BABY CYCLONE WRECKS FARM NEAR SHELDON

2.11 Inches of Rain Falls Here Dur- ing Night

Accompanied by unseasonal thunder and lightning, a total of 2.11 inches of rain fell in Kankakee last evening and last night, according to the records of the Kankakee Water company.

As a consequence, the river brought at the water plant rose from 26 feet yesterday to 49 feet today.

The behavior of the thermometer was erratic, with the mercury dropping from a high of 50 at 11 o'clock last night, at the height of the rain, to a low of 13 at noon today.

Livestock Killed

Sheldon, Feb. 10.—(RN Special)— A cyclonic wind struck the Joe Keller farm, 4 1/2 miles southeast of Sheldon about midnight last night, toppling a barn, killing most of the stock, shattering windows in the house, uprooting some trees, ripping the tops out of others and doubling up a windmill.

The Keller family was asleep in the house when the wind came up.
Mr. and Mrs. Keller narrowly escaped injury when a limb was driven through their bedroom window and fell beside the bed. A big window sill downstairs was ripped from the side of the dwelling. The telephone line was put out of communication and they were unable to summon assistance until Keller made a trip to neighbors.

All seven of the horses and two cows were crushed to death when the big barn fell on them. Two cows were saved. Trees, branches, boards and straw littered the barnyard this morning as many neighbors arrived to help clear the debris.
The chickens and pigs were not touched by the wind.

Trees Damaged

This was the only farm at which damage was reported, although the path of the wind could be seen this morning in limbs broken off trees in a four-mile strip from Sheldon south to the Keller farm.

Several communities reported high wind accompanying last night's heavy rain. In Watseka, a large tree was blown down on North Fourth street, caving in the roof of the Casey homestead, where Victor Casey resides.

Condolences Of President Sent to Rome

Washington, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Secretary Hull, expressing the profound condolences of President Roosevelt, cabled the Vatican today that Pope Pius' death was received with deep sorrow throughout the United States.

Hull's message to Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, said:
"The President desires me to express to your eminence profound condolences on the death of His Holiness Pope Pius Eleventh. His great spiritual qualities and his zeal for peace and tolerance won him a place in the hearts of all races and creeds. Word of his passing has been received with deep sorrow throughout the United States."

LONG STRUGGLE OVER FEDERAL APPOINTMENTS

FDR Encounters Senate Displeasure in Selections

Washington, Feb. 10.—(AP)—A prolonged struggle between President Roosevelt and the senate over the politically-vital question of federal appointments was indicated today by controversies over new negotiations.

The chief executive has encountered senate displeasure over his selections of a half-dozen important officials.

One nomination—that of Floyd H. Roberts to be a federal judge in Virginia—already has been rejected, 72 to 9. The President was bluntly critical of the action, taken after Senators Glass and Byrd, Virginia Democrats, had termed the nomination "personally offensive."

Following up a charge by Glass that Mr. Roosevelt was seeking to "purge" the two Virginia senators, Byrd said last night the judgeship appointment had made "a vehicle to carry out a political purpose of retaliation."

Power of Appointment Referring to the constitutional provision authorizing the President to make certain appointments "by and with the advice and consent of the senate," Byrd said: "It is well to recall that the power of appointment to such offices as district judge is a joint power divided equally between the President and the senate."

Delay Sailing of Italian Ship for American Cardinals

New York, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The Italian line announced today the departure of the liner Rex would be delayed two hours tomorrow so that two and possibly all three of the American cardinals could sail for Italy.

The line said Dennis Cardinal Sheehan of Philadelphia and George Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago had made reservations to sail at 2 p. m., 1 p. m., est. tomorrow.

There also was a possibility that William Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, who has been vacationing at Nassau, Bahamas, would arrive by plane in time to sail on the Rex, which reaches Naples February 18.

THEY SMOKED IN CHURCHES CENTURIES AGO

Tobacco Expert In Interesting Talk to Rotary

One-tenth of the total federal government income last year was produced from excise taxes on cigarettes. The tax of six cents a package amounted to $550,000,000, according to A. W. Lawton of Chicago, member of the research department of Philip Morris and company, who addressed the Rotary club Thursday noon in the Hotel Kankakee.

Describing tobacco's growth from a weed to an important international commodity, the speaker said that when Columbus landed in 1492 he found the Indians using a Y-shaped hollow stick to draw smoke into their nostrils just the reverse of smoking habit today.

Smoking was quickly popularized in Europe after the explorers returned; one early pope, Urban VIII, found it necessary to forbid smoking in church because the sound of flint striking against steel (to light the pipes) was so great it disturbed the rites.

Wooden Indians
All of the early tobacco shops, quite naturally advertised their business with wooden Indians since Indians were the first smokers. Everything sold in these shops was made on the premises, Lawton continued.
He described the various operations involved in modern cigarette manufacturing and quoted figures to show the size of this industry which last year did a $1,500,000,000 business.

The 192,000,000,000 cigarettes and last year would make a continuous cigarette 8,800,000 miles long and would reach to the moon and back 20 times, he said. Referring to his company, Lawton said it made its bow as an American corporation in 1933, selling $225,000 worth of cigarettes the first year. The next year the volume jumped to $4,000,000 and last year it touched $48,000,000.

Lawton asserted his company sold 8,000 cigarettes for every dollar of advertising, which amounted to about 2 per cent of the gross. Its tobacco is blended 85 per cent domestic and 15 per cent imported.
He said some cigarette companies use Kentucky burley, molasses, maple sugar or rum to improve the aroma, for "cigarettes have to smell nice when the package is opened."

He was introduced by Guy Quick, John Willis president in the absence of President B. F. Herzig who is in Arizona and John Mayhew reported on the inter-club meeting last Monday night in Chicago Heights. Guests yesterday included Roy Baker of Dwight, Cecil Kirk, new Boy Scout executive, and Bob Ball, local representative for the cigarette firm.

Laurix Brothers Are Taken Back to Joliet Prison

Bernard "Pete" and Frank "Slim" Laurix, Kankakee ex-convicts on parole, who were arrested here last fall after a series of robberies were taken back to the Joliet prison yesterday.

John Boles of Joliet, state parole officer, came for them with warrants from the penitentiary for parole violation. Deputy Sheriff Gene LaFontaine accompanied Boles and the prisoners on the trip back to Joliet.

The Laurix brothers had been held in jail here for several months and were under indictment for the robberies last fall but the illness of Circuit Judge W. R. Hunter has prevented their trials.

State's Attorney Samuel H. Shapiro said that he will file a detainer warrant at the prison so that when the brothers are finally released from the penitentiary they can be brought back here for trial.

The state's attorney expressed the opinion that the brothers will serve several years, perhaps as much as 10, before they are released from Joliet again.

300 Dieticians at Manteno Hospital

Close to 300 dieticians were ex-hospital this afternoon for a two-day meeting of the state dietetic association.

Several officers of the national dieticians' association also planned to attend. In the auditorium on the Hospital is Crowded; Bar All Visitors

Because of the high incidence of influenza and colds at the present time officials of St. Mary hospital announced today that visitors would have to be restricted to immediate families of patients.

The institution is crowded with patients, several suffering from pneumonia and many surgery cases, leading hospital authorities to post the temporary visiting ban as an added precaution against spreading infection. During this period no children can be allowed in any part of the infirmary, it was said.

Quiet Title on 500 Limestone Acres

A decree quieting title to a 500-acre tract in Limestone township was issued here yesterday by Circuit Judge Claude N. Saum of Wat-

The suit was brought in the name selling the land to George D. Miller.

The agent was represented by Attorney Elmer Wilson.

Title of the land goes back to the time when the property lay in was formed, but there was a flaw in the title due to an error in recording when the new county was

PEACE-LOVING SOVEREIGN IS CALLED TODAY

Catholic Church's Ruler Asthmatic Heart Victim

BULLETIN
Vatican City, Feb. 10.—(AP)— Vatican prelates said today the conclave of cardinals for election of the next pope probably would convene February 25 if American and other foreign cardinals were able to arrive by then.

Earlier it had been expected generally the conclave would open February 25.

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
Vatican City, Feb. 10.—(AP)— Scholarly, peace-loving Pope Pius XI died quietly this morning just before the church bells of old Rome sounded morning Angelus and while the closest of his churchly servants knelt in prayer at his side.
His body was borne in gorgeous procession this afternoon from the death chamber to the Sistine chapel, there to lie in state amidst the celebrated frescoes of Michelangelo.

There, in the 15th century chapel where his successor will be elected in a secret conclave which prelates said probably would convene February 25, only dignitaries were allowed to view his features, shrunken by long illness, and to kneel and pray.

Dr. Amintore Milan, called from a sick-bed, nodded that the end had come at 5:31 a. m. for the "Pope of Peace" on the fifth day of the 18th year since his selection as head of the Catholic church.

During the administration of the last rites witnesses said they saw the pope's lips move.

Some close to him thought they heard him say:

"Our last rites, like those of all mortals, Sister Theresa of the infant Jesus, art near to us. God is merciful. May his will be done."

Saint Theresa whom Pius canonized was the saint to whom he had entrusted his health.

EVERYTHING GONE-BUT PRIDE

Jesse Root Grant died of exposure and malnutrition rather than hunger, the proud name he bore.

He was the son of the brother of the great general, Ulysses Simpson Grant. He was found in a coma in the basement of the cold, barren Chicago house where he and his son had tried in vain to wrest a living from a world that no longer cared.

Once a railroad accountant, he retired some 10 years ago. At 74, he had nothing, could do nothing. Even his son, Ulysses S. Grant, 38, had been unemployed since 1930.

The last of a small legacy had been exhausted. The fire in the furnace had gone out. The only thing in the house was a pitcher which had been kept brightly polished. It had belonged to the general, the surviving Grant said.

Though everything was gone, Jesse Grant had been too proud to ask help of friends, too proud to allow his name to appear on yellow tickets. All he could do was to keep the pitcher bright, and die.

His pride, like his name, descended to him legitimately. The man who brought fame to the name of Grant was a proud man, too. In his last years, ex-President Grant saw his fortune crumble when a scandalously partner decamped with the funds of the firm of Grant and Ward, bankers and brokers.

An old man, he sold everything he had, his houses, his property, to apply on his resulting debts.

To pay the remainder he sat down to write his memoirs. And while torturing cancer gnawed at his throat and death itself hovered over his invalid chair, he wrote and wrote, seeking to pay the debts and clear his name.

I feel that we are on the eve of a new era, when there is to be great harmony between the Federated Confederate. I cannot stay to be a living witness of the correctness of this prophecy.

So, U. S. Grant wrote in May, 1885, feeling those awful grips at his throat. And in July he died, his last energies gone to pay his debt and clear his name.

So Jesse Root Grant died. He was defeated in the battle of life, but proud to the end. And he kept the pitcher bright.

THAT SMALL WORLD

Of course it's a small world. The Indiana Hoosier, meeting on the streets of Nairobi a fellow native of Posey county, has often observed as much.

And yet, who would have thought that the war in China would directly affect the business and the living of American mountaineers high up in the Blue Ridge of North Carolina? These mountain men may never have been as much as 30 miles from home "across the hollow," but they are feeling the war in China just the same.

You see, they dig ginseng root, and sell it in the medical markets. Widely used, it is nevertheless given almost miraculous qualities by the Chinese. Roots having the shape of animals, dried whole, command a premium in China, and the whole crop has always been in high demand by the Chinese.

But came the Japanese invasion. The market for ginseng root fell to pieces in China. Ginseng won't cure the gaping wounds left by airplane bombs.

Now the mountain folk get, from $3 to $4 a pound for their ginseng root, about a fifth of what it brought before the Japanese invasion. A small world? Ask the mountain men!

Montpelier, Vt., Feb. 10.—(UPI)—Vermonters apparently have their feet well on the ground. A check-up on aircraft registration in the United States shows this state's record of 35 puts it in the lowest place, with New Mexico 34 at the bottom of the list.

BROTHERS BOXING RIVALS

Lawton, Okla., Feb. 10.—(UPI)—The old story of "brother against brother" was repeated here when Vincent Myers had been thought just the man for the welterweight boxing try on the Cameron college boxing team until his brother Melvin "Hawkeye" Myers enrolled. Melvin is a mind-boggling 145-pound class. It may be Myers vs. Myers.

FORGOTTEN MAN PAYS EXTREME PENALTY TODAY

Kentucky Man Ex- ecuted for 4-Year Old Crime

Edwille, Ky., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Calmly and steadily, Sylvester Warner, 20-year-old convicted robbery slayer, walked early today to a death he expected more than four years ago.

Two charges of electricity ended Warner's life in the electric chair at western Kentucky penitentiary just as he finished reciting the Lord's prayer.

Warner, termed the "forgotten man" because of his long confinement in the prison death-house, was convicted with two others of robbing and beating to death John White, 82, and his ex-slave son, Clay White, 54, on the night of Dec. 8, 1932. The robbery netted $11 in cash.

Death-House Continuously

Warner and Huston Jeffries were sentenced to death. Carl Hardin, third convicted youth, received life imprisonment.

On the eve of the scheduled executions Feb. 23, 1934, Ruby LaFon, then governor, commuted Jeffries' sentence to life imprisonment and granted Warner a stay of execution for further study of the case.

LaFon was succeeded 13 months later by Gov. A. B. Chandler. Although the case bobbed up several times, Warner's "temporary" stay lengthened. Last month Governor Chandler reviewed the slayings and fixed the execution date.

Warner remained in a death row cell continuously from Feb. 17, 1934, until late yesterday when he was taken to the prison hospital for a medical examination. Four physicians said he was "mentally sound."

New York, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Deputy Police Commissioner John A. Lavin testified today at the federal conspiracy trial of James J. Hines that in the fall of 1933 he received orders to get rid of a detective who had been investigating the activities of the Italian mob.

Lavin said that instead of dropping the case, he was ordered to get rid of the detective. He said that he was ordered to get rid of the detective by the Italian mob.

U. S. CARDINALS TO TAKE PART; NEXT ELECTION

First Time In History of Catholic Church

Vatican City, Feb. 10.—(AP)—American cardinals as a group will take part in the election of the next pope for the first time in the history of the Catholic church.

This is a consequence of the action of Pope Pius XI, who decreed that the time elapsing after the death of the pope must be a minimum of 15 days, with three days of grace, or a maximum of 18 days, before the conclave to choose his successor begins.

The late James Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore took part in the election of Pius X, successor to Leo XIII, solely because he left Baltimore for Rome during Leo's illness.

The prolongation of the interval between the pontiff's death and the conclave is the result of a protest made by the dean of the American Cardinals, William Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, following the death of Pope Benedict XV.

Pope Benedict died Jan. 22, 1922, and Cardinal O'Connell took the first boat possible, the Wilson.

As he was on the train between Naples and Rome the two-thirds vote of the conclave fell upon Cardinal Achille Ratti, archbishop of Milan, who became Pope Pius XI.

Interval Extended
The American prelate hastened to the Vatican. The conclave, as is the custom, was still in session, although the pope had been chosen. The cardinals still were locked in a portion of the Vatican.

The American prelate could not but express his disappointment at having arrived just too late to participate in the important election. This disappointment he expressed directly to the new pope.

Pope Pius told him he understood the situation. He said the development of the new continent had made necessary the nomination of cardinals whom the rules of the conclave, thinking only of European prelates, had not had in mind. He promised that the time interval between his own death and the inauguration of the conclave would be lengthened to permit the coming to Rome of the most distant cardinal.

Nations of the World Mourn Death of Pope Pius in Rome

By the Associated Press
London, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Men of all ranks joined today in common bereavement, kneeling to pray for the repose of the soul of Pope Pius XI, Christ's vicar on earth for one-fifth of its people.

Amid joy for triumphs on the battlefield, Spanish Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco ordered all flags at half-staff in mourning for the pope, who died at 5:31 a. m. today (10:31 p. m. Thursday, C. S. T.) at his palace in Vatican City.

In Rome, Premier Mussolini called the pontiff's death "a source of grief for the church and for the Italian nation," King Vittorio Emanuele ordered schools suspended classes. All places of entertainment were closed.

In Dublin, Irish Premier Eamon De Valera paid tribute to the pope's work in a eulogy before the dial (parliament), which adjourned without transacting business.

With his inspired word as his strength and prayers as his arm, De Valera said, "he opposed violence and materialism and all those evils which are fast bringing the world back to the edge of a new catastrophe."

Places on a public buildings in Berlin were ordered flown at half-staff and the press was instructed to review the pope's career with respect due his office and person.

The great Catholic population of France learned of the pope's death with universal expressions of grief. Special masses were ordered celebrated in all parishes throughout the nation.

The Byzantine Cathedral of the Westminster archdiocese in London was filled with hundreds of worshippers praying for the soul of the holiest of our Lord.

At the annual Anglican church assembly, the Archbishop of Canterbury asked bishops and laymen to "stand in remembrance of the pope," whom he called a "man of wide learning and of most sincere and ardent piety."

At Kaunas, the government of Lithuania ordered three days of official mourning for the pope.

Royal Nicholas Horthy of Hungary ordered the army to observe a day of mourning.

Members of the pontifical court who exercised a great influence on the pope were his secretaries, Monsignors Carlo Confalonieri and Diego Venini. They spent more time with him than any other persons, ecclesiastical or lay.

The secret almoner, Monsignor Giuseppe Migone, distributor of the pope's private charities, was another important member of the court.

The court was completed by a number of servants mostly with high-sounding titles. There was Vincenzo Gaddi, known as the secret sweeper. His job was to sweep out the pontifical chambers. Why it was "secret" is not known except that his work had to be done in the very early morning, so that when his master started his own day's work the apartments would be spick and span, without any sign of Vincenzo.

There were two porters of the chamber, Alfredo Novelli and Fausto d'Agostini, whose jobs were to stand by and do any odd work required of them.

Perhaps the most curious figure of the whole papal court, and perhaps also the one who mourns the pope most, was the aide of the chamber, Giovanni Malvestiti. He was Pius XI's valet, despite his name Malvestiti, which, in Italian, means "badly dressed." A tall, emaciated-looking man whose age might be anything from 40 to 70, he was closer to the late pontiff than any other member of the court. His costume throughout the day was a full-dress suit, with black vest, the traditional costume of civilians going to see the pope. He has relatives in Rockford, Ill.

was Pius XI's valet, despite his name Malvestiti, which, in Italian, means "badly dressed." A tall, emaciated-looking man whose age might be anything from 40 to 70, he was closer to the late pontiff than any other member of the court. His costume throughout the day was a full-dress suit, with black vest, the traditional costume of civilians going to see the pope. He has relatives in Rockford, Ill.

I. Mrs. Jolly Says

"I said to my insurance agent the other day—here, Mister Agent of the National Insurance Company of Hartford, with a nerve-racking job trying to sell insurance all day to a lot of people who don't want it?" He said—"Why not I don't by to 'em anything they don't want. I want to leave it. Most of 'em see that I'm doing them a real favor."

"Well, sir, I realized that that's the way it is. I've been giving me a big favor in giving me an intelligent picture of my needs, and letting me use my common sense, without high-pressureing me. That's why I say—to an agent you can trust—and be paid by his judgment."
