" her for the loss of her husband's affections.

Asked on cross-examination where the money came from, Brummel blandly replied:

"It was from a business deal."

"It is then your contention that Mrs. Lillian Brummel made an agreement whereby she loaned you out for $10,000?"

"Yes."

"And what did you say?"

"I said all right."

Mrs. Brummel obtained a divorce in Tijuana, Mex., July 1, 1938, the records show, and the following Aug. 8 Brummel married Mrs. Peppin in Fresno, Calif. They separated a year and 10 days later and filed suit. Mrs. Peppin obtained an annulment on the ground Brummel already was married at the time of the Fresno ceremony. She contended the Mexican divorce was not valid.

"One day Mrs. Peppin took me aside and told me, 'I am going to make a confession,' Mrs. Brummel said. 'I have done a worse act than anyone could do to a dear friend. I am in love with Mr. Brummel. It is just one of those things. But I am going to compensate you with $10,000.'"

TRAINEE REPORTS

Indiana, Pa.—(INS)—Mike Molsko, of Street, one of Indian county's first volunteers, decided his local draft board should take note of his progress, so he wrote a letter. "Dear Sirs: Everything is swell and the army holds the same appeal for me as I got rating of fourth class specialist which in time will pay $51 a month, a $30 increase from $21. I thought I'd let you know what progress I'm making from time to time."

Timoshenko, who was named defense commisar a year ago and charged with the task of overhauling the army, called upon Soviet workers to labor ceaselessly to help "consolidate the defensive capacity of the country."

First in Line Again

John W. Hunefeld, 75-year-old pioneer painter, (above) held the 25th defense bond he bought after getting up at 6 a. m. to be first in line at the postoffice in Washington, D. C., when the new government bonds went on sale for the first time. Ever since 1926 Hunefeld has been one of the first in line for the President's New Year's day subscription—even appearing at the White House gate annually since 1933 when the hand-shaking custom was renewed.

Britain Braces for Axis "Drive to the East"

German shock troops cracked the outer defenses of Tobruk, Libya, (1) and British warships, to relieve pressure on the Tobruk garrison, turned their guns on Axis troop trucks at El Gazala. British observers expected the Axis to attempt to reach the Nile and then from Libya (1) and by sending forces from Greece to Syria and Palestine (2) by land or by sea and air routes (dotted lines). The Nazi air force moved in this direction by blasting British Crete base. Britain landed more troops at Basara, Iraq (3) in a move to guard Mosul oil fields, protect British air base at Habbaniyah, and to discourage any German move into Syria.

FLAIR FOR IMPERSONATION COSTS ITINERANT 3 YEARS

Salt Lake City, Utah—(UP)— A 41-year-old itinerant who forsook several legitimate occupations for the more adventurous—and lucrative—one of impersonation will have three years in federal prison to resign himself to living a down-to-earth existence.

James T. Barrett, Wisconsin native, wandered through Alaska and the west as a refrigeration specialist, logging superintendent, surveyor and mining engineer before he became fascinated with the idea of assuming a multiple personality. Since then, witnesses testified in federal court here, Barrett mulcted banks, business firm and farmers of thousands of dollars by posing variously as a government surveyor, government mining engineer and a retired army captain.

He received five concurrent three-year terms.

It is estimated that from 1930 to 1980 the proportion of the population of persons under 20 years of age will decrease from 38.8 per cent to 30.1 per cent.

OHIO ANGLER'S HOBBY TURNS INTO BUSINESS

Sandusky, O.—(UP)—What began as a hobby of stocking an abandoned, water-filled quarry with fish now has become a business for Edward J. Hinkey.

Hinkey began turning blue gills, trout, pickerel, perch and catfish into the quarry about five years ago. An ardent fisherman himself, the quarry soon became a headquarters for anglers in search of bait.

Then private ponds, dug and even state hatcheries began to buy fish, and Hinkey's quarry came to occupy as much of his time as did his welding business.

CAT GOES WILD OVER FLOWERS

Fort Wayne, Ind., May 1—(UP)—Ferdinand, the bull, loved to smell flowers, but a cat in the Landolfi greenhouse here went wild about them. The Humane society received a call from the greenhouse to come out and shoot a cat that had gone "berserk," causing more than $20 damage to the flowers. When found, the cat was curled up asleep on a bed of rich carnations.

SPIDER WEBS INTERRUPT EVERGLADES PHONE SERVICE

Belle Glade, Fla.—(UP)—Static interference reported by subscribers in the Florida Everglades perplexed telephone officials for several days until they discovered the cause was—spiders.

They found that webs spun by the spiders from one line to another conducted electricity when damp, interfering with connections.

The solution: Men with long-handled wire brooms now sweep the lines per odically.

Defense Production To Be Tripled By Summer; 784 New Plants Will Add To Upward Surge

By JOHN D. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent

Washington, May 2—(UP)—Present accelerated production of American industry will be doubled or tripled within the next few months to provide armaments for the army and navy and for the armed forces of Great Britain, China, Latin American nations and other friendly countries.

Defense officials predict that between July 4 and the fall months new gun, shell, airplane, tank and other armament factories will go into actual operation and many plant expansion projects will be completed.

Passage of the $7,000,000,000 lease-and bill closely followed by Germany's conquest of Yugoslavia prompted the army, navy and Office of Production Management to make further plans for approximately 100 more defense plants to be completed in early 1942.

Factories that have been idle since the early 1930s have been refurnished and made ready for armament production for th duration of the emergency. Small shops also are being pressed into active service to make "bits and pieces" for larger companies choked with prime defense contracts.

Vast Reservoir Formed

Officials said that American production facilities now being started for the production of "average war supplies," but that the factories will be turning out necessities of modern warfare which have not been used since the last war, will equal anything a combination of European powers can muster.

As a result of this new and old factories put into production during the summer, aircraft production will exceed the 1,216 planes delivered during March. The new aircraft plants will produce heavier types of military planes rather than trainers which have passed their production peak.

Production of 3-ton light tank will be doubled, all types of machine guns—now running 9 per cent ahead of schedule, rifles and small arms will be more than tripled, and ammunition supplies will pile up at inland points when power and shell-loading plants hit full operating schedules.

While completion of 3,400 ships of all types to be built for the two-ocean navy and the American and British merchant marine has been spaced over a two to three-year period, new inland factories are speeding building by fabricating materials and transporting them to shipyards. The nation's existing shipyards have been pressed into service and many new ways are being built at Pacific, Atlantic, Gulf and Great Lakes ports.

Aluminum To Be Doubled

Aluminum production, which stands at 40,000,000 pounds of ingots a month, will reach, 80,000,000 pounds with the addition of new facilities scheduled to enter production a year ago stood at only 25,000,000 pounds a month.

Magnesium production is twice what it was a year ago and the addition of new facilities, again will double present output. Similar expansion projects are underway for all other strategic materials that can be produced in the United States.

Government experts are seeking substitutes or planning initiation of American production for strategic materials which are imported, such as tungsten, rubber, tin, manganese, nickle and cromre. Furthermore, all available shipping tonnage is being requisitioned to bring in raw materials before world trade routes are severed or curtailed on the added fronts.

In the case of tin, for example the OPM has estimated that 12,000 long tons of the metal could be reclaimed each year by remelting used tin cans. A tin smelter, the first of its kind in the United States is nearing completion at Texas City, Tex. Previous smelting had been done in the Dutch East Indies or in Great Britain.

First Call on Materials

To keep raw materials flowing steadily to defense plants, the government gives army, navy and British orders first call wherever shortages develope Hence aluminum formerly used in washing machines, kitchen pots and pans, is being used for airplanes, nickel-plated auto bumpings is now being draft, and boilers, zinc, formerly used in galvanizing automobile parts, goes into cartridge cases; and fireworks made with magnesium, have gone off the market in favor of military star shells, flare and tracer bullets.

To forstall "inflationary" price trends, President Roosevelt created the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply and appointed Leon Henderson as price czar. Henderson froze iron and steel prices at levels prevailing during the first quarter of 1941 to see that the government, as principal buyer, pays fair prices for its heavy material.

As price commissioner for the national defense commission, Henderson set "ceiling" prices on secondary iron and steel, zinc, aluminum materials soft coal and on second-hand machine tools Other industries have been warned of impending price control h. reem price spirals are not cnnured.

Jobs for 2,000,000

Nearly 2,000,000 unemployed men and women have gone back to work in factories since the rearmament drive began and with new plants operating, an additional 4,000,000 will be absorbed by industries directly or' indirectly allied with defense orders John D. Biggers, OPM production director, has estimated that 34,000,000,000 man hours will be needed to fulfill congressional authorizations made for defense.

The army and navy has placed contracts calling for the delivery of 15,000 planes by Oct. 31, or within the next year, an estimated cost of $2,400,000,000. To produce the planes, workers employed in the industry will be more than doubled. In shipbuilding 309,000 new workers will be needed by late 1942

Other defense industries will expand accordingly.

Officials predict that the defense program is ready to leave the "paper and planning" stage to embark on large scale production of war materials.

Woman Collapses When She Finds Deselm Home Burned

The two story frame house on the Prairie farm a mile north and a mile east of Deselm was destroyed by fire Saturday noon. Defective wiring is thought to be the cause. Mr. Prairie and a helper assisted Roy Carpenter, the tenant, to save most of the contents on the first floor.

Mrs. Carpenter was away and knew nothing of the fire until her return. When she drove in the yard she collapsed. At present Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter are living at the home of Melvin Lamore. Mr. Carpenter will rebuild as soon as possible.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Washington, May 1—Stalin's mystifying ban on arms shipments across his country has been variously interpreted as a slap or a kiss for Hitler. It was recognized here as neither, but rather as another clumsy Red initiation of clever Nazi double-dealing in diplomacy.

The truth will be out when Stalin shortly signs a commercial treaty he has with his intimate enemy, Japan. The treaty will include an "equitable" allocation of freight cars as between Japan and Russia on the crowded Trans-Siberian railway. The Japs are shipping cotton, rubber, minerals, soy beans, vegetable oils and food products (no "war materials") across Siberia to Germany, and the Russian treaty will give them more space.

United States will not like this. Yet the only places where Russia can get vitally needed metals, machinery, and small amounts of machine tools are the United States or Germany, and Germany can't afford to send much. Russia already is afraid her sellout to Japan in the non-aggression pact will cause the American government to cut her thin trans-Pacific line of supplies from us.

So the lumbering bear of the Kremlin, trying to imitate the tiger of Wilhelmstrasse, supplied an idle friendly gesture toward a hand that is feeding it before again biting it.

The ban can have no harmful effect on Germany for many other reasons. Enough is the explanation that Germany does not get any raw materials from anyone through Russia and does not export any. The one slight stop on unimportant articles from Germany is Japan, from Sweden to Persia, but this would not work against Hitler.

Any time Hitler says boo to Stalin, the bear will run and in the direction Hitler points. You can depend on that, no matter how many stupid diplomatic gestures are committed by the Kremlin to create a different impression.

The Nazis has been slipping reinforcements through the British sea lines to Africa, and are loading up more direct lines across the Sahara. A counter on the job there has led authorities here to believe the Germany Red initiation of clever Nazi double-dealing in diplomacy.

authorities here to believe the Germans are massing 25 divisions (200,000 men) and between 2,000 and 3,000 tanks in Libya. This would be in accord with the basic German strategy of concentrating their whelming numbers of men and equipment for a single point of attack.

The British have good defensive lines but their available men and equipment are strung out from Abissinia to Crete.

Number 10 of these Nazi tanks in Libya are the best of the French. No one knows how Hitler got them.

FDR is energetically stopping speculation as to whether our patrol areas be 2,000 or 10,000 miles out. He has given his good friend Admiral Stark, chief of naval operations for saying 2,000 miles (Stark said 2,000 in an interview before he made the speech), and his friend La Guardia for saying 1,000 miles. Actual distance has probably become incidental. The President announced the patrol would roam the seven seas and invade seven war zones "if necessary to defend the western hemisphere." In general aid to Britain anywhere is regarded by the administration as an ultimate defense of the western hemisphere.

With the world as the announced limit, this government is obviously not going to let anyone find out exactly where the ships are, unless or until something happens to them.

FDR's labor meditation board is pretty well despite its failure to exert anything except indirect influence toward coal strike peace. Settlement strikes have been settled by the board in its short history. One which is never mentioned and which has not been settled is the Phelps-Dodge case.

Nurse Specializes, Too; Doctor Writes Of Opportunities

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The field of nursing is going into specialties as the field of medicine was fifty or seventy-five years ago. There are now special nurses trained for dental work, X-ray, and many other branches. A great opportunity, I should say, for the right nurses to consider the specialty of the industrial nurse.

The Nursing Council on National Defense has recently stated that the demand for additional nurses in military service and in industry is being raised daily. Four thousand nurses will be elected for the army by July 1.

In 1940, there were 3,371 nurses listed as industrial nurses. This is practically the same as the 1930 census. With the increase in defense preparation, this group will have to be greatly increased. It is estimated that 4,000 additional students should be added to the nursing schools this year to meet various requirements.

Nurse Nurses Needed

In a preliminary survey of industrial hygiene problems in the United States, reported by the U. S. Public Health service, it is said that only about one-third of the industrial employees in this country now have either full-time or part-time industrial nursing service. This would mean that about 6,000 additional nurses are needed in industry some time in the near future.

The industrial nurse must have additional training in public health subjects and, of course, special training in the particular problems in the industry in which she intends to go. Of course, the basic requirement is a good course in nursing in an accredited and well equipped hospital, where the principles of nursing and surgical, medical, eye and ear cases, are taught. The last two are likely to be particularly important in industrial nursing.

It would seem feasible also at the present time, to institute parallel courses in training hospitals for military service, public health service, and industrial service for nurses. In hospitals which are near large factories or universities where trade courses are offered, this would be fairly easy, but all hospitals should make an effort at the present time to supplement their courses in this way. In the case of the industrial nurse, training would always be valuable because well-trained industrial nurses will be in demand for a great many years.

The natural loss by marriage, sickness, etc., in the nursing profession is high and, therefore, new units must constantly be trained to take the place of the old ones.

NO CRYING-TOWEL IN A CRISIS

"LUXURY MODEL" by MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XXXVI

All that evenin, and for several days following, Luana worked at her drawings, and colored them. Chou-Chou sat watching, his furry little head cocked inquisitively. He was on his best behavior in the penthouse and gave no trouble, which was fortunate.

Lorraine raved over the exotic color combinations of the designs.

"Now with Joel gone, what on earth am I to do?"

"If you're thinking of me, why, I'll accept this job and go straight to a hotel," Luana said quietly.

Lorraine going to Europe? Jimmy? She would see Jimmy!

But with Jimmy writing adoring letters to her, which, after all, Lorraine could understand, Luana knew in her heart she need fear no rival.

"Accept your job, by all means. That was what I was hoping for from you, darling girl. That's why I had you here, and got the publicity for you, and made you go in the Paganini. But as for clearing out at once, Joel isn't coming back for a couple of days yet. If it's conversations that are bothering you. You don't have to run off."

"Then I'll stay till Homorrow morning, if I may. Will that be all right?"

Lorraine put down her coffee cup, smiling quizzically.

"Stay as long as you like, Luana. I'm perfectly okay. As a matter of fact, Joel's old aunt is coming next week on her annual visit from Rhode Island, so she'd chaperone you. She bores me dreadfully with her Victorian ideas, but I believe" with a twinkle—"you two would hit it off perfectly."

"Thanks very much, but I really would prefer to go tomorrow morning, Lorraine. I've trespassed long enough on your hospitality. I've been awfully good of you, and I don't know how to thank you."

"Nonsense. Joel will be disappointed to find you flown."

"He'll be much more disappointed about you going so suddenly," Luana was reminded her.

"You really think so?" with a lift of the eyebrows.

Lorraine kept Luana extremely busy all that morning and afternoon. There was more to do than Odette could possibly attend to, in the way of getting her wardrobe ready for the voyage. Any number of small purchases had to be made at the last minute. These were delegated to Luana, since Lorraine had to go to the Passport Offices and to the Chateau House downtown.

Luana found time to buy a little gift for Jimmy, as well as for the departing Lorraine.

In her stateroom aboard the liner that evening, she gave Lorraine the two packages.

"You'll be seeing Jimmy, won't you?" she asked wistfully. "You'll give him my best."

Somehow, it had been impossible to tell Lorraine that she was engaged to Jimmy, although several times it had been on the tip of her tongue to do so. Now she despised herself for her own shilly-shallying and weakness.

Jimmy would tell Lorraine when he saw her.

"I shan't be long in Paris," said Lorraine casually, "after I've bought a few clothes. I shall go down with my friends to the villa at Cannes."

Luana went early to her bed that night. Tomorrow morning, she would go to the dressmaking firm that had made her the offer—the splendid offer of $200 weekly—and discuss the new job, and come back and pack her things and move into a hotel.

No more sharing of apartments with co-workers. Her experience with Yvonne taught her that.

Luana was refreshed and happy, at eight o'clock next morning, had her bath, dressed, and was down the terrace at the gate by house at 8:15.

To her surprise, Mr. Vandaveer was there, leisurely eating his breakfast that Rimes had served out on the terrace. He had come home last night, he told her, and had been amazed to hear from Rimes that Lorraine had gone.

"She tried to reach you at the hotel, but they didn't tell her that you'd checked out. She left a message. I heard her leave it," Luana secured him, feeling awkward.

They breakfasted together.

Lorraine's departure did not seem to have upset him. Probably he's used to these whims of her's, thought Luana. Despite his millions, she felt rather sorry for Mr. Vandaveer. He seemed lonely.

Did he really have the millions? In her comings and goings in the town, she had heard that brokers and bankers were doing very little business, their customers having given up trading on the front pages, we offer him this suggestion, which would be a novelty for him: Let him attack all aid to Britain, but attack Hitlerism too.

Woman United, the outfit that tickled Hitler with an anti-admiration gabfest at Carnegie Hall, is allegedly the "emergency" name for the No Foreign War Committee.

That's the group in whose behalf Fiorello Marshall became known as the self-made-has-been . . . Marshall now announced this. She No Foreign War Committee is no more.

A champion of the re-labeled group, Women United, is Clarence Budington Kelland, who, according to a recent Life, calls himself "America's best second-rate writer."

If Kelland thinks the handouts of this outfit are second-rate writing, he's flattering his mules. Jay Gleibeck would consider them first-rate.

Al Landon announces he will speak for the America Firsters in the name of tolerance . . . All, believe it or not, he says. Hitler apparently doesn't know that the Firsters attract the most intolerant people in the world—the Bunders, the Pranters, the Shirters, all of whom are looking for their Storm Troop uniforms.

Walter D Fuller raps those who minimize dangers at home. He says there are ostriches who refuse to face stark realism . . . Fuller is also head man, or at least the flattest one—which may explain why the flatters don't—which may explain why the flatters don't—which may explain why the flatters don't—which

J Elinson would have you believe he heard Mussolini and Hitler talking . . . "Why don't they call Benito," he certainly smashed our enemies to bits, didn't we? . . . The mighty armies have proven invincible, eh? Now that we have conquered Yugoslavia, Greece and all the others, both of us can go on to defeat the British. Nobody can stop two great men like us . . . Together we will rule the world . . . The two most powerful leaders the world has ever known. On earth will be yours and mine, won't it?"

Yaws, it certainly will," replied Adolf looking down, and patting Mussolini's head. "Now shine my other shoe!"

A newspaperman was greeted the other morning with this: "You've got a great reputation as an honest reporter. Why don't you risk your prestige for partisan causes like the war? You know England is taking a shellacking. Yet you close your eyes to that and only 'see' her high morale, the courage of her women and children and the daring of the RAF. I know your sympathies, but do they warrant risking your honor as a reporter?"

The Fourth Estater thought a moment and then answered:

"If the allies win, the fundamental cause of truth will be served. I will get credit for an aunt in the cause of truth. If the allies don't win, what the hell! There won't be enough honor left in the world to worry about!"

So anxious are we, that freedom of speech is not interfered with, Mr. Lindbergh may use this column for anything he wishes to write.

THE PRIVATE PAPERS OF A CUB REPORTER

What's all this editorial bosh about the President trying to deprive Lindbergh of his freedom of speech? . . . He did nothing of the kind . . . The President gave his opinion of Lindbergh, and Lindbergh gave his opinion of the President . . .

That's what a democracy is—where even the President has as much freedom of speech as anybody else . . .

Senators Wheeler and Nye took up the cudgels in defense of their hero . . . The President of the pity-party complain, "which is followed by the New Deal columnists, in a smear campaign against Lindbergh for exercising his freedom of speech." . . . See how funny this gets? . . . Defending Lindbergh's freedom of speech, they denounce everybody else's . . .

Senator Wheeler in Boston Wednesday said, "I denounced Hitler while Lord Lothian, Lord Northcliffe and others were persona grata with him" . . . That shows you how well informed the Senator ain't . . . Lord Northcliffe has been dead 19 years—long before Hitler came into power . . . Senator Wheeler, I repeat, simply isn't that careless with his charges . . . He's a senator for U. S. senate . . .

Last night a group of intelligent men were discussing the reactions of newspaper readers and critics when their sacred cows are socked with something harder than cotton-batting . . . "I never knew that there were so many ISMbeciles reading my column," we said.

"There's an old saying that you should remember," said The Man Who Came to Dinner—"Many people are so anxious to prove they're not dumb that they don't realize they get you're as good as they are."

Many Americans are being draft-ing the army, and many are volunteering, but the "national hero" quit it.

Lindbergh wants the British to quit. Apparently he thinks every-one quits as easily as he does . . . He quit without America remembering it. If ever he had a real reason to quit it's now, with Britain down.

It is just as well Lindbergh won't be able to fight for his country. . . . If that's the way he faces criticism, I can just imagine the way he would face the enemy!

Author Rex Stout put it neatly when he replied to Lindbergh's charges that the British and Americans could call a baseball player a coward for not enlisting in the army: "Let's get the matter straight. I'm not a baseball player, I'm a writer. I'm not drafted, I'm not ordered to the front, I'm not even threatened, as I would be if I were a baseball player. I'm not under the gun of my employer, I'm not under the gun of my employer, I'm not under the gun of my employer,

Broad Proposal To Boost Price Of Grain, Cotton

Government Would Raise Loan Rate On Wheat, Corn And Cotton

Washington, May 2—(AP)—The agriculture department laid before farm leaders in and out of congress today a broad legislative proposal which would assure farmers cooperating with this year's federal crop programs $1.04 a bushel for wheat, 75.8 cents for corn and 14.67 cents a pound for cotton.

These returns compare with present receipts of about 83 cents for wheat, 75 cents for corn and 12.05 for cotton. (In both cases, the figures are averages and government benefit payments, at present rates, are included.)

Commodity Loan Rates

Such an increase in crop returns would be brought about by boosting the rates of government commodity loans.

New loans would be made at 75 per cent of parity for basic crops—wheat, cotton, corn, tobacco and peanuts—provided growers voted at referendums to give the department authority to impose strict marketing quotas. At present loan rates are about 58 per cent of parity for cotton and wheat and 74 per cent for corn.

Parity is a term used to describe crop prices which would give farm commodities purchasing power, in terms of non-farm goods and services, equal to that which prevailed in some past period, usually the years 1910-14).

Under the department's proposal, the commodity loans would be increased from 66 cents to 85 cents for wheat, 61 to 75 cents for corn and 52 to 119 cents for cotton.

Legislation demanded by the Interstate Farmers' Marketing Conference and Senator Bankhead (D-Ala.) would provide loan rates of at least 85 per cent of parity, or 10 per cent more than parity, at the secretary's department and embodied in legislation already passed by the senate.

Wants Authority to Borrow

To carry out the higher loan program the department asked that its lending agency — the Commodity Credit corporation — be granted authority to borrow an additional $1,000,000,000 from the treasury's general Finance corporation. The lending agency already has more than this, $260,000,000 outstanding in crop loans and projects acquired under loan foreclosures.

Officials said the department's proposal would limit appropriations for farm parity payments to the $212,000,000 recommended by the administration and approved by the senate rather than the $500,000,000 voted by the senate.

Other new proposals made by the department included:

That it be authorized to exchange surplus farm products with other countries for relief distribution.

That it be permitted to withhold benefit payments and loans from farmers who fail to offer their farms, intercrop's or farm labor for "fair" renting, cropping or labor agreements, or fail to share "equitably" with such workers the proceeds from farming operations.

That benefit payments be authorized to encourage low income farmers to produce more for home use.

Opposition To—

Some other committee members disagreed, however, with Bailey's appraisal of the opposition strength.

Chairman George (D.-Ga) of the senate foreign relations committee, who introduced the ship registration legislation, predicted that a compromise would be worked out under which the axis vessels could be used in American coastal trade.

As the measure was reported by a house committee, it would authorize the president not only to take over foreign flag vessels in the country, but to negotiate for the purchase of idle vessels in other western hemisphere ports.

Under present plans, all such vessels would be put into the 2,000,000 ton shipping pool the president has instructed the maritime commission to assemble for transfer to foreign registry. This cargo fleet would carry supplies to Britain.

Tankers Assigned

The commission announced yesterday that 50 big American tankers would be assigned to carry fuel to South American ports to North American ports, where it will be transshipped for Britain. The ships thus assigned would remain under American registry.

Land was said to have disclosed plans to the senate commerce committee to acquire Great Lake and river craft which might be placed into the coastal trade now that the routes, to make larger vessels now in use there available for the British run.

Private aircraft as well as privately owned ships were being pooled for Britain's use. Responding to a request from President Roosevelt, Salvador Oh-nemeyer Jones indicated that "sub-stantially" all of the 200 Salvadorean planes would be put at the disposal of the British government.

Will Give Prize Tonight For News Prediction

Tonight patrons of the Paramount theater will present clippings of news events clipped from the Republican-News in an effort to select the event which was prophesied on Wednesday by the Great Lester, magician appearing at the Paramount on Friday and Saturday. Lester placed a locked cheat containing a second locked cheat in a show window of Volkmanns jewelry store. Inside the inner cheat was placed a statement predicting the definite national or local news event which would happen between Wednesday and Friday.

Mr. Lester points out that by reading the Republican-News readers tonight may be able to determine which event had been predicted. At 11:45 tonight when the cheats is opened the first person in the audience who has in his possession the clipping to correspond with the written prediction will receive a string of pearls from Volkmann's.

City Detective Don Bleau has had the key to the cheat since it was placed in Volkmann's window and tonight the box is opened by a special committee tonight Lester will not have touched it since it was placed in Wednesday.

Activity In Iran

The Germans also reported diplomatic activity in neighboring Iran, formerly known as Persia.

In the 23-day siege of Tobruk, on the Libyan coast of North Africa, British middle east headquarters announced that the British garrison counter-attacked and repulsed the axis tanks, inflicting heavy casualties.

Big guns of the British fleet, lying off Tobruk harbor were reported to have joined in raining shells into axis troop concentrations. The British sources in Cairo said the loss of equipment in Greece was being offset by the arrival of great quantities of new war material—much of it American-made—now pouring into Africa.

By the Associated Press

The German radio broadcast a report from Turkey asserting that Iraq's premier had called on the nation's fierce-fighting Moslems to "shoulder a rifle . . . The hour of struggle seems to be near."

The premier was further quoted as declaring:

"The Iraq nation will not submit to humiliations inflicted by a foreign power. We are waging a sacred struggle."

The Iraq radio station was said to be broadcasting martial verses to the Iraqis, the sacred book of the Moslems.

"Critical Situation"

A London spokesman acknowledged that "a somewhat critical situation" had arisen between Britain and the Iraq government of Premier Seyid Rashid Ali Al Gailani, who gained power in a alleged axis-inspired coup d'etat a month ago.

The arrival of a second contingent of British troops, apparently to guard Iraq's great Mosul oil fields against any Axis drive, was countered by the massing of Iraq troops around the British airbase at Habbaniyah, 60 60 miles west of Baghdad.

Despite a protest by British authorities, asking Iraq to withdraw the soldiers "lest an incident should" so far the Iraq troops have remained.

On the north African front, tanked Axis troops and planes were said to be joining in a heavy attack on the British at Tobruk, seeking new openings in the 180 mile perimeter of defenses.

Italian and German planes continued to bomb the Tobruk defenses, where our pressure is becoming ever stronger," said Premier Mussolini's high command.

Out off from the nearest British troop columns by more than 80 miles, defenders of the city and their outer fortifications pierced yesterday; but London military circles expressed confidence that the garrison would continue to hold out until Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell can muster strength to counter the Axis drive into Egypt.

Nazi quarters in Berlin said violent attacks by German dive-bombers had silenced numerous British batteries around Tobruk.

It was apparent that Axis forces were making a supreme effort to wipe out the port, which threatens the German-Italian line of communications stretching more than 900 miles from Tripoli to Sollum, Egyptian frontier.

Peloponnesus Occupied

Across the Mediterranean, the immunized Italian army of occupation in the Grecian Peloponnesus with all British troops "eliminated" on the Greek mainland.

The Nazi high command said Nazi tanks sank a British transport, apparently one of the B. E. F. "escape" fires—and forced the British surrender under heavy fire from the shore of the Gulf of Corinth.

Although the battle of Greece is now become a closed chapter, officers of the Allied command said British and Greek troops who escaped from the Grecian mainland and landed on the island of Crete would defend it against threatened Axis invasion. The island, lying only 60 miles off the southernmost tip of the Peloponnesus, is the key to government-seat of King George II.

Presumably acting to aid this evacuation of his war pollees, Prime Minister Winston Churchill shook up his cabinet today in a move interpreted as making dynamic Lord Beaverbrook virtual dictator of Britain's industrial production.

The millionaire newspaper publisher was named to the newly created post of minister of state and Britons expected him to assume control of the production of all war materials. Political observers said Beaverbrook's role would be to effect that of deputy prime minister. Churchill also merged the ministries of shipping and transport and gave the new portfolio or wartime communications to Frederick Thomas Leathers—a virtual unknown.

J. C. Moore-Brabazon, former transport minister, was given Beaverbrook's old job of minister of aircraft production, while Ronald H. Cross, former shipping minister was appointed high commissioner to Australia.

Answer to Criticism

The re-shuffling of the cabinet was said intended to answer criticism of delay in production of vitally-needed war equipment and lack of co-ordination between land and sea communications. It came as Churchill prepared to make a parliament next week in debate on the British reverses in Africa and Greece.

Lieut. Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, Australian commander in chief of the middle east, informed the Australian army command today that withdrawal of British imperial forces had been completed with a total of 45,000 men safely removed.

Earlier British reports had said that as per cent—or 48,000 men—of the British expeditionary force had been saved.

German military circles however, gave different figures by asserting that two-thirds of the force of 60,000 men—could be regarded as "lost."

This estimate, the Germans said, included both prisoners and casualties.

Larry Allen, Associated Press correspondent, reported from Alexandria, Egypt, that a squadron of British cruisers and destroyers had landed 5,000 Australian troops from Greece at Tobruk to reinforce the garrison which is under attack by the Nazi-led rook of the Moslems.

Allen said the past 24 hours appear to have developed almost an inconceivable British enthusiasm in the Iraq nation which is based on the unexpected spirit of national determination," said the Berlin broadcast.

The radio quoted other reports from Beirut, Lebanon, and Ankara in which it was said evening a few hours ago Iraq's regular army and the Iraqi levies are preparing to march immediately to Iraq should the further course of events render it necessary to come to the assistance of Iraq, or should the Iraq government issue an appeal for support of the Arab world.

Conflict Inevitable

In its report from Ankara, the German radio said that Iraq's troops were of the opinion that a conflict in Iraq was inevitable in view of the British attitude.

"Should such a conflict arise the Turkish government appears resolved to observe the same neutral attitude as toward the Russo-German war," the broadcast. "The Turkish press still observes absolute reserve toward developments in Iraq."

British Can't Be Shaken Up By Churchill

Names Lord Beaverbrook To Newly-Created Post, Minister Of State

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

London, May 2—Prime Minister Winston Churchill answered critics of his administration today by shaking up his cabinet and naming dynamic Lord Beaverbrook to the vitally important post of minister of state with the appar nt intention of making him virtual dictator of Britain's wartime industries.

In line with this sweeping move Churchill merged the ministries of shipping and transport and entrusted the important new portfolio of wartime communications to a virtual unknown—57-year-old Frederick Thomas Leathers, who simultaneously was made a baron.

Beaverbrook's Successor

J. T. C. Moore-Brabazon, former minister of transport, was named to succeed Beaverbrook as minister of aircraft production. Ronald H. Cross, formerly in the post of minister of shipping, was appointed high commissioner to Australia.

These changes, generally commended by the press—while Britons were insisting that "new men obviously have become necessary for more efficient conduct of the war" —came as Churchill prepared to face parliament next week in a review on British reverses in Greece and Africa.

Beaverbrook, who has been credited generally with having made aircraft manufacture to meet the German challenge in the air, is expected to have undivided control of the production of tanks and other equipment in his new post.

Relieved of Many Cares

Conservative circles here and overseas on this problem would relieve Churchill of many of his cares and permit him to devote his full time to the military and diplomatic aspects of the war, British pointed out.

It appeared the change would not affect the composition of the existing inner war cabinet of which Beaverbrook has been a member.

Two other important governmental changes were made. Col. J. J. Llewellin and Frederick Montague trading their respective posts as parliamentary secretary to the ministry of transport and parliamentary secretary to the ministry of aircraft production.

means committee, considering plans for raising the necessary revenue, studied the recommendations of some 170 economists who urged that congress use its taxing power to prevent a defense-born currency inflation.

Two spokesmen for the group, Dr. Albert G. Hart of Iowa State college and Dr. S. E. Harris of Harvard university, outlined the proposal to the committee yesterday.

A special national defense tax which would fluctuate with a carefully designed monthly index of retail prices formed the basis of the economists' proposal. Also included was a suggestion for compulsory purchasing of defense securities. This they claimed would divert a substantial proportion of the public's savings, accumulated under the defense program, from normal investment channels where otherwise they would exert a potentially inflationary pressure.

Income Taxes

Hart expressed belief that present income tax exemptions should be sharply reduced, possibly to $1,000 for married persons instead of the present $2,000 figure, and asserted "We should not be squeamish about the lower income bracket if the aim is to bring down the exemptions would be to give them a sales tax or excise."

Trusted Detective Of Cook County State's Attorney's Office Confesses Murder

Chicago, May 2—(AP)—Two suicides, a slaying, and a policeman's confession that he was on the payroll of a woman charged with conspiracy to commit abortion spurred further investigation today of an illegal operation ring.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney announced last night that a detective sergeant had confessed the Daniel Moriarity, had confessed being on Mrs. Ada Martin's payroll at $100 a month for two to three years.

The prosecutor said that Moriarity also confessed that he accepted $3,000 from Mrs. Martin to attempt to fix" the abortion case in which she is a defendant.

Previously Police Capt. Daniel Gilbert announced that Moriarity confessed the slaying of Jennie Martin, 24, the daughter of Mrs. Martin, who was shot to death as she lay sleeping in a bedroom of the family home.

The state's attorney said he authorized the arrest of Mrs. Martin after hearing Moriarity's confession.

Unable to use the $3,000 for the purpose which it was intended, harassed by Mrs. Martin and worried by his conscience, Moriarity went to Mrs. Martin's bedroom Tuesday morning, tossed the money on the bed, and emptied the contents of the blanket-covered figure in the bed.

The detective did not know that Mrs. Martin and her daughter had arranged rooms. He beat himself and Mrs. Martin on the head with his empty pistol when he discovered his mistake and killed the girl by mistake.

Moriarity, who has been a policeman for 15 years, is being held without charge at the Bridewell prison hospital pending further investigation.

Mrs. Martin, 42, was one of 10 persons arrested thus far as a result of the abortion ring investigation. On April 17 Dr. Henry J. Mittendorf, facing arraignment on a charge of conspiracy to commit abortion, committed suicide by taking a drug. Two weeks later his wife, Emily, 39, also faced similar charges, died of self administered poison.

Louis Piquett, an attorney disbarred for harboring John Dillinger, also was arrested and among those arrested on charges of conspiracy to commit abortion. He was accused of acting as a business adviser to Mrs. Martin.

War Scribe Says British Navy Accomplished The "Impossible"

Editor's note: Robert St. John, Associated Press correspondent in Belgrade when the Germans invaded Yugoslavia, has since escaped from Greece and is now in Egypt after a grueling 23-day flight through the Balkans and Turkey. Yugoslavia by air transport and thence aboard a ship with 300 refugees from Greece. He was slightly wounded in the leg during the flight.

By ROBERT ST. JOHN

Cairo, Egypt, May 2—(AP)—The British navy accomplished the "impossible" in Greece—it did something unheard of—50,000 imperial troops from Greece.

Military and naval experts said it couldn't be done. Veteran officers who had lived through the Dunkerque retreat said the flight from Greece was a thousand times difficult —that the royal navy could be proud of getting a single shipload of men safely away through the rain of submarine and Nazi were pouring on the ships.

But the impossible was done.

I know, for I walked the deck with soldiers who had been sent to columns of sturdy craft, packed to the gunwales with British troops and steaming safely away to new battlegrounds.

I had reached a teeming port town in the Peloponnesus after fleeing from the ruins of the Greek capital and down through bombscarred Greece.

Here in Cairo, I am witnessing the final chapter in what will go down in the records as one of the greatest feats of the British navy.

Tremendous Obstacles

Ships were lost. Men were lost, but the total dead and wounded is insignificant in comparison with the predictions of experts who stood by the tremendous obstacles at first hand.

The German high command announces close by—or the Greek mainland, in the Aegean islands, in the Ilsel of Italy, on the Italian island of Rhodes, in the Dodecanese islands and in Bulgaria.

Then there was the threat of the Italian fleet. One powerful Nazi bid capitulated. German motorized columns were sweeping down from the north, held back only by fiercely resisting rearguard units which were vastly out-numbered.

I talked with many soldiers during the signing evening and their morale was amazingly high. They're on their way to fight once more Australians, Canadians, New Zealanders, and Greeks. They said they were eager to get at it again.

Another ship I was on was literally packed with refugees from Greece. I talked with a Greek announcer boasted that he could get away to fight another day.

The men who strode ashore in Egypt today are ready to fight again. When the boarded ship in the Peloponnesus they landed tons of rifles, food, optical instruments, machine-guns, anti-aircraft guns, ammunition and other stores they were to carry.

Much heavy equipment was destroyed to prevent its falling into German hands.

There were hundreds of Greek airmen, infantrymen and gunners aboard the ships that crept out of the fog-shrouded harbor the night our vessel left. There was every camaraderie between the Greeks and their British allies, and they talked of revenge for the lies of Greece.

Peoples Store Holds Anniversary Sale

From humble beginnings in 1906 the first People's clothing store in Lima, Ohio has grown to America's largest chain of credit clothing stores. From its very beginning the firm put its full confidence in the working man and trusted him, and now the man with the dinner pail forms the bulk of the People's store customers. The mutual faith between this store and the working man has never been broken.

Thus it is with a feeling of pride and accomplishment that the People's stores start their 36th annual, sensational sale which will be a measure of the loyal patronage of their customers they are offering hundreds of remarkable values, typical of forthcoming prices throughout the nationwide event. In fact, values will hit steel makers and many other basic industries.

A letter prop for the sands will discovered in the government's monopoly of ocean tonnage for transporting supplies to Britain. It was believed would pile extra traffic on the British ports, already overcrowded with this new shipping problem. Under the arrangement the axis ships are to meet an anticipated need for 2,000,000 tons of shipping which would be the largest car purchase program in nearly two decades.

Fill Out Those Cheek Hollows

By HELEN FOLLETT

When the complexion is pale and cheeks hollow one can't pass one's self off for a vitamin baby, and vitamin B12 are the right type these days. Look at the high school girls; they appear strong enough to work on the WPA. Grand! But There's one good way to fill out hollow cheeks and that is to gobble up good groceries, especially those that contain starches and fats. Another way is to do some fancy calisthenics. What, you say? Simple as can be. You say "mai-oose" and you say it loud. It gets into play the muscles and fine fibers of the face, it strengthens them.

Plumpen the Face

Be catty and plumpen your phiz. With the first letter of the word and the lips do a cute little pucker. The trumpeter's muscles from cheek bones to chin are flexed. With the a and i sounds the mouth opens in a wide circle and that movement tones the fine muscles that surround the lips. If there's a ghost of a dimple in the cheek, it will leap up. With the "ooze" the lips come back to first position. If you belong to the hungry looking cult do this exercise several times a day.

Following this with a brisk massage with a heavy cream. Spread on the emollient with flattened fingers. Do quick little hammer strokes to make circulation sprint. Get an ice cube, frisk it over the surface of the skin while the cream remains on.

Breathe deeply to build yourself sound chest, works. Have some outdoor exercise each day, but not so much that you suffer from fatigue.

11 EXPECTED TO FACE DERBY BARRIER TOMORROW

Our Boots And Porter's Cap Are Favorites

By ORLO ROBERTSON

Louisville, May 2 — (AP) — Eleven aristocrats of the turf idled away the time in their closely guarded stalls today as politicians, society folk, business men, movie actors and actresses, and just plain Mr. and Mrs. turned this usually tranquil city into a bedlam for tomorrow's renewal of the $75,000 Kentucky Derby.

Following brief speed tests soon after dawn this morning the stars of the American turf's most colorful spectacle returned to their quarters, ready for the word that will send them away in quest of the post of gold and garland of roses awaiting the winner at the end of Churchill Downs' classic mile and a quarter. Post time is scheduled for 4:45 p. m. (e.s.t.).

Trainers of the razor sharp thoroughbreds filed into the racing secretary's office at an early hour to drop the names of their charges into the entry box. All of the expected entries were in before the deadline bot the box was kept open in event another decided at the last minute to plank down the $500 starting fee.

Elsewhere, however, things weren't so quiet. Thousands poured into the city by train, automobile, bus and airplane last night and still they came from every walk of life, from every nook and cranny of the nation, from every walk of life.

See Largest Crowd

Matt Winn, promoter of the extravaganza, predicted the first 100,000 Derby crowd a mutuel handle of $2,000,000 or the day, a mark exceeded only in 1926 when Bubbling Over won.

Even the weather man's prediction of local showers tomorrow failed to put a damper on the pre-Derby activities, for the most part, the trainers sat back with an "I don't give a damn" attitude as to the weather. Their charges were ready to go, wet or dry. However, Jess Durnell, handling Cleveland Putnam's Swain, cast a longing eye toward the heavens, hoping they would open up and pour, for the chief hope of the son of Ladysman lies in mud.

Our Boots, offspring of Bull Dog from Rogue G. Martin's Toledo-owned Woodvale farm, remained the favorite as 8 to 5 today with no indication he might have to share the spot with Charles S. Howard's Porter's Cap before post time.

The Cap was quoted at 2 to 1 today but his support smoothed as new arrivals recalled his victories in the Santa Anita Derby and Chesapeake Stakes and his sterling workout over the Derby route last Sunday.

Whirlaway from Warren Wright's Calumet farm was the horse that really had everybody guessing and getting nowhere. He was the top money winning juvenile of 1940 and after showing poor form in Florida came back under the astute handling of Ben Parnell Jones, who won in 1938 with Lawrin, to forge into third position at 6 to 1.

Are Outsiders

Right behind the three favorites came Robert J. Kleberg Jr.'s Dixiana, Flamingo Stakes winner, at 8 to 1. Fred Byers' Robert Morris, named for one of the financial backers of the revolutionary war, and Mrs. King's Beaugay, recently purchased Blue Pair, winner of the Derby trial, at 10 to 1, and Lee Rosenfano's New York-owned Wood Memorial victor, Market Wise, at 12 to 1.

The other four—Rocky Palladino's Little Beaus, Hugh Fenwick's Starester, Swain and Emerson F. Woodward's Valdina Paul—were rank outsiders—in there more with hopes than a good chance.

Little Beaus' chances were given a setback when Jockey Don Meade was ordered by his contract employer to stay in New York. Palladino planned to use George Moore, now riding in New England.

The lineup with owners, jockeys and probable odds:

HORSE	PROBABLE ODDS
Our Boots	8-5
Porter's Cap	2-1
Whirlaway	6-1
Dixiana	8-1
Robert Morris	10-1
Blue Pair	10-1

Elsewhere, however, things weren't so quiet. Thousands poured into the city by train, automobile, bus and airplane last night and still they came from every walk of life, from every nook and cranny of the nation, from every walk of life.

Matt Winn, promoter of the extravaganza, predicted the first 100,000 Derby crowd a mutuel handle of $2,000,000 or the day, a mark exceeded only in 1926 when Bubbling Over won.

Even the weather man's prediction of local showers tomorrow failed to put a damper on the pre-Derby activities, for the most part, the trainers sat back with an "I don't give a damn" attitude as to the weather. Their charges were ready to go, wet or dry. However, Jess Durnell, handling Cleveland Putnam's Swain, cast a longing eye toward the heavens, hoping they would open up and pour, for the chief hope of the son of Ladysman lies in mud.

Cards Increase N. L. Lead As Dodgers Lose

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

One of the most drab, colorless pitchers in big league baseball is William Henry Walters, Jr. of the Cincinnati Reds. He is a tallish slender, sandy-haired righthander who says very little off the diamond and nothing at all on it. He has that kind of grey-green eyes that never show excitement.

But Bucky Walters, once a medium-size infielder, deserves to be rated right now as the best hurler in the National league and quite possibly the best man in the "clutch" in any league. He also is a good man with his bat, when necessary.

Bucky stopped the nine-game winning streak of the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday, just as he had calmed the Pittsburgh fury at the same stage a year ago, with most outrageous and effective effort of the season.

Old Walters is Cool

With the score tied 1-1 in the determined Dodgers loaded the bases with two out in the ninth inning on Joe Medwick's double and two walks, one intentional. But Walters just took his time and struck out Pete Coscarart to send the game into extra innings.

In the 11th, after two were out, Walters stretched a hit to centerfield into a double with a daring slide and scored on a single by Buddy Jost. When the Dodgers again loaded the bases in their half of the inning on two singles and a walk, Walters never wavered. He fanned two lefthanded pinchhitters, Pete Reiser and Babe Phelps, to end the game.

The defection of the Dodger gave the St. Louis Cardinals an opportunity to increase their league place margin with a 5-0 triumph over the New York Giants. It was the sixth straight win for the Red Birds and the first time in their series with the Giants that their starting pitcher finished. The veteran Lon Warneke kept nine hits well scattered.

In the only other National league game the Pittsburgh Pirates rose up in the wrath that comes from long frustration and overwhelmed the Phillies 15-2, with Russ Bauers pitching five-hit ball and his mates mauling three opposing hurlers for 23 safeties.

The Cleveland Indians kept their winning string intact at seven games by outslugging the Philadelphia Athletics by a 13-8 score. Bob Feller held the A's to eight hits, but two of them were homers and one by Bob Johnson came with the bases loaded. However, Feller hit a home run himself with two on as part of Cleveland's 18-hit offensive. It was rapid Robert's fourth victory of the season and the second home run of his career.

A Big Hitting Day

It was a big-hitting day in the American league with the exception of Washington's 7-0 shutout of the Chicago White Sox. Each team got eight safeties in this one, but the Senators' share included a homer and two doubles by Cecil Travis.

The Boston Red Sox battered the Detroit Tigers 13-9 in a spectacular session that included 20 hits by Boston and 13 by Detroit, none of them homers.

The New York Yankees, who bombarded the St. Louis Browns with 14 hits on Wednesday, lessened the shellling to 17 safeties yesterday and won 14-5. Charlie Keller drove in seven runs, getting a homer and a triple, while Joe Gordon made four hits for the second consecutive day. Ernie Bonham was able to coast to his third victory.

Knight baited for Day in an Auburn-Indiana game the other day and the umpire was a guy named Weeks.

Atlantic City—Freddy Fiducia, 191, Newark, stopped Leroy Haynes, 192, Philadelphia, (8).

Launch Drive To Land Griffith In Cooperstown Hall

Bloomington, Ill., May 2—(AP)—Confusing as it sounds, Clark Griffith, "The Old Fox of baseball," may be headed for baseball's hall of fame by way of a Touchdown club.

The Touchdown club is a group of sport enthusiasts of Bloomington and Normal, Ill., who sponsored yesterday's memorial observance here for Charley "Old Hoss" Radbourne, pitching hero of the '80's.

Since both Griffith and Radbourne spent part of their youth here, Griffith's appearance at the ceremony was in the way of a homecoming—his first in 25 years.

The 71-year-old owner of the Washington American league club was honored at a banquet, presented with a bat made of the wood of his former home in Normal and then the Touchdown club decided to further honor Griffith, the other of its "two pitching greats."

It will sponsor a campaign to add Griffith's name to that of Radbourne's and others in baseball's hall of fame at Cooperstown, N. Y.

St. Louis Manager Lauds Yankees' Rizzuto, Priddy

St. Louis, May 2—(AP)—Manager Fred Haney of the St. Louis Browns says there's not a smoother combination in the majors than Phil Rizzuto and Gerald Priddy, shortstop and second baseman of the New York Yankees.

Haney had just watched Joe McCarthy's sluggers crush the Browns two out of three games with the two rookies handling 22 chances between them without a bobble.

The Brownie manager did a spoon into a container of ice cream in the locker room after the second licking yesterday and went on:

"There's no doubt about it. Those kids are prize packages. The Yanks have a great infield."

Young Jones Fails In Prep Golf Meet

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 2—Postwar-year-old Bobby Jones, Jr., son of the one-time king of the golf world, failed to win the prep golf title today in the annual southern prep golf high school championship.

The youngster, making his competitive debut, posted yesterday a two-round total of 80-78—158, which was 33 shots over par.

"I got every penalty on the whole course," Bobby explained. I went out of bounds, I hit opponents' balls and did everything else."

His father, here for the opening rounds of the 54-hole medal play event, had predicted his son would have 97's or 100's on each eighteen.

Defense Setup Will Get 100,000 Auto Workers

Motor Curtailment Aug. 1 Will Help Solve Labor Shortage

By BERNARD CRANDELL
United Press Staff Correspondent

Detroit, May 2—(UP)—Enforced curtailment of automobile production starting Aug. 1 will solve the labor problem for new defense plants springing up in the automotive industry, observers believe.

Cutting car output by 20 per cent should make available at least 100,000 employes either skilled or semi-skilled for the enormous job of turning out $2,000,000,000 worth of defense orders in the industry.

Before the reduction was ordered, manufacturers had hoped to find defense workers as they were needed in the plants, then rush them through a six-week training course. If a labor bottleneck developed, they said, workers would be taken from automobile assembly lines to fill defense jobs.

Workers Total 800,000

With all automobile factories running at or near capacity, more than 500,000 production workers were needed. About 300,000 additional were needed for defense assignments. Of this total, 150,000 are expected to be working on defense before the end of the year.

Some of the major defense plants under construction in the automobile industry and the number of workers required include:

Chrysler tank plant, 6,000 workers for one shift.

Buick airplane engine plant, 15,000.

Studebaker airplane engine plant 9,400.

Ford airplane engine plant, 10,000.

Packard airplane engine plant, 14,000.

Hudson Naval ordnance arsenal, 5,000.

General Motors, Ford and Chrysler programs to make parts and subassemblies for bombers, 107,000 for one shift.

If the bomber parts program is stepped up, an additional 107,000 workers would be needed.

assemblies for bombers, 107,000 work-

Further Expansion Due

Further expansions of present defense orders are anticipated, especially in connection with production on marine engines by the Packard Motor Car company. If Ford and Chrysler get the war department's go ahead on their new liquid-cooled airplane engines now in the experimental stage, more factories may be needed.

The method of "farming out" segments of defense orders by major automobile companies has struck a snag. Many would like to hand out work on parts to smaller companies, but few seem to be available to handle the jobs.

Buick, for instance, wanted to farm out production on 210 parts of the Pratt and Whitney Twin Wasp engine which will be assembled in a new Melrose Park, Ill., plant. After a search over the nation, Buick found it would have to make 192 of the parts, or 7 per cent of the entire engine. In comparison, the Pratt and Whitney plant at Hartford, Conn., makes only 50 per cent of its engine parts.

Uncle Remus' And His Children

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

My fellow parents who would like to improve their letters to their children ought to read the letters of a very wonderful father to his young son and daughters. I refer to Joel Chandler Harris, known to most of us as Uncle Remus. Where is the child who does not enjoy Br'er Rabbit?

You wonder what kind of letters Uncle Remus would write to his sons and daughters. Well, you can read them in the biography of Joel Chandler Harris by his daughter Julia Collier Harris; Houghton, Mifflin Co., 1918.

His sixteen-year-old son went alone from Atlanta to Quebec to visit his grandparents. During his visit Joel Chandler Harris wrote: "Try to be as respectful to your grandfather and grandmother as possible. Bear in mind that they have lived long out of the world, so to speak, and try not to treat them with that superciliousness so often affected by boys of your age. Remember that learning is merely an accomplishment and not a virtue, and if they seem to you to be ignorant, bear in mind that, in turn, you will seem to be ignorant to your descendants.

Understanding Letters

"Well, we are all well here. The place is just as you left it, except the hole made in the air by your absence, and it is a pretty large one, too. I am waiting for those long letters."

From a later letter: "Another thing—when I make a remark or suggestion, don't take it too seriously. You are old enough to have discovered, or, at least, to have suspected, that, except in the matter of morals, it is impossible to map out a young man's career by means of advice. All I can do is to give you some of the results of my experience. I am much more interested in seeing you grow up strong-bodied and clean-minded than I am in your career. A clean-minded man will be everything that he should be. I should like to see you with a will strong enough to resist all forms of temptation. Your career will then take care of itself."

Still later; "It is very gratifying to me to know that you have made an impression on people. Lord! Lord! don't disappoint 'em, and don't disappoint your mammy and daddy. (More 'lectoring.)"

Space does not permit me to quote daughters, and his replies to his the funny things he writes his boy's request for advice in his love affairs. There was no wall between Uncle Remus and his children. The letters by Joel Chandler Harris to his sons and daughters should prove excellent material for study groups of parents of adolescent children; good material for a discussion in a men's Bible class; good material for a sermon.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Is it well to pay a child to help at regular chores about the house?

A. As a rule, it is not.

Q. What do you consider the most unkind word a parent or teacher can use to a child?

A. "Dumbbell," or similar words. And how wrong some parents who are Sunday school teachers, missionaries or preachers are, in accordance with this standard!

RAID OR HOLDUP? POLICE CALLED

Vancouver, B. C., April 2—(UP)—An attempted raid by the narcotics squad of the R. C. M. P. on a downtown Vancouver premises fell a bit flat when residents of the establishment thought it was a holdup and called city police. A city police car raced to the scene. In the resultant confusion, the "raid" was forgotten.

INDIAN MEDICINE STILL LEGAL

Clovis, Cal., May 2—(UP)—Americans are still to enjoy the benefits of the Indian medicine man if they so desire. A jury here acquitted Dewey Conway, Indian medicine man, arrested on a charge of practicing medicine without a license. Conway sells an Indian herb remedy the formula for which he insists was handed down to him through his grandfather and father, both Indian medicine men.

AGED MARAUDING BEAR KILLED

Big Piney, Wyo., May 2—(UP)—A 375-pound bear, which had a record of killing 26 sheep in one day, is dead. It was 27 years old. Del Dearth who shot the beast said it bore an earmark which was cut 27 years ago when Walter Ball of Big Piney roped and tied the ear of a bear cub.
