In Job ScandalVirgil Floyd Called
In Probe Of Ziller
At Munitions Plants

A statewide investigation of an alleged "labor union and politics" racket which forced hundreds of men to pay "shakedown" fees to work in four Illinois munitions plants still centered today upon a missing politician, 538-pound George W. Ziller, according to United Press dispatches from Springfield.

The search for Ziller, already sought for questioning by federal, state and county law enforcement agencies, was intensified by the dispatch of two Federal Bureau of Investigation agents from Springfield to Ziller's home town at Weston, Ill.

The investigators, operating on informal complaints from alleged victims that they "had to see and pay" Ziller before going to work as truckers or common laborers, found that Ziller and his wife had left hurriedly about a week ago, leaving unwashed dishes in the sink and an unmailed letter on the front porch.

Democratic Chairman
Ziller is wanted for questioning in connection with alleged payments to him by job seekers at the Wilmington, Kankakee, Crab Orchard and Illinois munitions plants of union initiation fees and dues, "payoffs" for the right to continue operations of trucks, and $25 fees to the Western Democratic club of which he was chairman.

Officials of the AFL, CIO and Carriers and Teamsters unions have told investigators that Ziller was authorized to collect dues for them, but have denied knowledge of any shakedown collections. The teamsters' dues collected by Ziller included a $50 initiation fee, $9 for three months dues in advance, $3 for insurance and $1 for subscription to the Labor Record.

Working in coordination with the Illinois attorney general and the Chicago and Springfield offices of the FBI and U. S. district attorney, C. N. Coolidge, state attorney of McLean county, questioned 60 persons regarding Ziller's activities in the county.

"Powerful Interests"
Coolidge said his search for "the powerful interests" behind Ziller had uncovered information of the "utmost importance." He said he would continue his investigation in Ziller's home county for another 10 days and then decide whether to present his findings to a grand jury.

Both state and federal authorities continued to examine a list of telephone records of calls by Ziller to Illinois politicians, including Sen. Scott W. Lucas, Lucas has repudiated Ziller.

The two most recent developments in the investigation, Springfield authorities said, were a statement by Virgil A. Floyd, Joliet business agent for the teamsters, and the discovery by Chicago investigators

Church In Kankakee

Mrs. Edgar E. Atherton, wife of the former pastor of the First Methodist church here, died last night at her home in Peoria.

She became stricken with a heart attack late Monday afternoon while Dr. Atherton was away on church duties. He was reached and returned home at once, but Mrs. Atherton did not regain consciousness. Death occurred at 9:10 p. m.

The Athertons came to Kankakee from Charleston in September of 1937 and were here until April of 1940 when Dr. Atherton was named superintendent of the Methodist churches in the Peoria district.

Many Friends Here
Her many friends here remember Mrs. Atherton as a devoted wife and mother, possessed of keen judgment and diplomacy, deeply interested in all the activities and organizations in the church.

During the family's last year here, because of failing health, she necessarily confined her activities to the church work which she loved so much. The congregation of the First church will long remember the outstanding ministry of the Athertons.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon in Peoria. Dr. Joseph B. Rosemurgy, pastor of the First Methodist church of Peoria, will be in charge of the service and Dr. George H. Thorpe, superintendent of the Galesburg district, will give the memorial address. Burial will be in Villa Park cemetery at Peoria.

Married 25 Years
As Ola Alder, she was born in northern Missouri and received her higher education at Teachers college in Kirksville, Mo., and the University of Wisconsin. She was teaching home economics in Rock Island, Ill., when she was married Oct. 21, 1916 to the Rev. Atherton. They celebrated their 25th anniversary last fall.

During the 25 years, they served six parishes in the Illinois conference, including Sheffield, Joy, Lacon, Dwight, Charleston and Kankakee.

Surviving besides the husband are four children, Eugene, who is in pilot training at Earlston field, Arcadia, Pa.; Richard, a senior at Northwestern university; John and Edith, students in Peoria high school.

Recruiting of women for military service for the first time in history was officially begun in Kankakee today by Corp. Donald Minner, recruiting officer at the postoffice.

For the next two weeks, he has instructions to interview only women interested in the officers' training school for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps.

The corps is being established to handle noncombatant duties and release more men for service at the front. The WAAC is the only women's organization, exclusive of the army nurse corps, authorized to serve with the army.

Before the general enlistment is begun, a specially selected group will be chosen to take officer training. Applicants must be women citizens of the United States, between ages 21 and 45, of good character, furnish proof of graduation from high school or its equivalent, pass an intelligence test, submit proof of birth date and citizenship and be physically fit. Either married or single women may apply.

Application forms may be obtained from the recruiting officer here and they must be mailed or brought to the army recruiting office in Chicago so that they will be on file there not later than Thursday, June 4.

Nazis Develop
New Type Of Submarine

London, May 26—(AP)—The Germans have developed huge 3,000-ton submarines carrying two eight-inch guns and 14 torpedoes for long-range raiding and are believed sending them in relays to harry the eastern coast of North America, reports from the continent declared today.

Naval circles here said the reports of the new submarines are "perfectly feasible."

These U-boats were said to have a surface speed of 20 knots and a submerged speed of 11 knots.

It was said here that through the tactics of sending relays of submarines the Nazis hope to pin the balance of the United States naval forces in home waters and prepare the way for blows at British sea-power in the northern and Mediterranean seas.

Jane's authoritative shipping guide lists British submarines with tonnage up to the 2,723 tons of the seven class. The United States, according to Jane's, has submarines up to 2,508 tons.

However, the average tonnage of the world's submarines runs between 1,000 to 1,600.

The world's largest submarine was the French Surcouf, 4,300 tons, which has been reported lost.

Fatal To 3 Local Men

(Picture on Page 8)

An inquest jury, including four local pilots and plane owners, will seek to determine the cause of an airplane crash near here just before noon yesterday which claimed the lives of three Kankakeans.

The inquests will be conducted by Coroner Ed P. Madison at his court-house beginning at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning.

Funeral services for Joseph A. Benjamin, 41, 1316 North Schuyler avenue, owner and pilot of the plane, will probably be conducted Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Further arrangements are incomplete pending the arrival of relatives from California. Friends may call at the Clancy funeral home.

Funeral on Birthday
The funeral of Howard Glenwood Schults, 2040 West Hickory street, one of the passengers, will take place on his 25th birthday. His sixth wedding anniversary is Saturday.

The services will be conducted at the Phillips & Friday funeral home at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The Rev. George J. Robertson, pastor of St. Ansgar Lutheran church, will officiate and burial will be in Mount Grove cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home.

Masses Services
Funeral services for Harold E. Massey, 21, 1164 South East avenue, another passenger, were conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Yates funeral home by the Rev. Morgan Williams, pastor of the First Methodist church, and burial in Mount Grove cemetery.

Coroner-Madison, who today was continuing an investigation of the accident, said this morning that no clear reason for the tragedy has appeared.

Evidence of motor failure is not apparent upon examination of the wreckage, he said. The wreckage seems to indicate that the plane crashed in a position more flat than nose-down, possibly indicating, he said, that the plane was coming out of a spin.

Federal Investigation
The coroner expressed the opinion that had there been no fire, the plane would not have been badly damaged. The wings would have been intact, he said.

Robert A. Peters, investigator of the Federal Aeronautics commission, has finished his survey here and has gone to South Bend. His findings will be reported to the commission in Washington, which will seek to determine the cause of the crash.

The accident occurred in a plowed field of the Joe O'Connor farm six miles southeast of Kankakee at 11:28 o'clock yesterday morning, about 10 minutes after the plane took off from Kankakee airport.

Allotment And Allowance Bill
Is ApprovedWashington, May 26—(AP)—The senate military committee today approved a soldier's allotment and allowance bill authorizing the selective service system and local boards to classify men with wives and children into categories to determine the order of calling them for army duty.

The bill, different from one already approved by the house military committee and awaiting passage of the new army pay bill before it is taken up, provides for deduction of $22 monthly from the enlisted man's pay with the government matching this with a $23 contribution to provide his wife with $50 for living expenses. The government would pay $12 a month toward support of one child and $10 monthly for each additional child.

The committee also approved a new provision making war risk insurance compulsory so that all men in the armed services would be required to have $10,000 of government insurance.

The service man would pay 35 cents a month per $1,000 for the insurance and the government the remainder of the premium. For $10,000 this would amount to about $3.50 for the service man and about $6.00 for the government.

As the committee acted, strong bi-partisan opposition developed against any congressional move to draft men in the 18-19 year age classes for military service.

French Fleet

Seamen Permission

Naval Bases

London, May 26—(AP)—An Axis squeeze play to get the French fleet or grab French territory, or both, was suggested today in parallel reports that Italy has demanded title to Nice and Corsica and that Pierre Laval has consented to the training of German seamen at French naval bases on the characteristics of French warships.

Comparison of the various reports brought out the outlines of a situation in which Germany and Italy each was using the needs of the other to seek her own ends, with the Vichy French government in the middle, formerly trying to play off one master against the other.

The Germans were portrayed as seeking to bolster their Rome front's morale by taking a slice of French territory and at the same time using this maneuver as a pretext to keep at home 300,000 Italian soldiers that the Germans would like to have sent to the Russian front.

Laval "on the Spot"
Pierre Laval, the Vichy chief of government and the man on the spot from all angles, was reported by diplomatic observers to have offered to negotiate the Italian demands, with a disclaimer offered to discuss Tunisia. The Italians have wanted Tunisia since before the world war, but their new demands were reported to deal with Nice and Corsica, so that injection of Tunisia into the discussions would further complicate and possibly delay matters.

Informed sources in London who have underground connections, said that in dealing with Germany, on the other hand, Laval had consented to the training of a considerable number of German seamen at French naval yards and stations to familiarize them with French warships. Possibly still would serve as a placatory move.

These sources said virtually all major units of the French fleet at the Toulon naval base had been drained of oil and did not have enough "to reach Algeria in an emergency."

(The clear implication was that the Germans had depleted the fleet's brackets fuel supplies to make sure that it did not attempt to escape.)

Promises "Complete Victory"
For Allies In Mediterranean

By DREW MIDDLETON
London, May 26—(AP)—Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, until recently commander-in-chief of Britain's Mediterranean fleet, promised "complete victory" today for the Allies in the Mediterranean once Britain and the United States meet the Axis' air and surface fleets on terms of equality.

Admiral Cunningham was named eight days ago to head the British admiralty delegation in Washington and was succeeded in command in the Mediterranean by Admiral Sir Henry Harwood.

Although "we have lacked the very essentials of victory" until now, Cunningham declared, "Italy was nearly out of the water" at the end of 1940 as a result of British naval and land victories.

He called the present phase in the Mediterranean a "campaign of mutual destruction of supply lines" and said that at one time 50 per cent of Axis supplies to Libya were being sunk by air and sea attacks from British forces based on Malta.

Now, however, these attacks are

Treatment Of War Nerves Presents Many Difficulties

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
Yesterday we described the reports which have reached us from our English brethren concerning the forms of nervous and mental upset which occurs as a result of war stresses with exposure to actual bombing or personal losses and sorrows. They fall, as we saw, into the familiar patterns of nervous breakdown in civilian life, although they are precipitated somewhat more suddenly and perhaps hit a larger group of the population. In other words, those individuals who, under the ordinary duties of civilian life, would have nervous systems entirely adequate to carry on their ordinary occupations, go to pieces under war conditions.

Treating Neuroses.
How do we treat these war neuroses and nervous breakdowns? Well, very much as any other nervous condition is treated. War conditions, of course, create situations which modify our approach. For instance, perhaps the ideal form of treatment of any condition of this kind is rest and isolation in a quiet environment. But where in the war-torn British Islands is it possible to find such a place, or is it possible to make room for these nervous derelicts when badly wounded men need beds and rest and quiet more than any other group in the population?

Again, analysis and review of the patient's history, education, and guidance with the patient's life history in view, is good treatment for these cases. But under war conditions, have we got time to spend on these people when those who are organically ill or wounded demand the attention of the limited number of physicians?

Neurotic in War Time
It is perfectly natural that the neurotic should be more or less neglected in war time. He may arouse our sympathy and may be very interesting at other times, but he is not in real danger and he must have secondary consideration. Surprisingly enough, the neurotic learns this in war time and very often manages to make surprising adjustments on his own hook without any help at all.

It is like a household in which one member appears to take a flimsy delight in obtruding her own symptoms into the picture, or setting everybody at loggerheads and upsetting everybody's plans on account of her whims. Then some member of the family actually gets dangerously ill and she finds herself in the corner with nobody to listen to her symptoms, and begins to realize that she really has a place of secondary importance which she has created by her own course of life. Everyone has known of instances like this where somebody else's sickness cured a neurotic permanently.

Change Since Last War
There is a curious change of distribution of nervous symptoms between this war and the last war as noted in England. In the last war soldiers suffered from shell shock which was simply a form of hysteria induced by their experiences in being under shell fire. These soldiers found that when they were reduced to a state of uselessness, they were sent back to England and put in a nice, safe hospital. But in this war, behind the lines in the civilian population it is as dangerous or even more dangerous than on the front lines, so the soldier learns to control his shell shock.

However, as time and circumstances permit, the tried and tested methods of psychological treatment are those which can be used in the case of war nerves—first, suggestions; second, persuasion or moralization; third, rest and isolation; fourth, personality analysis, and fifth, re-education and guidance.

Answer: Toxic symptoms have been reported from the excessive use of vitamin D and thiamine chloride (vitamin B).

P. V.: Can a tumor of the brain be X-rayed?

Answer: Neither the brain itself nor a tumor of the brain throws a shadow on the X-ray film, but by emptying the ventricles of the brain of their fluid and allowing air to flow into them, deformities are shown up which indicate the presence of tumor.
