PUBLIC REACTS TO DEFEAT OF LUDLOW BILL

All Classes Oppose
U. S. Entry Into
New War
STATE VIEWS

Indications that congressmen who voted the other day to shelve the proposed Ludlow amendment against an aggressive war by the United States will be flooded with criticism from their constituents came to light today as people of this district began to realize the full significance of the action.

James A. Meeks of Danville, congressman of this district, was one of the members of the house who voted to prevent the people from having the right to express approval or disapproval of aggressive warfare.

Proponents of the Ludlow measure had believed it safe for favorable consideration in congress until last-minute pressure by administration lobbyists and the President himself forced a number of congressmen to change their minds.

Wrong Opinion

People of this vicinity who previously had opposed the measure have altered their opinions since being correctly informed as to its provisions. They had believed that in case of invasion of this country or its possessions it would be necessary to call a national referendum before defense would be possible, but this is not correct.

The Ludlow amendment expressly provided that in case of any enemy invasion congress would still have the power to rally the nation's defenses without the necessity of a referendum. In such a case, congress would have the same powers of war declaration as it has today.

Mrs. W. A. Schneider, 949 South Chicago avenue, was one of the persons who today expressed disapproval of the congressional action.

A Mother's View

"As a mother of four sons," she said, "I am particularly interested. I have the conviction that before the United States enters into an aggressive war the people should be given the right to express themselves."

"I believe our congressmen should have voted for the measure. I think it quite disgusting that congressmen did not even have the courtesy to acknowledge the message."

Inquest Fails to Bring Out
Where Youths Had Been

Verdicts of accident were returned yesterday by an inquest jury impaneled by Coroner A. E. Kerger to investigate the deaths of Robert Heine, 20, of 125 North Fourth avenue, and Lawrence Bailey, 18, of 500 North Fairmount avenue, Hobbs Heights.

The probability that the two youths, when their automobile crashed early Sunday morning on a rural road four miles northwest of St. Anne, were returning from a trip to Watseka was expressed, but the nature of their errand there remains a mystery.

Evidence was also given that the Heine youth, who had been in the employ of his father as the driver of a beer delivery truck, often took this road on his returns from Watseka as a short cut.

The accident occurred where the road crossed the "Joliet trail" and was the principal road between Kankakee and St. Anne before concrete highways were built.

Father Testifies

Witnesses at the inquest were Frank Heine, father of Robert Heine and proprietor of a tavern on West Court street; John Webster of Chebanse rural route 1, half brother of Lawrence Bailey; Claude Tunks, 838 East Merchant street, proprietor of a gasoline service station at which Bailey worked; Robert

Judge 80 Today

Circuit Judge W. R. Hunter stepped into the select ranks of octogenarians in this city today when he observed his 80th birthday conducting "business as usual" on the bench. Looking at least 20 years younger than he is, the venerable jurist beamed this morning, "I can still lick my weight in wildcats!" Longevity runs in his family. His grandmother was 96 before she succumbed. All of his immediate forebears lived to be 80 or more. The judge didn't know it, but he was to be guest of honor this afternoon at a party in the courthouse arranged by his court reporter, Mrs. Geraldine Hemstreet.

He wasn't to be given presents "cause he doesn't like 'em, but his 56 years' service before the bar in Kankakee county.

DEATH RATE IS LOWER IN CITY
IN PAST YEAR

Only 296 Died Here in 1937; 314
in 1936

Kankakee was a healthier city in which to live during 1937, judging from an examination of vital statistics in the office of the city clerk, which show a decrease of nearly 7 per cent in the death rate over last year.

During 1936, a total of 314 deaths were recorded within the city limits, but for the year just ended only 296 lives were claimed. This was in spite of steady population increases due to an influx of new families.

Death certificates show that myocarditis, a form of heart failure, again led the list of fatal illness causes, claiming 38 victims. Next most frequent was pneumonia, diagnosed in 30 cases. Third was cerebral hemorrhage with 20.

23 Fatal Accidents

All forms of heart disease exacted a total of 107 lives; all types of lung

Girl Has Too Many Boy Friends, Sent to Geneva School

"The law" dealt with two young colorado folk today. Blanche Freeman, 17, of 604 North Wildwood avenue, brought into county court for staying out too late with too many boy friends, was sentenced to a term in Geneva girls' school by Judge John H. Beckers. Deputy Sheriff Walter Bauer and Mrs. John Stack, wife of the sheriff, took the girl to the institution.

Herbert Thomas, 552 North Evergreen avenue, arrested yesterday by city police officers, John Powell and Thomas Cantlin, on complaint of his family, pled guilty in police court this morning to charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct and was given three months' probation and a stern warning by Magistrate Edward Heenrich.

Thomas admitted that he took the $150 which his mother sent him to collect from Rev. Harry Anderson and spent it for whiskey Monday. He stayed out all night and wanted to move away from home when he returned next evening.

Tells How Man Fell
to Death on Friday

Frank Lockwood, fellow workman of Roy Wallace, 43, of 295 South Schuyler avenue, whose fall from a loop building last Friday proved fatal, told an inquest jury this morning how the accident happened. Coroner A. E. Kerger conducted the inquisition.

Lockwood was the ground man and Wallace was on the roof of the Christiansen Auto parts building, 151 East Station street, applying asphalt.

Wallace slipped and attempted to save himself by grabbing a rope hoist. This tumbled down, also, plummeting the sand bags to earth with him.

Other witnesses included Dr. O. E. Irwin, attending physician; Rene Tatro, Wallace employer, for whom he had worked two years; and his wife Clara. The verdict was routine—death from shock and injuries sustained accidentally in the fall.

COUNTY HIRES ARCHITECT FOR NEW POOR FARM

Will Make Survey
for Proposed Building

NO TAX BOOST

The county farm committee of the board of supervisors has been empowered to employ an architect to make a survey toward a possible progressive construction program for a new county home.

This power was given to the committee in yesterday's session of the county board, the board concurring in a recommendation to the effect that the finance committee.

The services of the architect are to be limited, for the time being, at least, to making a survey as to costs and not actual plans.

Build in Units

The board is considering the erection of a new county home by building it in units, a unit a year or over a period of years, so that the improvement can be paid for out of regular county funds without necessity for extra taxation or bond issues.

The board members referred to the welfare committee a resolution originating in Whiteside county which advocates the abolishment of the Illinois Emergency Relief committee and the disbursement of state relief funds by authorities in closest touch with local relief needs.

The welfare committee is to study the changes proposed in the resolution and make a report to the next board meeting. In the meantime, each member of the board is to be furnished a copy for individual study.

Hlt Relief System

The resolution condemns the present allocation of state relief funds by the state committee as "inadequate, ineffectual and incompatible with the American conception of good government" and declares that distribution of these funds is "unfair, unjust and inequitable."

It recommends that in the future state relief funds be distributed by the state auditor to county treasurers in accordance with the relief needs in each county and that the treasurers distribute the funds to

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 12.—(UP)—Edwina Keyser, 13, and Lowell Mast, 14, eighth-grade students who disappeared Friday from their homes in Bremen, Ind., arrived here today, without funds, and were turned over to juvenile authorities.

The boy and girl, sweethearts since they were in the fifth grade, and who were believed by their parents to have eloped, made no attempt to get married, they told officers.

They said they feared that no state through which they drove would allow them to marry, so they made no effort to obtain a license.

They said they planned their trip several days in advance. They left Bremen in the car belonging to the girl's parents, with only $6.50 in cash.

As they ran short of money they sold the car's radio for $3.50, and finally disposed of the seat covers, the spare tire and the girl's overnight bag for an aggregate of $6.50.

In Georgia, they gave a ride to a man and a woman. The hitchhikers were without funds, so the young couple paid for their food from their scanty funds. They brought the hitchhikers here.

Police found the sweethearts asleep in the car, parked near the beach, a few hours after they arrived. They were turned over to Juvenile Officer Paul Martens.

"I wouldn't blame our parents if they were angry with us," the boy told police.

U.S. Worried Over Delays At Bradley

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—(RN Special)—Worried over possible delay in construction of the new Bradley postoffice, the Treasury's procurement division has asked for an immediate report on the work from the federal engineer in charge of the job, it was learned today.

The engineer, A. P. Magahan, was sent to Bradley to superintend construction, and report monthly on the work as soon as the project got underway. To date, officials said, the procurement division has recorded that the contractor, the Langlois Construction company, has started the work.

Magahan's monthly reports will include photographs of the project, providing a picture record of the progress of the job.

It is necessary to keep contractors fairly close to schedule on federal construction jobs, engineers said, because delays beyond scheduled completion dates cost the government money, even when the contractor himself may be fined for such delay.

The procurement division is hopeful that the ground and foundation work on the building can be completed in spite of cold weather.

GOOD LITTLE GIRL
Watertown, Mass.—(188)—Because Lucille Sarkisian, 4, was a good little girl and obeyed a parental command to wear her rubbers, she became a fire heroine. Damage was $1,000, but firemen said it would have been greater if Lucille had not gone looking for her stormy weather gear.
